It begins to look as though there are enough votes in the Senate to pass the cruiser bill if the gentleman who desire it will hold up the Kellogg treaty until it has been passed, by which simple means they can avoid a filibuster against the national defense and then hand the peace pact to the world on a gold platter studded with imitation diamonds.

MELLON HEARS HOOVER'S VIEW AT LONG LUNCH

BROOKHART TO FIGHT NOMINATION, HE SAYS

President-Elect Confers With Others at Mayflower Hotel Offices.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The fact that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon was a luncheon guest of President-elect Hoover yesterday caused political observers generally to consider the Treasury post in the Cabinet closed. The opinion was not based entirely upon the luncheon, of course, but it is taken as a foregone conclusion that under the circumstances it would have been almost impossible for these two men to have sat facing each other across a small table through more than an hour without discussing the Cabinet.

And any discussion would have been predicated upon the statement attributed to Mr. Hoover during the campaign that he hoped Mr. Mellon would remain at his post, and the statement by Mr. Mellon that he would like nothing better than to do so.

Fight by Progressives.

For several weeks these statements have been recalled in the press of the country and the conviction has been rather general that of all the Cabinet posts, that of the Treasury was definitely settled. The situation is so, in fact, that the announcement that Mr. Mellon would not remain would create more of a surprise than the announcement that he would.

Nevertheless, some doubt has been caused in recent weeks mainly because of Mr. Hoover's silence on the question of the Cabinet appointments and the fact that Middle Western Progressives plan to make a fight on him. In this connection it is noteworthy that the first of the Progressives to see Mr. Hoover will be Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, today.

Significance in Luncheon.

The Iowa senator, along with Senators Nye and Frazier, of North Dakota, and others made known sometime ago that they would tell Mr. Hoover that Mellon was unsatisfactory to them and that if he insisted on appointing him they would fight confirmation in the Senate.

It is considered significant that Mr. Hoover had the Treasury Secretary to luchеon before any of the opposition senators were seen. The conference between the two is taken more as removing any doubt as to the Treasury post than anything else, because, as pointed out before, the surprise would come in the event Mr. Mellon should not remain.

Brookhart to Go Ahead.

Presumably, Senator Brookhart will go right ahead with his plan of objecting to Mr. Mellon when he sees the President-elect today. But Mr. Hoover undoubtedly knew of the intentions of the progressive group when he invited Mr. Mellon to lunch. It is possible, of course, that the two sat through the luncheon without there being so much as a word spoken on the Cabinet—possible, but very unlikely.

Now had there been any doubt in Mr. Hoover's mind as to whether to ask Mr. Mellon to remain, it is considered that he would have deferred the luncheon. It could have been done very easily. It was not a case of having the Treasury Secretary in order of Cabinet rank. He was the first member of the Cabinet to see Mr. Hoover since his return.

Later in the afternoon Secretary of Commerce Whiting called. He was only

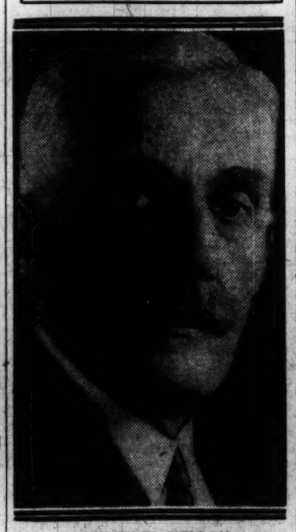
HOOVER GUEST



ANDREW W. MELLON.

INVESTIGATION NEXT STEP

Oklahoma City, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Pent-up opposition to the administration of Gov. Henry S. Johnston, held in check for more than a year by his success in forestalling a special impeachment session, broke about his head today in the first meeting of the regular biennial session of the Oklahoma Legislature.

Democratic defenders were helpless against a coalition of antiadministration Democrats and the solid Republican membership of the house of representatives, which lost no time in seizing control of that body in preparation for an investigation of the official conduct of Gov. Johnston and other State officers.

James C. Nance, of Coston County, a leader of the insurgent Democrats, was elected speaker after the withdrawal of Allen Street, of Oklahoma County, an administration man.

Leaders of the administration group pleaded in vain for party regularity. The insurgents voted consistently with the Republicans on all questions testing the power of the opposing factions.

Although two of the chief leaders of the abortive impeachment session, E. P. Hill, of Pittsburg County, and Tom Johnson, of Pushmataha County, were defeated in the August and November elections, respectively, the forces of the opposition were augmented by the replacement of numerous Democrats by Republicans in the general election, so that the dissident group in voting today, controlled as many as 58 of the 106 votes in the lower house.

J. C. Walton, who was deposed as governor in 1923 by a special impeachment session, was an interested spectator of the house's maneuvering.

The personnel of a committee on committees, which will choose all of the house groups, including the investigating committee, was dictated by the hostile coalition.

The nucleus of the antiadministration group of Democrats consists of survivors of the attempted impeachment session of December, 1927, which was dispersed by court action initiated by Gov. Johnston after he had used National Guardsmen to bar the Capitol doors against the self-convened legislators. Although a majority of members evaded the guardsmen and voted purported impeachment charges against the governor, Harry B. Cordell, president of the State Board of Agriculture, and Fred P. Branson, chief justice of the State Supreme Court, the State senate accepted the decision of the supreme court that the house had no constitutional right

DRIVE AGAINST 15-CRUISER BILL FAILURE, CLAIM

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The widely heralded antinavy drive of the pacifists reached its culmination here yesterday without outwardly advancing the cause of true internationalism based on the scrapping of the American cruiser bill now pending before the Senate.

As a spectacle, the mass-drive proved a most disappointing flop with meager attendance at the discussions during the morning and afternoon, but a very good attendance for the very good dinner held in the hall of nations of the Washington Hotel.

The mass-drive against senators, accomplished by an organized and mostly feminine batallion of buttonholing delegates, also proved a great disappointment to the conference when the returning delegations made their reports. No single senator interviewed promised to vote against the cruisers, many of them spoke lightly and, as it appeared to the delegates, almost blasphemously about the antiwar pact and the arch villains in the tragic events at the Capitol were the Reed cousins, David A., of Pennsylvania, and James A., of Missouri.

David A. had the national defense complex to such an extent that he favored 30 cruisers instead of 15, and James A. characterized the present efforts of the pacifists as calculated to render the country defenseless and thereby guarantee war.

Four Senators at Banquet.

The banquet had the boasted distinction of four senatorial guests, Senators Nye, Wheeler, Brookhart and Frazier, and the after dinner speeches were of the usual kind and suited the taste of the pacifists and internationalists.

Both at the evening and morning sessions there were eloquent defenses of the British royal navy, the British naval policy, the need for reliance upon British friendship and good will rather than cruisers as a means of American national defense.

"Why this idea of parity with Great Britain?" Frederic A. Delano asked in his morning speech. He confessed that he lacked technical knowledge about naval affairs, but he had had experience in seeing freight cars moved during the war and he knew that the American Navy was idle most of the time during the world conflict. If a navy is idle why have more ships? was one theory. Why not double the personnel of the ships and thereby increase fighting efficiency was another.

Edward T. Devine, college dean here, acted as toastmaster at the banquet and announced receipt of 450 messages from all parts of the country pledging support to the cause.

Too Much Gun-Toting.

There is enough gun-toting in America's domestic life without gun-toting on the high seas, he said. He described the Kellogg pact as ending the international gun-toting season. To pass the cruiser bill after ratifying the treaty would mean stultifying America and "convicting ourselves of national hypocrisy," he said.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, sent regrets and did not attend as scheduled. His place was taken by Rabbi Max Heller, of Cincinnati, who spoke of "cruisers being erected" thereby adding a novelty to twentieth century naval parlance.

Erecting cruisers meant nullification of the peace pact, he argued. Prof. Parker T. Moon, of Columbia University, added his voice against the idea of seeking parity with Great Britain.

'Hex' Slayer, Says Lawyer, Insane; Deluded by Witchcraft Beliefs

Father of Blymyer Not Allowed to Tell of Son's Illusions.

York, Pa., Jan. 8 (U.P.).—The life story of a person born in an atmosphere of superstition, reared upon witchcraft, "powwow" and voodoo, to be unfolded in the defense of John Blymyer, accused of York's witchcraft murder, Herbert Cohen, Blymyer's attorney, promised today.

When a child raised amid such environment also suffers from a chronic mental trouble, his delusions of witchery and day dreams of black magic may easily lead to murder, Cohen argued.

So he promised a willing courtroom that he would show that to John Blymyer hobgoblins and "boogey men" were not just childhood fantasies useful to frighten the neighbors' bad boy out of the family apple tree but that even at the age of 32 Blymyer still finds them objects of an unshakable belief.

He added that he would prove Blymyer had the mentality at 32 of a child of 8 years, and that he was, in fact, insane and had been for many years. When all this evidence is in, Cohen said, the jury will be convinced that the tall, thin defendant, who later was described by a witness as having once lost "so much weight he could not buy a cap small enough to fit his head," suffered from chronic insanity which took the form of a delusion of witchcraft and would acquit him on the grounds of mental incompetency

As Cohen related these dark things about the defendant in his opening statement to the jury, Blymyer, who is accused of murdering Nelson Rehmeyer sat taking in every word, fumbling with a cap which, oddly enough, seemed about the right size after all—which he held on his knee. He gave every evidence of having only the interest of a student of human conduct in the whole affair.

Clayton Hess, the lad who brought Monday's session to a close with the trial's first outbreak of witchery when he testified Blymyer had confided to him, after Nelson Rehmeyer had been murdered, that in killing Rehmeyer he "got the witch," opened the day's testimony.

Under cross-examination he told with all the candor of deep belief how the object of the attack of Rhemeyer had been to get a "witch knot of hair" in order to break a spell Rhemeyer had cast over the Hess family.

After that the remainder of the State's case was less exciting. The

GIRL DEAD, 1 DYING AS AUTO HITS TRIO

POLICE HOLD TWO BOYS

One girl is dead, another is believed to be dying and a man is in a serious condition from injuries suffered early last night when they were struck down by an automobile just after alighting from a motor bus at Wilson boulevard and Milton avenue, in Clarendon, Va.

The dead girl is Mrs. Herbert L. Bowbeer, 17 years old, of Clarendon. She died at Georgetown Hospital within an hour after the accident. She was badly mangled, suffering injuries to her face and body and compound fractures of both legs.

The injured are: Miss Pauline Newland, 19 years old, and James L. Searle, 22 years old, both of Clarendon. Both are in Georgetown Hospital.

Miss Newland suffered internal injuries which necessitated an emergency operation shortly after the accident. Surgeons reported that her liver was punctured in the crash and that a major operation on the organ had to be performed. Miss Newland rallied after the operation, but early this morning surgeons held out only slight hope for her recovery.

Searle's condition, while not critical, is considered serious. He has a com-

POLICE ERROR BARED IN ROTHSTEIN CASE

CORDES' TRIAL DATE SET

New York, Jan. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—How near the police came to a quick solution of the Rothstein case and the wide margin by which they failed became known today as Police Commissioner Whalen set the date for trial of John H. Cordes, suspended detective and ace of the department, for Saturday, and the news leaked out that Hyman (Gil) Biller, sought for the last few weeks as one of the killers of Arnold Rothstein, actually was in the hands of the police a few hours after the murder.

The admission that Biller had been questioned by police but let go, came from District Attorney Banton after the police commissioner had refused to admit as much for publication on the ground that any information at this time regarding the lack of activity on the part of detectives assigned to the investigation might hurt the case of the district attorney against George McManus, awaiting trial for the Rothstein murder.

The identities of the mysterious John Doe and Richard Roe, indicted with McManus, have not been revealed to

HOOVER FAVORS PRESENT PLANS FOR INAUGURAL

Parade of Two Hours Gains Approval of the President-Elect.

CHARITY BALL, MARCH 4, TO WIND UP PROGRAM

Use of Aerial Units in Sky Procession Is Only Item Not Mentioned.

President-elect Herbert Hoover yesterday gave his approval to the holding March 4 of an inaugural parade lasting two hours. He also gave his approval to plans of the inaugural committee for the holding of a charity ball, scheduled to be held the evening of March 4 at the Washington Auditorium.

The parade, which will pass up Pennsylvania avenue from the Peace Monument to the State, War and Navy Department Building, will be made up of representatives of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, the governors of the States and their escorts, and limited delegations of groups and organizations representing the life and work of the people. The parade will be approximately three times as long as that which marked the Coolidge inaugural.

Although the subject was not mentioned during the hour and fifteen minutes members of the inaugural committee conferred with Hoover yesterday in his offices at the Mayflower Hotel, it was deemed unlikely that the President-elect would frown upon participation of aerial units in a sky parade coincident with that to be held on Pennsylvania avenue, providing such units were recruited from air forces stationed at Bolling Field, the Naval Air Station at Anacostia and at Quantico, Va., the Marine Corps base.

Disapproves Inaugural Ball.

Hoover disapproved of the holding of an inaugural ball, following the precedent of recent years, however, and also of plans for its attendance with Mrs. Hoover at the charity ball or other outside entertainments planned by the inaugural committee.

Not since March 4, 1909, has an inaugural ball been held. At that time President William Howard Taft attended the event in his honor, held in the Pension Office Building, at Fifth and G streets northwest.

Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge, however, refused to sanction the holding of an inaugural ball, nor did they attend functions in their honor held in the evening of their inauguration.

Officials of the inaugural committee said yesterday that arrangements for the holding of the charity ball were being made under the direction of Mrs. John Allan Dougherty.

Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee; Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the inaugural committee, and Edward F. Colladay, national committeeman from the District of Columbia and chairman of the inaugural reception to the governors of the States, were those who conferred with Hoover on the plans for March 4.

Col. Grant's Statement.

"In conformity with the President-elect's wishes, there will be no inaugural ball, and he will not attend any other ball on March 4. No objection was made to a charity ball that evening, such as was held on the evening of President Coolidge's inauguration, but Mr. Hoover has made it clear that he and Mrs. Hoover will not attend.

"There will be a parade, with the military features strictly limited to the Army and Navy and Marine Corps in the immediate vicinity of Washington, and an escort for each governor from his State; but an opportunity will be given in it for limited delegations of representative organizations and groups representing the various phases of the life and work of the people.

"However, under no circumstances will the length of the parade be extended beyond two hours, and the in-

Houdini, in Spirit Message, Gives Secret Code to Wife

Medium Transmits Agreed-on Word, "Believe," Sign of Immortality, to Mrs. Houdini at Bedside; She Accepts Revelation as Genuine.

New York, Jan. 8 (U.P.).—Harry Houdini, master magician and archfoe of all psychic phenomena in this land of the living while he lived, has, according to spiritualist leaders here, given mankind "a sign" of immortality for which it has been waiting throughout the ages.

It is the sign which Houdini arranged with his wife, Beatrice, before he died October 31, 1926, and which he agreed to transmit to her, if a life beyond the grave were found and if his spirit could discover or devise a means of communication with the living.

That message, translated, purportedly from a complicated code used by Houdini and his wife in their "mind-reading" act for years on the stages of America and Europe, is couched in the single and simple word: "Believe."

Mrs. Houdini, without reservation, accepted the message as genuine, and expressed her intention of removing from the vault in a safety deposit company's strongholds the sealed envelope which Houdini prepared and placed there against just such a time as this is represented to be. At present Mrs. Houdini is bedridden, suffering from sprained back and a slight injury to her head which was incurred in a fall New Year's eve as she tripped over a rug. She has volunteered to give the key to the safety deposit box to disinterested persons in case her recovery is unduly delayed.

The revelation of the message, which was started last October, was made complete yesterday afternoon through the Rev. Arthur Ford, minister of the First Spiritualist Church, Carnegie Hall, and editor of Immortality, a leading Spiritualist journal, acting as medium. A seance was held beside the couch of Mrs. Houdini in her apartment. John W. Stafford, an associate editor of the Scientific American; his

Message in Papers, So Governor Skips

Pierre, S. Dak., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Something novel in the way of delivering an opening message to a hostile legislature, was resorted to here today by Gov. W. J. Bulow, who suggested that the Republican dominated body obtain his recommendations from the newspaper accounts. When the assembly convened, the governor read the first three paragraphs of his message and then said:

"It's going to take an hour and a half if I read this. I don't want to read it. You don't want to sit that long. The A. P. boys will send it out. Printed copies have been furnished to members of the legislature and I want you to read it and abide by the recommendations."

Amid laughter and applause, Bulow sat down.

Two Babies Found Dead by Mothers

Doctors and Fire Rescue Squad Labor in Vain to Save Lives.

Two 3-month-old children were found dead in bed at their homes in the Northwest section yesterday, according to reports made to police and Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt.

Dorothy Andrew Lofquist was found dead by her mother, Mrs. Dorothy Lofquist, of 3107 Garfield street northwest. Emergency Hospital doctors and the fire rescue squad were summoned futilely. Coroner Nevitt ordered the body removed to the District Morgue for an autopsy today.

Elma Lena Alexander was found apparently smothered in bed by her mother, Mrs. Elma Alexander, of 1129 Sixth street northwest. Casualty Hospital physicians, answering an emergency call, pronounced the child dead. Police said the death apparently was accidental.

1 Dead, 1 Wounded as Police Trap Breaks Kidnaping Ring

Michigan Officers Catch Pair in Attempt to Extort Money From Restaurant Owner; Blamed in Dozen Other Ransom Cases.

Detroit, Jan. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—Michigan's largest kidnaping ring—a ring that for years has preyed relentlessly on blind pig operations and business men—was broken today, police declared, by the slaying of one hijacker and the wounding of another, as they tried to extort money from a restaurant owner.

The slain man is Max Marks, 38, who had been arrested 22 times in six years. The wounded hijacker is Edwin Edwards, 30, of Buffalo, who also has a long police record. They were shot when they attempted to fight it out with three policemen who trapped them extorting money from Ben Glines, owner of a cafe.

Inspector Garvin, of the crime and bomb squad, declared he believed Marks and Edwards had been involved in a dozen kidnapings here, among them that of James Hall, who was ransomed for $7,500, and Ben Jacobs, wealthy bottler. Jacobs refused to tell police, after his return, whether he had paid ransom.

Garvin said he was satisfied the gang of which Edwards and Marks were members, had kidnaped Ruby Mathews, who paid $25,000; Meyer "Fish" Bloomfield, Joseph Stein, Martin Feldman who paid $10,000 and Mert Wertheimer. This, Garvin said, is just a partial list.

Glines revealed in a statement to that the men had been "almost sympathetic" when they approached him yesterday.

"The little fellow—the one that's dead—told me they had been checking my movements for a year," he declared. He said they didn't want to take me for a ride, because they knew my wife had died and I had trouble. He said they knew I had made $35,000 last year and that they wanted $5,000 of it.

"I told them they were all wrong—that I hadn't made that much. They augural committee has assumed the obligation of limiting the participants in the parade to whatever extent is necessary to achieve this end.

"The inaugural committee's wish to provide entertainment outside the official functions for the general public that will be visiting Washington on March 4 was approved."

Lieut. Col. Grant declined to discuss details of his conference with Hoover other than what had been made public through the statement given out by him.

Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan, chairman of the parade committee, said there would be no difficulty in curtailing the participants in the parade so that it would come within the two-hour limit.

Gen. Stephan said he saw no reason to curtail to any extent the military units planned for the procession, as they could be grouped in closer order than what had been planned originally.

The parade will proceed up the Avenue a few minutes after Hoover has been sworn into office at the Capitol. Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, and Representative Snell, of New York, are chairmen of the joint Congressional committee in charge of the ceremonies incident to the swearing in of the President.

The various units to march in the parade will be formed in the streets leading into the Avenue at the Peace Monument while Hoover is taking his oath of office at the Capitol.

Additional subscribers to the inaugural guarantee fund yesterday and the amounts given were announced as follows:

Continental Baking Co., $2,000; John Poole, $1,000; Peoples Drug Stores, $500; Edward S. Brashears, $50; Ambassador Market Co., $50; Roy L. Neuhauser, $100; National Capital Press., Inc., $100; Cunningham Plumbing Supply Co., Inc., $100; Frazee-Potomac Laundry, $100; Thomas W. Sidwell, $100; John H. Magruder, Inc., $150; Gude Bros. Co., $200; William H. Donovan, $250; McKenney, Flannery & Craighill, $250; Joseph Gawler's Sons, $50; L. H. B. Robinette, $10; W. C. & A. N. Miller, $500; F. P. Weller, $25.

Hotel Accommodations Available.

Augustus Gumpert, member of the subcommittee of the inaugural committee on hotel accommodations, yesterday announced that ample hotel accommodations are still available in all hotels for those wishing to visit Washington during the three-day inaugural celebration.

Following a meeting with members of the Hotel Men's Association, Gumpert said the association had pledged its members to turn no guest away during the festivities, however crowded certain hostelries may be. The hotels will cooperate with each other and competition will go by the board to the extent of having each hotel informed of the available space at other hotels so that guests can be accommodated with the greatest of dispatch.

The hotel subcommittee will route visitors the hotels can not accommodate through Mrs. Virginia White Speel's housing and hospitality committee, which has obtained the addresses of a number of persons offering their homes for the use of guests.

Police Funds Requested.

Appropriation of $25,000 to provide for additional police in the District during the inauguration period was asked for in a bill approved by the District Commissioners and sent to the Bureau of the Budget yesterday.

An additional $2,000 was requested for establishing emergency medical stations and comfort stations. The measure was proposed by the inaugural committee and is expected to meet with quick approval by the Budget Bureau and to be enacted by Congress.

The police fund will be used to defray the expense of bringing detectives here from other cities to combat any invasion of criminals attracted here by the thousands of visitors who will come to celebrate the inauguration of President-elect Hoover. This was done for the inauguration eight years ago. A number of additional policemen also will be employed by the District, but how many will be taken on has not been worked out by police officials.

Sold Liquor to Police, Charge Against Printer

Alleging that they made two purchases of "red whisky" from Edward Franklyn Cahoon, 39-year-old printer, at 1317 H street northwest, members of Sergt. Oscar J. Letterman's liquor squad yesterday swooped down on the place and confiscated four quarts of what they claimed to be the illicit contraband.

Cahoon was taken to the First Precinct station, where he was formally charged with two sales, and illegal possession of liquor. The printer was later released on $1,000 bond for his appearance in Police Court this morning. He gave his home address as 1370 Holbrook terrace northeast. Officer W. P. Burke is said to have made the purchases—a pint and a half in each instance—and Officer R. J. Cox made the arrest.

SPATZ SEES FAST TRANSNATION LINES

CREW GOES ON THE AIR

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Five members of the crew of the Question Mark, who were in the air for almost a week, tonight went "on the air" at radio station KFI to record their impressions of the record smashing flight.

Maj. Carl Spatz, comander of the Question Mark, after giving credit to the pilots of the refueling planes and the flying blackboards, on which messages for the fliers were carried, the ground crews and all engaged in preparations for the flight, said "as a matter of fact I am inclined to believe that the crew of the endurance plane had an easier time than the ground and refueling crews."

Refueling a plane in midair, he said "is not a problem but an easy performance requiring no more skill than that demanded of the ordinary well qualified transport pilot.

Predicts Big Results.

"I am thoroughly confident the Army air corps has blazed the trail to the opening of a new road for the progress of aviation, a road which in the very near future, may lead to the adoption of refueling operations as a standard feature of airway systems.

"This summer, transportation lines, linking the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards by air and rail, are to be established. I believe that I am not straying too far afield in my enthusiasm when I say that the next twelve months may see developments toward the creation of air expresses, making nonstop flights from coast to coast, refueling en route and in the air."

Capt. Ira C. Eaker, chief pilot, considered himself fortunate in having been at the controls both when the Question Mark took off, New Year's morning, and when it landed yesterday, "but with motors that no longer had the power to hold us in the air. One grows fond of inanimate things, and to me the ship became a living being and its power plants three tried and trusty friends."

To Lieut. Harry Halverson, pilot, "one of the most impressive features of the flight was that it demonstrated the reliability and safety of aircraft."

Flying Strain Absent.

Lieut. Elwood Quesada was happy to say that "flying strain was conspicously absent. The most restful moments of the flight were those spent in the driver's seat. It was the warmest spot in the plane at night, as well as the most comfortable place to sit. Also when piloting the plane, time seemed to pass the quickest."

Staff Sergt. Roy Hooe, mechanic, said the greatest experience in his life was when he climbed out on the catwalk in an effort to keep the ship going. "I took off my shoes because the catwalk was as slippery as a cake of soap and I had some trouble in fighting my way against the slip stream of the center motor."

RECEPTION PLANNED FOR REFUEL FLIERS

CREW MAY GET MEDALS

Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of Air Corps, United States Army, yesterday ordered the return of the plane Question Mark from California to Washington. The plane will leave California in about three days. Meanwhile motors will be changed and the Question Mark's crew allowed to rest.

A reception will be given the plane and crew upon their arrival at Bolling Field, Gen. Fechet said. No plans for the reception have yet been made, but the several secretaries and high-ranking Army officers will be present on the field to greet them.

The return flight can be made in three days if Maj. Carl Spatz, commanding officer of the Question Mark, desires to come directly to Washington without stopping en route. The Question Mark will probably take the same route returning that was taken on its flight westward in December. This route will take the plane through Midland, Tex.; Muskogee, Okla., and St Louis, Mo., thence to Bolling Field.

Medals Suggested for Men.

Distinguished Flying Crosses will be awarded to the crew upon their return, according to unofficial announcement here yesterday. The question of awards was discussed yesterday by War Department officials, who are reported favorable to the proposal.

Gen. Fechet said he expects to recommend the crew for this award, in recognition of their courage and daring.

Representative W. Frank James, of Michigan, ranking member of the House Committee on Military Affairs, said yesterday, "I would heartily commend such action if the award is made. The men deserve it."

Coolidge Congratulates Spatz.

President Coolidge, in a letter addressed to Maj. Spatz, said: "My congratulations are extended to all who participated in the remarkable demonstration by the Question Mark and the attendant planes. The accomplishment of the flight has increased confidence in aviation and again has shown the effectiveness of Governmental, pioneering in seronautics."

In his message of congratulations "to all who contributed to the remarkable flight," Secretary of War Davis praised the Army as "a blazer of trails" and declared "your feat assures a pronounced growth of confidence in aviation and should inspire further progress in seronautical development for the benefit of mankind."

Maj. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff of the Army, said: "You and your crew upheld the highest traditions of our Army by proving again that man is superior to his handiwork and still capable of outlasting his machines."

Navy Adds Its Bit of Praise.

Rear Admiral W. A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, in his congratulations, praised the fliers for their "important accomplishment and the credit you have brought American aviation."

Assistant Secretary of War Davison sent regards and expressed the pride of the War Department in the accomplishment.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Warner praised the "dramatic demonstration of fine qualities of reliability of present-day airplanes and engines" and declared "I can pay the equipment no higher compliment than to say that it proved worthy of the men who flew it."

Lindberg Felicitates Spatz.

The message read:

(Signed) "CHARLES A. LINDBERGH."

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Commander Richard E. Byrd, now on the bleak Ross Sea ice barrier of Antarctia on his way to the South Pole, sees added assurance of success for his expedition in the achievement of the Army endurance plane Question Mark.

Charles L. Lawrence, president of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation, received a wireless message from Byrd today congratulating him on the performance of the three Wright whirlwind engines in the Question Mark and saying: "This reinsures confidence in my own ship so powered."

Byrd Lauds "Splendid Crew."

Byrd termed the endurance flight a great feather in the cap of the heavier-than-air craft and sent his congratulations through Lawrence to the "splendid crew" of the Question Mark.

London, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Royal Aeronautical Society, in recognition of the notable record made by the American Army plane Question Mark, has cabled Washington its "very cordial congratulations on the magnificent endurance flight which very suitably marks the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first flight by the Wright brothers."

COMPROMISE FAILS ON ANTIWAR TREATY

MORE DELAY IS FORECAST

(Associated Press.)

Negotiations for a compromise pointing the way to an early vote on the Kellogg antiwar treaty finally failed after another day of conferences, and Senate leaders were preparing last night for a finish fight on the floor.

Confident of votes enough to put the treaty through without reservations or interpretation, Chairman Borah, of the foreign relations committee, ended the compromise negotiations in refusing absolutely to agree to the transmission to other world powers any report or resolution interpreting America's position under the pact.

Secretary Kellogg earlier in the day had turned thumbs down on a tentativ agreement reached Monday whereby he would have been asked to send to the other nations a report of the foreign relations committee interpreting the treaty as it applied to this country.

Despite the collapse of Monday's agreement, Senate leaders resumed conferences during the day, while the Senate continued with general discussion of the pact. Last night, however, it was definitely reported that efforts for a compromise with those who want an interpretation of the treaty had failed.

This forecasts a possible delay of several days in reaching a final vote, which Administration leaders had hoped to speed up with a view of starting work shortly on the pending cruiser construction bill.

115 More Influenza Cases, but No Deaths

With 115 cases of influenza reported to District health officers yesterday, the total for the year was brought to 766. No deaths were reported yesterday, the death toll since January 1 remaining at 11.

Coincident with the announcement of these figures, the Public Health Service reported that its records showed 62,000 cases developed last week in 24 States and the District, a decrease from the previous week, when 76,000 cases developed. Public Service records also showed that 90 cities reported 2,041 deaths from influenza and pneumonia as compared with 1,276 the previous week.

Fire Rescue Squad Revives Gas Victim

Found overcome by illuminating gas by his wife, Ruth, Edmond Carrington, 42 years old, of Cathedral Mansions, was revived by Fire Rescue Squad No. 2 at noon yesterday.

Application of rescue devices for 20 minutes failed to revive Carrington at his apartment, No. 224 Cathedral Mansions, 2900 Connecticut avenue northwest. He was then rushed to Garfield Hospital in an emergency ambulance. Carrington was revived at the hospital after 15 minutes' treatment with rescue apparatus. He was later reported out of danger.

Mrs. Carrington discovered her husband lying unconscious in their bedroom at 11:45 o'clock yesterday morning. She at once summoned Fire Rescue Squad No. 2 and a house physician. Gas was found leaking from a kitchen range. It is thought that Carrington may have been overcome while attempting to cook breakfast.

Boy, 6, Put Poison In Family Coffee

Elder Brother, 18, Say Police, Confesses He Directed Child's Action.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 8 (N.Y. W.N.S.)—Jersey City police today were holding Otto Schmidt, 18, of this city, on a charge of attempting to kill his stepmother with rat poison.

Mrs. Emma Schmidt, the intended victim, is seriously ill at her home. The boy has confessed, police say, that he bought the rat bane at a drug store and instructed his 6-year-old brother, Jacob, to put in Mrs. Schmidt's coffee. Otto was vengeful, police said, because Mrs. Schmidt had caused him to leave home about a year ago.

After Otto's arrest, Jacob told police Otto had given him the same sort of stuff last fall to put in the milk destined for consumption by Frank, 1-year-old son of Mrs. Schmidt. The baby was saved by a blood transfusion, police said.

Soldiers at Fort Myer To Give Riding Shows

Friday afternoon exhibition rides at Fort Myer, Va., are to be resumed in the riding hall of that post by the Third Cavalry and Sixteenth Field Artillery, beginning next Friday and continuing until March 16, inclusive.

The programs will begin at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and the public has been invited to witness the riding. Reservations may be secured by writing or telephoning to the fort adjutant.

SUSPECT HELD HERE IN 35 AUTO THEFTS

Police Pick Up H. Hubbard, of Detroit, When Tags on Car Are Changed.

WOMAN ALSO DETAINED

Picked up to satisfy the curiosity of two observing headquarters detectives who noticed that the large automobile that he drove bore District license tags Saturday, while on the previous day Michigan tags were shown, Harold Hubbard, 41 years old, of Detroit, Mich., said by the police to be one of the most expert automobile thieves in the country, yesterday was arraigned in Police Court. He was arrested as a fugitive from justice in connection with the theft of approximately 35 machines from his home city and Chicago.

The arrest was made by Detective Sergts. Henry M. Jett and Eugene Davis when in questioning Hubbard they found that his operator's permit was issued in one name and the machine registered in another. Hubbard was at first held for investigation, as was the young woman who was in the car with him.

No specific charge has been placed against the young woman, who is being held at the House of Detention pending further investigation, but the fugitive charge was placed against Hubbard yesterday when L. C. Schilder, Department of Justice agent at Toledo, Ohio, put in a detainer for the man.

Hearing of the charge against Hubbard yesterday was continued until Tuesday, at the request of District Attorney Joseph Bruce, and bond was set at $10,000.

According to Detective Jett, Hubbard is known by numerous aliases, including Hosie Smith, Fred Mitchell and J. E. Wilson. The arrest book at headquarters shows that he is married, but has no occupation. The young woman told the police that she came to this city with Hubbard; that she is not married, and has no permanent home nor occupation. She and Hubbard were taken into custody on lower Pennsylvania avenue northwest, in front of the hotel at which they were stopping.

Influenza Balks Plan For Druggists' Parley

The present siege of influenza in Washington has demanded so much time of local druggists that the meeting of the Retail Druggists Association, which was scheduled for last night, had to be canceled because members could not leave their businesses to attend.

At least, that was the reason given for the cancellation of the meeting at the desk of the Raleigh Hotel, where it was to have taken place.

Piney Branch Road Opening Requested

Park Board Tells District Heads Takoma Project Would Be Benefit.

Opening of Piney Branch road, from Butternut road to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad crossing near the District line, was recommended to the District Commissioners yesterday by the coordinating committee of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The improvement project in the Takoma section has been under discussion for more than two years, but was delayed because of a difference of opinion by residents and property owners over the width of the improved road, opinions ranging from a width of 120 feet, as prescribed in the highway plan, to one of 90 feet. The question of final width was not settled at yesterday's conference.

The thoroughfare exists as an old road in the foregoing section and some construction has encroached on the line of the roadway. Blair road and Eastern avenue are now considered as connecting streets leading to the improvement.

Relocation of Van Ness street, west of the Bureau of Standards, was under discussion, but no action was taken.

Nun Is Heroine as Students March From Burning School

Cool Actions of Church and Lay Teachers Saves 220 Parochial Pupils as Fire Destroys Two-Story Frame Structure.

New York, Jan. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—For all they knew, the 220 pupils of the St. Malachy's Parochial School were going through just another of those tiresome fire drills this morning, but less than 15 minutes after they had safely reached the sidewalks of Atlantic avenue and Hendrix street, Brooklyn, the two-story frame school building was a fierce inferno.

Sister Clare, of the order of St. Joseph, in charge of the school, was the cool-headed heroine of what might easily have become a catastrophe. The building contains sixteen classrooms, and it is the custom of Sister Clare to visit all of them at about 10 o'clock each morning.

Today she had completed her round of inspection and returned to her office, when she discovered that a fire had broken out on the first floor, beginning near a chimney which had become overheated.

Sister Clare rang the fire drill bell. She also turned in the fire alarm. On the top floor Miss Mary Walsh, one of the lay teachers, dispelled any lurking fear among her pupils. "Get your history books," she said, "we're going to the basement." Throughout the building the teachers were equally as calm.

Class by class the pupils and their instructors started the exodus. When the last classes from the top floor reached the ground floor they saw the smoke and flame. Once outside, all the children were instructed to go home.

Meanwhile Sister Clare was making the round again, to be certain that no class, or child, had been left behind. She emerged from the building as firemen arrived. The flames had gained too great headway, and the building was practically destroyed.

LEHLBACH PAY BILL MEETS OPPOSITION

CLASH ON RAISE IS SEEN

The bill introduced yesterday by Chairman Lehlbach of the House civil service committee, to correct the inequalities in the Welch pay-raise act will be vigorously opposed by the friends of the Government workers on Capitol Hill, according to indications last night.

It is probable that a fight against the bill will break out among Lehlbach's own colleagues when the House civil service committee meets tomorrow morning to consider that measure and set a date for hearings on it.

Luther C. Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, stated frankly last night that he prefered the Brookhart bill to the Lehlbach bill. This was significant, as Steward usually sees eye to eye with Lehlbach.

An analysis of the very complicated bill introduced by Lehlbach showed that it would provide additional raises for the employes in only one salary rating in each of the various lower grades, whereas Brookhart's bill would provide additional raises for the employes in four salary ratings in these grades.

Brookhart Helps More.

In other words, the Lehlbach bill would help only about a third of the employes that the Brookhart bill would help.

The Brookhart bill would add about $3,000,000 to the Government pay roll, whereas the Lehlbach bill would add about $1,168,560.

At this time one thing seems certain—the members of the Senate and House would favor the Brookhart bill over the Lehlbach bill if the leaders allow them to have their way. And in the end, the leaders may be forced to bow to this sentiment.

In his criticism of the Lehlbach bill, President Steward was mild but firm. The bill is all right as far as it goes, he said, but it does not go far enough. Continuing, he said:

"We thoroughly approve of section 3, which provides for payment of increases beginning July 1, 1928, to those employes who, by reason of administrative delay, did not receive increases until subsequent dates.

"We also approve section 4, which has for its purpose the granting of increases to employes who were clearly intended to be within the purview of the Welch act, but who were deprived of increases on account of departmental interpretations of a technical nature.

"We do not feel that the formula contained in section 2 for determining increases under the Welch act is mathematically correct. We prefer the plan contained in the Brookhart bill for adjustment of increases on the equitable basis of two rates.

Will Offer Own Formula.

"If, however, the remedy is to be found in the use of a formula to correct the restrictive faults of the opinion by Comptroller General McCarl, we propose to offer a mathematical formula based upon the most authoritative opinion on the subject obtainable in the United States.

"The Comptroller General's opinion limited rate increases to employes who, on June 30, 1928, were allocated to the three lowest rates in the lower grades, and a one-rate increase to those in rates above the third. The Lehlbach bill will grant an increase of an additional rate to employes who were in the fourth rate of one of these grades on June 30, leaving those in the higher rates unchanged."

"We contend that a correct interpretation of the intention of Congress as expressed in the relative position clause would grant two rate increases to employes who were allocated on June 30, 1928, to all except maximum rates in the respective grades.

"As to the provision which would result in reductions in salary for certain employes in grades 4, 5, 6 and 7, of the professional and scientific service and grades 11, 12, 13 and 14 in the clerical and administrative service, we are opposed to it, even though we differed with the Comptroller General at the time he handed down the ruling by which these employes benefited to a considerable extent."

The Lehlbach bill provides that the Personnel Classification Board shall have the authority to review all promotions under the Welch act affecting those positions in the then grades 4, 5, 6 and 7 of the Professional and Scientific Service, and grades 11, 12, 13 and 14 of the Clerical, Administrative and Fiscal Service.

This would give back to the board the authority that the McCarl ruling robbed it of, and no doubt a number of the higher-paid employes would be demoted to grades where the board thinks they belong. How many would be demoted, however, has not yet been estimated.

One of the provisions of the Lehlbach bill that was hailed by friends of the Government workers was the one providing for back pay for employes in the Veterans' Bureau, Navy Department and Department of Justice, who did not get their raises when they were supposed to get them under the terms of the Welch act.

Division of Raises.

In a statement listing the cost estimates of the bill, Chairman Lehlbach yesterday pointed out that $389,520 in raises would go to employes in the District and $779,040 to employes outside of Washington.

The decreases under section 2 of the bill, he said, would be negligible.

The sums to provide back pay for those who did not receive their raises in time would be as follows: Veterans' Bureau, $571,486; Navy Department, $43,004; Department of Justice, $1,620.

No estimate was made of what it would cost to reimburse field workers in the War Department, who never have received their raises under the Welch act.

Alma Rubens Late For Her Own Trial

Posts $500 Bond to Appear January 17; "Wild Parties" Charged.

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Alma Rubens, film actress, arrived at Municipal Court here one hour and fifteen minutes late today to face charges of disturbing the peace and found a bench warrant for her arrest waiting.

"I am sorry, Judge, but it was just a mix up on the time," Miss Rubens explained.

All the complaining witnesses, who charged her with having held "wild parties," in her bungalow apartment, were gone, and the judge required her to post a $500 bond to insure her appearance for trial January 17. The witnesses included Rita Carewe, film actress, and her husband, Leroy Mason.

"SLAIN" GIRL LIVES, ADMIRER INDICATES

EVIDENCE AIDS DEFENSE

Elkhart, Ind., Jan. 8 (United Press).—Charles Reyher, 44, wealthy South Bend real estate broker, whose four years of alleged clandestine love with Mrs. Genevieve Stults sent Harvey L. Smith, a private detective, to trial for her murder, does not believe that Mrs. Stults is dead, or that the gruesome array of skull and bones paraded at the Smith trial here were once her body.

This was indicated today when Defense Attorney Robert Proctor tried unsuccessfully to have Reyher's belief that Mrs. Stults still lived written into the record of the Smith trial. The State's objection prevailed.

This dramatic interlude was one of a succession that crowded through the sixth day of the trial, and Reyher and his quiet-spoken wife, Janie, furnished all the thrills.

Both were called as witnesses for the State, but left loopholes in their testimony which defense attorneys used to advantage. Not the least of these was Reyher's testimony that a woman answering the description of Mrs. Stults, accompanied by two men, registered over night at a Goshen (Ind.) hotel on the night of March 24, the date on which Mrs. Stults was believed to have been beaten to death with a wrench.

Reyher's statement fitted like a glove into the proposed alibi defense of Smith, who claims he did not kill Mrs. Stults, but turned her over to the custody of two strangers on the night of March 24, and that they disappeared with her in an automobile.

Mrs. Reyher preceded her husband to the stand, and for thre hours, told how she was haunted by suspicion as to her husband's faithfulness, and that in a moment of desparation last March, hired Smith to shadow her husband. She also admitted that in her desire to drive Mrs. Stults out of her husband's life, she listened to Smith's plans to "scare Mrs. Stults out of town," and lent him her husband's automobile to execute the plan.

Woman Is Injured In Auto Collision

Miss Lillian Anger, 21 years old, of 514 Ninsteenth street northwest, was cut about the face when the automobile in which she was a passenger was struck by another machine at Connecticut avenue and Newark street northwest early yesterday morning.

Clarence Dawson, 108 Woodbine avenue, Chevy Chase, Md., was arrested by police of the Fourteenth Precinct on a charge of reckless driving. His car struck the car occupied by Miss Anger as it was making a left-hand turn at the intersection, according to police reports.

Miss Anger was riding with Charles F. Walsh, 307 Eleventh street southeast, who had an automobile owned by Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith, 1618 Varnum street northwest, in tow behind his machine. She was taken to Emergency Hospital in a passing automobile, and treated there by Dr. I. Rutkoski, of the hospital staff, for facial lacerations. Her injuries were not serious.

Girl Student Acquitted As Reckless Motorist

Miss Rhode K. Hatton, 19 years old, a Maryland University student, of 1227 B street southeast, yesterday was acquitted of a reckless driving charge by Judge Isaac R. Hitt, in Police Court.

An automobile, driven by the young woman, collided with an automobile which was being cranked by Eric Hintze, on Twelfth street southeast, a few nights ago, and crushed him between his car and a parked motor truck. Testimony revealed that neither Hintze's car nor the truck was lighted.

Speaight arrived in New York January 3 with the collection which will be exhibited in eighteen of the principal cities of the United States. The Washington committee planning for the local exhibition consists of George Harris, Grant Lee and W. H. Towles.

RICH IMPORTER SLAIN BY CHICAGO GUNMAN

REPUTED LIQUOR CHIEF

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Pasqualino Lolordo, wealthy Italian importer, and reputed chief of a North Side liquor syndicate, was assassinated tonight as he sat in the parlor of his home with two companions.

The police found his widow, hysterical, prostrate over the body of her husband. A revolver lay beside him. Lolordo's sister-in-law told the officers "two or three men had been drinking with Pasqualino and they shot him."

The slain man was a brother of Joseph Lolordo, companion of the Sicilian chieftain, Tony Lombardo, when he was shot down on a busy street corner last fall. For a time Joseph was held as a suspect, but was later released and Lombardo's slayers remain unknown.

A rum king feud or the penalty of black-hand extortionists were the first theories occurring to police as they began an investigation. Mrs. Lolordo insisted her husband had no enemies. He was 45 years old, well to do, an importer of olive oil. A son, Vincent, 18, is a student at the University of Illinois and was at Champaign tonight.

Within the hour police had rounded up eighteen suspects in nearby hangouts and were questioning them concerning the shooting. Lolordo's body was punctured by eleven bullets.

Neither his widow nor his sister witnessed the slaying. Pasqualino's companions had been chatting with him in the living room, from which the women had been excluded, they told detectives. For several minutes they heard talking, then shots rang out, and as they rushed to the room the men escaped downstairs.

Police records show that Pasqualino Lolordo was one of 27 Sicilians arrested in Cleveland December 5, where they had met, presumably to elect a successor to Tony Lombardo as head of the Unions Siciliano. The officers expressed a belief Lolordo had been chosen Lombardo's heir, and his election had cost him his life.

John Stege, deputy commissioner of police, ordered the arrest of Joe Aiello, head of an alcohol gang disputing the sway of Al Capone. Capone was a patron of Lombardo, and, police assumed, of Lolordo.

A few hours after Lolordo's assassination another Italian, Rocco Laggar, was shot several times through the head as he entered his automobile in front of his home. He was rushed to a hospital seriously wounded, and Mrs. Lolordo and other witnesses hastened there to view him as a suspect in the earlier slaying.

EARLY REPARATIONS AGREEMENT IS SEEN

ONE PLAN NOW DRAFTED

Paris, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Final settlement of the irritating question of reparations will, it was predicted in reparations commission circles today, come with the advent of spring. This forecast was based on the work of the Dawes committee. Men closely associated with the new effort to end financial controversies between Germany and the allies calculated it would require two months to go over the ground again.

The experts will assemble in Paris the first Monday in February, and their report ought to be due about April 1.

One of the chief tasks of the experts will be to work out some scheme whereby German railroad and industrial bonds, issued as guarantees of the annual payments, may be made commercially negotiable. This, it was said, probably would have an effect on the final total which Germany must pay in order to release herself from all obligations to the allies.

A tentative bond scheme already suggested apportions securities worth 16,000,000,000 gold marks among the different allied countries and Germany, with about 40 per cent, or the equivalent of $1,600,000,000 left over for American and other neutral financial markets.

The idea back of this scheme is that it would furnish enough ready money to constitute a strong inducement to France for a considerable reduction in the total reparations fixed by the Dawes plan.

Most of the work of the committee will be done in Paris although the experts will beleft free to organize their investigation. It is supposed, however, that since the inquiry will be under the auspices of the reparations commision, the experts will wish to remain where they can have ready acces to its headquarters records, except when it becomes necessary to visit Germany and collect fresh information.

Boiler Explosion Kills Plant Owner; Two Hurt

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Antone Rathman, owner of a packing plant here, was killed and one workman and a boy were injured today when a boiler at the plant exploded. The boiler and smokestack were hurled into the air and crashed back through the roof of the brick building. Twenty workmen in the plant escaped injury.

Mrs. Lesley Kothman, living two blocks away, narrowly escaped when the boiler head came hurtling down, taking off a corner of her house and injuring her dog, which she was feeding.

Missouri G. O. P. Names Hopkins for Congress

St. Joseph, Mo., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—David W. Hopkins, superintendent of schools of St. Joseph, today was nominated by the Fourth Missouri District Republican congressional committee as the Republican candidate for Congress in the special election February 5 to choose a successor to the late Charles L. Faust.

The Democratic committee will select its nominee Thursday.

Louis Johrden, Post Staff Photographer.

WURZBACH ELECTED; FRAUDS ARE CHARGED

Texas Representative Holds House Seat; Figures Were Manipulated.

BOARD TO MEET TODAY

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Headquarters of Harry M. Wurzbach, Republican representative for the Fourtenth Texas District, were jubilant late today when information was received from Austin that the county judge of Guadalupe County had reported discovery of an error in tabulation of returns from the last general election sufficient to give reelection to Wurzbach.

Judge Augustus J. McCloskey, of San Antonio, Democrat, had been officially declared winner over Wurzbach in the election.

Discovery of the mistake was stated to have been reported to the Texas election commissioners by County Judge J. B. Williams, of Guadalupe County. It was stated that in certifying his figures the judge had transposed the votes, which probably should have been:

Wurzbach, 2,806; McCloskey, 2,081. The difference—725 votes—was said to be well more than enough to wipe out the 627-vote victory previously accredited to McCloskey.

Judge J. B. Williams of Guadalupe County this afternoon brought to Austin an affidavit, claiming he made an error in certifying the returns from his county, Representative Wurzbach's home.

He said that in listing Wurzbach's vote on the printed form he entered the representative's majority instead of the total votes he received. He said that Wurzbach actually received 2,806 votes and McCloskey 725, giving Wurzbach a majority of 2,081 in that county. He had listed 2,081 as the number of votes Wurzbach received. The election board will consider the affidavit at a special meeting tomorrow.

Discovery of the error came upon the eve of the opening of the criminal trial of Judge McCloskey who was indicted for altering figures in seventeen Bexas County (San Antonio) precincts to show his victory in the congressional contest by 627 votes.

Judge McCloskey was given a conditional certificate of election last week by Gov. Dan Moody and Secretary of State Jane Y. McCallum. It marked a departure in such documents in that it certified that Representative Wurzbach had filed a contest terming fraudulent the tallying of figures which showed him defeated by McCloskey.

Vare's Ally Fights Senate's Charges

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Thomas L. Cunningham, sheriff of Philadelphia County, waged a second fight in Federal Court today to avoid trial before a jury in Washington on charges of contempt of the United States Senate. The charges resulted from Cunningham's refusal to disclose the source of $50,000 cash he is alleged to have contributed to the 1926 primary election campaign fund for Senator-elect William S. Vare.

Today's hearing, in which decision was reserved, was before three judges of the United States District Court of Appeals, on Cunningham's appeal from an order of the court several months ago directing the sheriff's removal to Washington for trial. It was the second action against Cunningham. The first, a warrant issued by the Senate commanding him to appear for further examination, was won by Cunningham when the same three judges who heard the case today freed him from the warrant.

At today's hearing instructions were received from George W. Wickersham, special counsel for the Senate, to prepare a record of the first case for appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

HOUSE GIVES BECK RIGHT TO HIS SEAT

(Associated Press.)

Less than two months before the end of his term, James M. Beck, former Solicitor General of the United States, was given a clear title yesterday to his seat as Republican representative from the First Pennsylvania district.

By a vote of 247 to 78 the House rejected a resolution to unseat him, which has been reposing in a committee pigeon hole for more than a year. A few minutes later, with a resounding chorus of ayes, it adopted another resolution to give him the seat.

The vote was taken after almost three hours of debate over the constitutional questoin of whether Beck was an inhabitant of Pennsylvania at the time of his election. The question was raised on the first day of last session by Representative Garrett, of Tennessee, the Democratic leader.

Although the point had been raised by the Democratic leader and opposition in the committee largely had been carried on by members of the minority party, the final vote found many Southern and Eastern Democrats climbing over the party fence to join the almost unanimous Republican vote against adoption of the resolutoin to unseat.

Beck, sitting beside Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the majority leader, answered "present" when his name was reached on the roll call, and after the result had been announced asked the privilege of addressing the House briefly. Then, for the first time since he entered the House, fourteen months ago, he spoke to the members from the floor.

His talk was a brief one, applauded alike by Democrats and Republicans, in which he thanked the members for supporting his claim to a seat and declared he knew the minority leader was not actuated by any feeling of partisanship when the question was raised.

"I know that Mr. Garrett was following his convictions," he said. Beck explained he had sought the seat as he "wanted to see how the legislative bench of the Government works from the inside," and added, "well, I have had my education."

The opposition, led by Representative Browning of Tennessee, and Kent, of Pennsylvania, Democrats, argued Beck should not be seated, contending he had made his home in Washington, and that the apartment he maintained in Philadelphia was not sufficient to qualify him as an inhabitant in the constitutional sense.

FRENCH DEFENDANTS MUST COME TO U. S.

ANTITRUST SUIT STANDS

New York, Jan. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—The United States advanced a step today in its proposal to regulate the business of a French-German potash firm, which, it charges, is violating the anti-trust act. Federal Judge William Bondy denied the motion of Paul Claudel, French Ambassador, to set aside the service of summonses on French defendants. M. Claudel is officially representing his government, which is interested in the potash firm.

The action of the United States is aimed at dissolving the alleged French-German monopoly, or, at least, restraining it from violation of the Sherman act in its dealings with America.

Price Control Alleged.

The action, which is being handled in New York by Israel B. Oseas, special assistant to the United States Attorney General, and a number of others, alleges that the Deutsches Kalisyndikat and the Societe Commerciale des Potasses d'Alsace is a combination of French and German capital for the purpose of controlling the distribution and price at which potash is to be sold in America, where its chief use is in producing fertilizer.

M. Claudel opposed the action on the ground that the French firm is largely owned by the French republic, and therefore immune to regulation by the United States.

Mr. Oseas said after the action of Judge Bondy had become known, that it meant that the defendants must come to the United States and stand trial. He said that had Judge Bondy favored the motion of M. Claudel, it would have meant that a foreign concern could invade the United States and create a trade monopoly with impunity.

In his decision, Judge Bondy said, "It has never been held that every one acting on behalf of a foreign state enjoys immunity from suit.

Immunity Not Extended.

"Neither principle nor precedent requires that this immunity which, as a matter of comity, is extended to a foreign sovereign and his ambassador, should be extended to a foreign corporation merely because some of its stock is held by a foreign state or because it is carrying on a commercial pursuit which the foreign government regards as governmental or public.

"Though the ambassador brought the pendency of this suit to the attention of the State Department, with which the ambassador's relations are official, the Secretary of State has not made any suggestion to this court. This indicates that the executive department of the Government also is of the opinion that this suit is not a suit against the Republic of France or any representative of that republic."

HOOVER AND MELLON MEET AT LUNCHEON

closeted with the President-elect for a brief while, however, and there is no way of telling whether Mr. Whiting called at his own request or was asked to call by Mr. Hoover.

Even had he been asked to call it is more than likely that Mr. Hoover wanted to talk about matters that came up on his Latin-American tour and knowledge of which would prove helpful to his successor in the Commerce Department.

For this reason and the fact that Mr. Whiting's name has not been associated in the popular discussion of Mr. Hoover's Cabinet there was not anything like the significance attached to his visit as there was to that of Mr. Mellon.

Today Secretary of War Davis is to be the third Cabinet caller. Opinion in political circles here with no intimation from the President-elect has been that Mr. Davis would go to a diplomatic post but that he would not remain in the Cabinet.

Not Disturbed by Threat.

Concerning the 'Progressives' threat against the Secretary it is not regarded as likely that Mr. Hoover would be disturbed by it. In fact, the preponderance of authority is of the conviction that should the Treasury Secretary remain the Senate would not have a voice in the matter. Mr. Hoover would simply not accept his resignation when it was handed in, in accordance with the Cabinet custom, instead of reappointing him.

Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, called again yesterday, and in his inimitable way presented the name of John H. Bartlett, now Assistant Postmaster General, for the Postmaster Generalship itself.

The general belief is that Postmaster General New would not be averse to carrying on the air mail service which he started.

Some Electric Shocks.

One by one and in groups, they came to see Mr. Hoover yesterday and it is believed that every one literally carried an electric charge in his handshake.

Because of the coolness the corridor carpets of the Mayflower were charged with static and every time one person shook hands with another there was a sharp electric shock. Similarly, the shock was experienced when one touched the elevator signal buttons.

The callers included Representatives White, of Maine; Free, of California; Mrs. Langley and Representative Thatcher, of Kentucky, Representative Schafer, of Wisconsin; Senator Capper of Kansas, and Mark Wood, Republican national committeeman, of Nebraska.

Senators Watson and Hale called together to see Mr. Hoover and told him that both the Kellogg treaty and the naval cruiser bill would be passed. They are rather optimistic about the latter.

The Iowa delegation in Congress headed by Representatives Cole and Haugen waited upon the President-elect in a body and in the course of the conversation one of the members suggested that Dante Pierce, Iowa farm publisher, would make a good Secretary of Agriculture. Pierce thinks so himself but not even the Iowa delegation is united behind him. He was an active worker in the Hoover cause, though.

Gasoline Price War Starts on Pacific Coast

Los Angeles, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A retailers' gasoline price-slashing war had forced the price down 3 cents a gallon here today, some dealers selling as low as seven gallons for $1.

The price reduction preceded the virtual cessation of retailing by large production companies, many of which recently announced that retail stations would be turned over to employes on a lease-contract arrangement. More than 200 gasoline retail stations have cut prices to 17½ cents per gallon or lower. The Standard Oil Co of California and the Shell Oil Co. have announced intentions of leasing or selling retail stations in the Pacific Coast area.

SALVATION ARMY'S HIGH COUNCIL OPENS

Opening Session Reveals That Any Decisions Reached Will Be Protracted.

63 ATTENDING MEETING

Sunbury-On-Thames, England, Jan 8 (A.P.).—Any expectations that the high council of the Salvation Army, which assembled here today, would reach a quick decision regarding the fitness of Gen. Bramwell Booth to continue as commander in chief, were dispelled today. Although three separate sessions were held, the starting of the machinery of the council took up all the time.

Committees were appointed and officers elected. It was said unofficially tonight that the real work of the council would begin tomorrow.

As is customary with all proceedings of the army, the meeting was opened with the singing of a hymn, "Mine to Rise When Thou Dost Call Me." This was followed by prayer and a reading from the Bible. One of the points which may explain the time necessary for organization is the fact that each member of the council is entitled to express his or her views on any subject that may come up. The proceedings respecting the army leadership may, therefore, prove protracted.

Meet Behind Locked Doors.

The 63 men and women commissioners, selected for their experience in all parts of the army's dominions, met behind locked and guarded doors. Chief of Staff Higgins mounted the dais in the long, oak-panneled conference room promptly at 10:30 a. m. He stood under the portal of Gen. William Booth, founder of the army as he opened the meeting which must settle issues on which the whole future of the organization will depend.

Commissioner Hay, of New Zealand, was elected president as the initial business. His prompt choice was said to have been the result of a previous understanding between the two opposing wings among the commissioners. The fact that he comes from a remote section of the army's territory would insure, it was thought, that he would be less involved in the personal side of the issues which the council must face.

On the other hand, Hay is said to favor the far-reaching reforms in the government of the army and his election as president of the council is considered in some quarters as an initial triumph for the reform party.

Proceedings Held Secret.

Aside from the official communique issued from the international headquarters in London this evening, the deliberations of the council are shrouded in deepest secrecy and the already rigid restrictions were tightened even more this afternoon as the result of a supposed leakage from the session. All members of the council have bound themselves to secrecy with an oath and not even their secretaries are allowed to get an inkling of the proceedings.

Commissioner Peart, a retired officer in the party of Commander Evangeline Booth, who was mentioned as a possible nominee for recorder for the high council, will not be eligible for that honor because a motion was passed at the morning session that no retired officers would be admitted.

Among the noteworthy incidents of the day were the sending by the council of a message of love and sympathy to Gen. Bramwell Booth and the private conference away from the council meeting between Commissioner Laurie, the army's chancellor of the exchequer, Theodore Kitching, chief editor of the army's publications; Col. Mary Booth and Catherine Booth, daughter of the commander in chief.

Ban is Raised.

Tonight's communique revealed that the ban on leaving Sunbury court had been lifted and that the councillors may reside where they like during the conference. Commander Evangeline and Commissioner Glifford therefore returned tonight to American headquarters at the Howard Hotel, London.

A high official of the army tonight said that the sending of the message of sympathy to the sick commander in chief was an expression of feeling common to them all and that once the sentimental question of smoothing the path for the future of the general is settled he believed that all councillors would feel more at liberty to tackle the great questions concerning the future policies of the army.

to convene itself and refused to entertain the charges.

Six charges were voted against the governor in the 1927 session, involving chiefly allegations of incompetency. His employment of Mrs. O. Jan Hammonds as his confidential secretary, in the face of the fact that there is no statutory provision for such an employe, was the basis of one of the charges, as was his retaining as a special State agent, Jose Alvarado, then under conviction of burglary and now serving a term in the State penitentiary. Mrs. Hammonds, a storm center of the administration, still holds her position. The charges against Cordell were centered about his employment of alleged incompetent and nonworking persons in his department.

Chief Justice Branson was defeated by Thomas G. Andrews (Republican), of Chandler, in the November 6 election and will not be a subject of investigation at this session.

Gov. Johnston recently informally invited the investigation which he resisted in 1927, urging only that it be conducted in an impartial manner.

The senate perfected its organization amicably in a Democratic party caucus several weeks ago, with anti-administration members predominating.

Peru Good-Will Fliers Plan 10,000-Mile Trip

Pernambuco, Brazil, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The Peruvian good will aviators, Carlos Martinez de Pinillosand Lieut. Carlos Zegarra, who reached Natal this afternoon after a 600-mile flight from Bahia, will spend a few days in mapping their northward route for the next 10,000 miles over dense tropical jungles with settlements few and far between.

They have not decided definitely whether to attempt their next landing at Maranhao, 700 miles distant, or to push on to Para, on the Amazon. A longer flight on this end would shorten the dangerous hop to Cayenne, French Guiana. They began their flight from Lima, Peru, on December 11. Their ultimate destination is New York.

Exchange Seat at $600,000.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Memberships on the New York Stock Exchange reached a record price of $600,000 today, when arrangements were made for transfer of a seat at that figure. The previous record was $595,000, established on December 6 last. Today's sale was at an advance of $15,000 over the previous sale.

Eleven-Foot Tooth Arrives at Harvard

Alaska Yields World's Biggest Tusk, Said to Be 50,000 Years Old.

Boston, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The larest tooth in the world, measuring 11 feet 2 inches in length and weighing more than 300 pounds, has just arrived at the Harvard Dental School Museum. It came from the jaw of a mastodon, and scientists estimate that it is more than 50,000 years old.

The tusk was found embeded in the bank of the Porcupine River, a tributary of the Yukon, in Alaska, by Dr. Adelbert Fernald. It took several days to dig it out of the river bank. Then it was hauled 55 miles by dog team and transported by boat down the Porcupine as far as Fort Yukon, where it was shipped by express to Cambridge.

date but the suspicion prevailed today that they also may have been in the police grasp and let go in the same way that Biller was.

Biller, at least, of the trio, it became known, was questioned in room No. 349 of the Park Central between 2:30 and 3 a. m. the morning of November 5. Room 349 was the one occupied by McManus under the name of Richards and it was in that room that police believe Rothstein was shot, although their reasons for supposing this never have been made public.

After the shooting, it was learned today, and while three detectives were gathered there, a man telephoned from outside to ask if "George" were there.

One of the detectives had sufficient presence of mind to reply in the affirmative and Biller appeared with his two companions.

There followed a short conference, it was said, after which Biller and the other two individuals were allowed to go their ways, taking with them what is now believed to have been the solution of the Rothstein mystery, an unsolved chapter in police annals which led directly to the resignation of former Commissioner Warren and the appointment of Whalen as his successor.

$100,000 Mount Vernon, Ohio, Fire.

Major's Post Ready For John Coolidge

Son of President to Wear New Uniform Tonight at Inaugural Ball.

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—John Coolidge, son of President Calvin Coolidge, will become a major on the staff of Gov. John H Trumbull tomorrow under an act of the general assembly which will amend the military law of Connecticut permitting the appointment of a staff officer to represent the citizen military training camps.

A bill amending the law will be offered as soon as the general assembly is organized. It will be given immediate passage and the act delivered to the governor for his signature.

The appointment of John Coolidge as an aid de camp will be made and tomorrow night if his new uniform, Maj. Coolidge will, escort his fiancee, Miss Florence Trumbell, to the inaugural ball.

Garage Building Fire Takes Lives of Three

Detroit, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Allen Doane, 56, his wife, Annie, 55, and their niece, Thelma Grives, 9, were burned to death in a fire that destroyed a garage building at Hazel Park, near here early today.

The three occupied an apartment on the third floor of the building and apparently lost their lives while they slept. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Bankruptcy Petition Filed.

A petition to be adjudged a voluntary bankrupt was filed yesterday in the District Supreme Court by George E. Carr, proprietor of the United Auto Service, of 1433 P street northwest. He listed his debts at $9,495.10 and totaled his assets at $3,852.22. Attorney J. Carroll Hayes appeared for the petitioner.

FIRST TARIFF ROW COMES OVER CASEIN

Paper Makers Attack U. S. Quality and Ask Removal of All Duties.

DENIAL BY PRODUCERS

(Associated Press).

The first fight between producers and manufacturers — one which touched upon a phase of the farm problem—broke out yesterday at the tariff revision hearings of the House ways and means committee.

Casein, a powder made from skimmed milk and used extensively by makers of coated paper, was the item over which the battle was fought. Disagreement developed over both the quantity and quality produced in this country.

Martin Cantine, of Saugerties, N. Y., and Walter D. Randall, of New York City, representing coated paper manufacturers, contended not enough casein was produced in the United States to keep the paper plants operating, and what was available was of such inferior grade that the imported article was urgently needed. They advocated that the product, which now bears a 2½-cents-a-pound duty, be restored to the free list.

W. S. Moscrip, of Lake Elmo, Minn., representing the National Cooperative Milk Producers Association, took a different stand and urged an increase in the duty to 8 per cent.

"This is the opening of the fight for farm relief," Moscrip declared, adding that agriculture statistics showed that 10,000,000,000 pounds of skimmed milk, enough to produce 300,000,000 pounds of casein, was wasted last year, part of it at the creameries, for lack of a market. This also was due, he said, to expensive equipment for making the powder and low prices paid for casein.

Randall had contended that elimination of the duty was necessary to permit paper makers to reenter the world market against Germany and to reduce the selling price to users of casein. He declared that with the exception of producers in California, others in this country turned out a poor quality, and unless the duty were taken off some plants would have to close down.

Moscrip said it was news to him that only California turned out a high-grade casein. He was requested by the committee to submit data on the quality of the article produced in this country.

told me that they had to have that much anyway.

"Today the other man (Edwards) did the talking. He said: 'Well, have you got it fixed?' I said I had and tossed them the money. Then the officers came in."

Today Edwards and Marks walked into the restaurant. Glines motioned them to a table near a door and passed an envelope to marks. Just as he pocketed it, the policemen walked in. The bandits, who apparently recognized them, started up and were standing near the table when one of the officers said, "Better stick 'em up, boys."

Instead, both attempted to draw guns from their hip pockets and had them out when the officers fired. One bullet from Davis' gun killed Marks instantly.

Edwards, the wounded man, had 52 cents when he was taken to the hospital. He refused to talk.

Veterans' Department Proposed by Johnson

(Associated Press.)

A move to set up a separate department of veterans affairs whose head would be a member of the Cabinet, has been instituted in the House by Chairman Johnson of the veterans committee.

The department would handle all matters relating to veterans and its chief would have four assistant secretaries, each of whom would receive $10,000 yearly. A general counsel also would be provided at a similar salary. In addition, the proposed bureau would take over the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers and the Bureau of Pensions.

Parker's Nomination Confirmed by Senate

(Associated Press.)

The nomination of Col. Francis Lejau Parker to be chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs with a rank of brigadier general was confirmed yesterday by the Senate. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Frank McIntyre, who retired from active service January 5.

The Senate also confirmed the appointment of James W. McCarthy, as district judge of New Jersey; Edgar S. Vaught, as judge of the Western District of Oklahoma, and Phillip Forman, as district attorney for New Jersey.

Day in Congress

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 3:50 to noon today.

Confirmed the nomination of Col. Francis Le Jau Parker to be chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs with the rank of brigadier general.

Also confirmed the nominations of James W. McCarthy as district judge of New Jersey; Edgar S. Vaught, as judge of the Western district of Oklahoma, and Phillip Forman, as district attorney for New Jersey.

Indian affairs committee directed Commissioner of Indian Affairs Burke to produce proof of his charge that Senator Pine, of Oklahoma, was conspiring to "destroy" him in connection with the Jackson Barnett case.

An effort by Senators Glenn and Deneen, of Illinois, to have a date fixed for considering confirmation of Roy O. West as Secretary of Interior was blocked by Senator Wheeler, Montana.

HOUSE.

Met at noon and adjourned at 8 to noon today.

Gave Representative James M. Beck (Republican), of Pennsylvania, a clear title to his seat after voting down, 247 to 78, a resolution to unseat him.

The Pennsylvania delegation, in a State caucus, adopted resolutions urging reapportionment of the House and an extra session for tariff and farm legislation. The resolutions will be submitted to President-elect Hoover today by a group headed by Representative Graham.

Rules committee decided to give the Fenn reapportionment bill the right of way.

Chairman Kopp, of the labor committee, announced that the House and Senate conferees on the bill to regulate prison-made goods had agreed on the bill.

Chairman Robinson, of the Federal Radio Commission, told the merchant marine committee that the life of the commission should be extended a year so that it could correct whatever mistakes it has made in allocations.

NEW YORK WOMEN HERE OPPOSING CRUISER BILL

Henry Miller Service.

Scrap parity with Britain became his slogan. Rely on friendships not battleships, he asked, and the play on the word "ships" brought applause.

From the gist of Prof. Moon's arguments there loomed a possibility of a simple means of ending all incompatibility between the pact and the cruiser building.

Protection by Great Britain.

It suggested a pact with Great Britain whereby, for friendship's sake, the British would agree to let the royal navy be relied upon whenever America needed national defense. Such a pact, it was suggested at one of the tables, would obviate the need of American cruisers altogether.

"Count upon the aid of Great Britain and the league and parity has no point," according to Prof. Moon's theory.

The remaining speeches were all heartily applauded and there is an atmosphere of hopefulness in the pacifist camp despite unfortunate developments.

There is hope that the germ of a filibuster against the American cruisers has been effectively planted to sprout out at the proper time. Each dinner guest found pamphlets prepared by Frederick J. Libby, head of the National Council to Prevent War, at his place, propped up against the fruit cocktail.

One of the pamphlets began patriotically as follows:

"In his Armistice Day speech President Coolidge said that when the present legislation of the British is carried out they will have 68 cruisers and we shall have 40. The President's figures are those that the Navy Department gives him. Are they correct? The British press says 'no.'"

Buttonholing Is Difficult.

The task of buttonholing senators proved more difficult than the pacifists anticipated, but a measure of success was nevertheless reported by the State delegates at the afternoon meeting presided over by Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, assistant to Frederick H. Libby.

In some instances the aid of newspaper men at the Capitol was invoked to obtain senatorial expressions. It was by this process that Senator Reed, of Missouri, sent the following reply to an inquiry as to his stand:

"Everybody believes in peace, but your method of getting it is by making the country defenseless, which means the certainty of war."

Mrs. Morgan began calling on the delegate-lobbyists to report shortly after the pacifists assembled for this purpose at 4:30 p. m. Illinois was the first State called.

"We called on Senator Glenn," the spokesman for the delegates replied. "He has all the old and reactionary arguments. We propounded our new ideas for his education and enlightenment but made no progress whatever. The truth made no impression on him. We failed to see Senator Deneen, though he knew we were coming."

Edge Arranges "Missing."

"New Jersey next," announced Mrs. Morgan.

"We missed Senator Edge," came the response. "We think he arranged the missing. But we had a long and most interesting talk with Senator Edwards. He is in favor of the peace pact because he says it does not mean anything. But he is also in favor of the cruisers.

"We'll now hear from Maryland," continued Mrs. Morgan.

"We saw both Senator Bruce and Senator Tydings," announced the spokeswoman for this group. "Senator Bruce is hopeless. He is going to vote for this cruiser bill. Senator Tydings will also vote for the cruisers. Is that what you want to know?"

"Well, we would like to know more definitely what they said and why they are following such a course," asked Mrs. Morgan.

"Senator Tydings is going to have a reservation about the Monroe Doctrine before he votes for the treaty, but has no reservation on cruisers."

Peace in Big Navy.

"Did you ask either of these senators if they favor the time-limit clauses in the cruiser bill?"

"I rather think Senator Tydings is in favor of it."

"Did you ask him?"

"No; but I think he is in favor of it."

"But he said he did not want to be quoted on that," interrupted another delegate.

"Tennessee next."

"I called on Senator McKellar and he said the pact didn't amount to anything. He said the only way you can have peace on earth is to have a navy bigger than England's. Can you believe me when I say it?"

"Sackett Deep and Mysterious."

"Next report from Kentucky."

"We saw Senator Sackett and oh, my! He was so mysterious and superior. He is convinced that the Senate knows things that other people don't know. He was deep as well as mysterious and told us that we were blundering because we did not have his deep and mysterious knowledge. He said something about Great Britain's reservation to the treaty. What does that mean? He said he was not impressed by the propaganda and wished our efforts along that line would cease. He hates weeding out propaganda letters he added and wishes they would not come. Whenever we advanced a new argument he reverted to the deep and mysterious things. He was not in favor of reducing the number of cruisers. When we spoke of economy, he had the hardihood to say that economy should take second place in the matter of National defense."

"Senator Barkley was different. He promised to look into the matter. But he was in a hurry to get away. My, they are busy, the senators.

"New York," said Miss Morgan.

Copeland's Mind Made Up.

"Senator Copeland, unfortunately, has made up his mind to vote for the cruisers. He said if he hadn't made up his mind our arguments would have won him over. We offered to help him understand the true situation and requested that he reopen his mind until after the European disarmament conference in April.

"But he said his mind when once closed couldn't be reopened and then he said something about policing the high seas. He did not answer any of our arguments after we began getting the best of it, but just talked about other things. He did not dare answer our last questions.

"Senator Wagner was more open-minded. He said he might agree to postpone a vote until after April 15. But he didn't promise."

"Rhode Island next."

"We've interviewed both our senators, Gerry and Metcalf and had a delightful time. They told us very politely and delightfully that they would vote for the cruisers and believed cruisers necessary to peace.

Reed Favors 30 Ships.

"Report from Pennsylvania.

"We saw Senator Reed and he said he was in favor of the cruiser bill but was sorry the bill did not call for 30 instead of 15 cruisers."

"Are you sure you heard him correctly."

"Yes, 30 cruisers and he repeated it. He said we would never get any disarmament until England realized that we would otherwise build ships. He said there was nothing inconsistent between cruisers and the peace pact. Peace and war in the same breath.

"May I ask how many were in your delegations?" inquired Mrs. Morgan.

"Thirteen, including two who got lost on the way."

"North Carolina."

"We saw Senators Overman and Simmons and found both for the cruisers. There seemed to be a very small session of the Senate. Almost nobody on the floor. And it was so difficult to find senators in.

Doubts Any Borah Peace.

"Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, discussed the peace pact with me," interrupted an eloquent young man from the back of the hall. He said it did not amount to anything and added that no peace move backed by Senator Borah ever could amount to anything.

"We have been seeing the wrong people," solemnly announced another delegate. "We should have interviewed the steel trust and the great armanent manufacturers, instead of their representatives in the Senate."

Mr. Libby then made a closing speech in which he urged more letters and yet more letters to senators, to the President of the United States, to all who could help in seeeing the light to be radiated from the campaign of education against the cruisers.

Woman Robbed of $600 Gems.

Dorothy Scott, of 149 W street northwest, reported to Eighth Precinct Police yesterday that her apartment was entered sometime Monday and jewelry valued at $600 stolen. Miss Scott listed the jewelry as three diamond rings, one ruby ring and a wrist watch.

LIFE TERMS METED 4 OF BIRGER GANG

Court Also Imposes Two Sentences of 57 Years Each for Plot to Kill Woman.

ANOTHER FACING TRIAL

Marion, Ill., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Sentences of life imprisonment on their pleas of guilty to charges of murdering Mrs. Ethel Price, wife of Illinois Highway Patrolman Lory Price, who likewise paid with his life for his knowledge of the Birger gang's activities, was passed on four of the former followers of the southern Illinois racketeer this afternoon in circuit court.

Judge D. T. Hartwell also meted out 57 years to each on charges of conspiracy to kill Mrs. Price and a like sentence for conspiracy to slay her husband.

The four gangsters are Art Newman, who was chief lieutenant of Birger; Freddie Wooten, Leslie Simpson and Riley Simmons. Newman is now serving a life sentence for his part in the slaying of Mayor Joe Adame of West City, for which crime Charlie Birger was hanged. Simmons is a Federal prisoner.

Judge Hartwell, in pronouncing sentence, did not give his usual lecture, explaining he was sentencing them to life imprisonment "instead of hanging them" because of an agreement reached by State's Attorney Roy Browning and defense attorneys. Judge Hartwell also probably took into consideration the promise of the four gangsters to clear up a group of unsolved southern Illinois murder mysteries, and to testify in such cases whenever needed.

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Arlie Boswell, former State's attorney of Williamson County, charged with alleged conspiracy to violate the prohibition act, has had his case set for January 21, in United States District Court here, it was announced today by Ralph F. Lesemann, assistant United States attorney. Boswell, George Bell, Williamson County coroner, and a number of former Birger gangsters were also named in the United States indictment.

Boswell was linked with Birger's activities in testimony of Art Newman, former lieutenant of the Southern Illinois gang chieftain, in circuit court at Marion, Ill., when Newman gave his account of the killing of Mrs. Lory Price, for which crime Newman received a life sentence today.

Motorcycle Policeman Injured.

Policeman James E. Bennett, 29 years old, of the Fifth Precinct, was injured last night when his motorcycle skidded on ice at First and N streets southeast, and he was thrown to the street. The officer received first aid treatment at his precinct station for bruises to the foot, ankle and knee, and was ordered to report to the police clinic this morning for further treatment.

GOOD ADVICE ON AVOIDING INFLUENZA GIVEN BY HEALTH OFFICIALS

Plenty of sleep, wholesome food, fresh air, regular exercise—these are strongly recommended by health officials in the many sections of the country where influenza is prevalent. It is most important now that every precaution be taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

If possible keep away from crowded places, and especially from persons who are sneezing, sniffling and coughing. Use plenty of water, inside and out. Wash regularly before eating. Keep your hands away from your face at all times. If you have a cold take the best care of it and consult your doctor.

Many people have made it a practice to use Vapex regularly, a drop on a folded handkerchief every morning. This is of great assistance in avoiding colds and kindred ailments. Breathe the Vapex vapor frequently during the day, especially while mingling with crowds. The odor is pleasant and refreshing. The strength of one application lasts for an entire day, even increases for several hours. Buy a bottle of Vapex from your druggist, in the little square bottle and the package with the green triangle.

HOUSE LINES DRAWN FOR FENN BILL FIGHT

AUTHOR SEES PASSAGE

(Associated Press.)

Taut lines are being drawn in the House for a battle over the Fenn bill for reapportionment of the 435 representatives among the several States. The measure yesterday was scheduled by the rules committee for consideration tomorrow.

Chairman Fenn, of the census committee, author of the proposal, declared after a conference with colleagues that his measure "has the best chance of adoption of any reapportionment measure submitted in the past decade, and that the prospects for passage were brighter than ever."

Representative Rankin, Mississippi, ranking Democrat on the House census committee, filed a minority report against the measure, and issued a statement characterizing the bill as "ridiculous and an unwarranted delegation of constitutional power with the Secretary of Commerce now vested in the House."

While the minority report bore no other signatures than Rankin's, the Mississippian said nearly all the Democrats in the House and many Republicans would oppose the measure.

The majority report pointed out that the last reapportionment was made in 1911, when 435 representatives were allocated to 91,000,000 persons. It charged that by the failure to make a reapportionment in 1920, more than 16,000,000 persons have been without fair and equitable representation.

The Fenn measure would become effective at the end of the Seventy-first Congress, and would provide for reapportionment of the representatives of each fifth Congress thereafter.

Senator Asks West To Explain Awards

Rio Grande Contract Holds Up Move to Confirm His Appointment.

(Associated Press.)

Efforts of Senators Deneen and Glenn, Illinois Republicans, to have the Senate fix a date for considering the confirming of Roy O. West as Secretary of the Interior failed yesterday when Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, asked that before such action Mr. West be heard by a Senate committee on the award of the Middle Rio Grande Conservancy district contract in New Mexico.

Senator Deneen declared he would make another effort today to have the Senate fix the time of its consideration of the appointment.

The Montana senator desires to question West as to why he approved the contract made with the Conservancy district prior to the time he had secured certain data concerning it. Senator Wheeler announced earlier in the day that he would oppose taking up West's appointment until such an inquiry.

Cruiser Bill Indorsed By Foreign War Veterans

The bill which would provide additional cruisers for the United States was strongly indorsed last night by the Robert E. Peary Ship, No. 427, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, at a special meeting at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, Eleventh and L streets northwest.

The resolution adopted by the organization also requested the Senate to take as quick action as possible to assure the passage of the bill.

SENATE ASKS BURKE TO BACK UP CHARGE

SARGENT CALLED TODAY

The Senate Indian affairs committee, investigating the case of Jackson Barnett, wealthy Creek Indian, adopted a motion yesterday asking Commissioner Burke, of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, to prove a charge that Senator Pine, of Oklahoma, had "conspired to destroy him and the Indian service."

The action was taken on motion of Senator LaFollette (Republican), Wisconsin, a member of the committee, after Senator Pine had read a statement in which he denied there was a conspiracy.

Burke yesterday told the committee he believed he could prove the charge, but asked for time to call witnesses from Oklahoma. This was granted and the hearing on the charge was set for next Monday.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, another member of the committee, had previously said he did not believe the charge against Pine "ought to be allowed to stand" without evidence to support it.

Pine Makes Statement.

Senator Pine, in his statement to the committee, said he wanted "to deny that there is a conspiracy in which I am taking part to destroy Mr. Burke and the Bureau of Indian Affairs."

"I have never had any desire and I do not now have any desire to destroy Mr. Burke," he declared. "I now demand that Mr. Burke take the stand and prove his charges or withdraw them. For some time I have been of the quite definite opinion that Mr. Burke should no longer be Commissioner of Indian Affairs, and I have expressed that opinion to a great many people. That is all I have to say."

Senator Wheeler asked Selby, chief assistant to the Attorney General and the chief witness today, if he believed there was "lack of honesty" in the Interior Department, and the witness replied that he thought there was "negligence in the department in its treatment of Indians."

"Common Honesty Needed."

Senator Thomas (Democrat), Oklahoma, interrupted to inquire if Selby had a "constructive suggestion" for improvement of the Government's relations with the Indians. Selby said the only solution of the problem was "just common honesty." He promised, however, to give the Senate all the information he could in an attempt to reach a solution.

Attorney General Sargent and Solicitor General William Mitchell, who were asked yesterday to appear before the committee, will appear this afternoon to explain why fraud charges were not pressed against certain persons connected with the Barnett case at a grand jury investigation in Oklahoma last summer. It was to ascertain the reason for this that the committee started its inquiry.

U. S. Economic Changes Are Studied by Experts

Economists and business leaders began a two-day meeting yesterday at the Metropolitan Club preparatory to making an official report next spring on recent economic changes in the United States.

Data obtained in a national survey were studied and discussed with the specific idea in mind of determining the relationship of economic changes to business and the general public. The data were compiled by the National Bureau of Economic Research as a result of the President's unemployment conference. Those attending the meeting are members of the committee on recent economic changes appointed after that conference.

presentation of the collar of Rhemeyer's sweater, burned from the garment to which it belonged; of clubs and of what remained of a couple of chairs, all blood stained and some with hair still clinging to them, threatened to sicken the scene for a time. Coroner's officers and police handled them with apparent indifference, but spectators did not seem to relish it.

Then policemen told how Blymyer had been arrested and of his confession. Defense Attorney Cohen fought hard to gain an admission from them that Blymyer had explained the murder by saying Rehmeyer, known as a man of magic, has cast a spell upon him, but they all denied they had heard any such statement. On the other hand, they told how Blymyer and Wilbert Hess and John Curry, accused with him, had admitted taking an unnamed sum of money—reported to have amounted to $3—and divided it among themselves. That was the State's evidence to suport its theory that Robbery was the motive of the murder.

Confession Omits Motive.

Then Blymyer's confession was introduced. It was hardly 100 words long and contained rather perfunctory admissions that he had struck Rehmeyer over the head with a chair; that he had knocked Rehmeyer down; had helped tie him, and had poured water over the body and the floor of Rehmeyer's house, to erase finger-prints. It contained no explanation whatever as to why the murder was done.

With that the State rested its case and Cohen began to talk of witches and all sorts of things.

Emmanuel Blymyer, father of the defendant, was the first witness called. He was a tragic figure, sitting in the high, white marble witness stand, dressed in a shabby, dark suit, which never had been to a cleaner's; blue work shirt without tie; his rather plentiful, stringy hair awry; peaked, flushed face covered with a graying stubble, and the same sort of small, shiny eyes as his son.

Emmanuel Blymyer wasn't certain whether he was 58 or 59 years old, and it took him some time to count up that he was the father of six children, of whom John was the oldest. His testimony did not go much beyond that, for, when Cohen threatened to get him to tell about John's childhood and about the family beliefs in witchcraft, objections by the State caused the Court to rule that such evidence was not proper until a foundation in the way of evidence indicating John was insane had been laid.

John's Landlady Called.

Be Emmanuel hobbled uncertainly back to his seat beside his even more pitiful wife, Babula; two of his daughters and another son. The Blymyers are of a peasant type, which would seem more to fit into a scene in some Old World country than in the United States of the year 1929.

Next came Mrs. Myrtle Downey, a buxom, pink cheeked, fair matron attired in black except for white beads and a touch of pink on her hat. She had been John's landlady for months. She pictured John as a silent individual so far as talking to others was concerned.

"When we wanted to ask him something we had to ask him twice before we got an answer," she said.

But he talked volubly to himself.

"He would walk around the house talking to himself of all sorts of things," she said.

"He always kept his room locked when he was in it. He complained there was something wrong with him and that he was sick. Then he said he was losing weight and finally he told me he was getting so thin that he couldn't buy a cap in York small enough to fit his head any more."

Played With Dolls.

She said one of his favorite social activities was joining her 5-year-old daughter and the child's dolls in a children's tea party.

The State prevented her telling any more about John, although Cohen indicated Mrs. Downey could give other bits about his flair for fortune telling and some of his peculiar beliefs.

Next came Blymyer's former father-in-law, John W. Hallowar. He was of middle age and he showed that he was well acquainted with work. He had no mind for figures, however, for he could not tell how long John and his daughter had remained married; how long since his daughter left John, or how long ago it was that he himself had taken John to the almshouse and had him examined for insanity. All those things had happened at some time or another, he was certain, however.

"I know they were married long enough to have three children," he said.

Court Halts Trial.

At that juncture court adjourned because Judge Ray P. Sherwood, presiding, would not permit questions bearing directly upon John's mental condition to be asked until medical experts have testified. The experts will be produced Wednesday, Cohen promised.

The proceedings were all marked by much wrangling on the part of attorneys, during which Cohen emphasized his intention of unfolding a remarkable tale of witchcraft. He said he would prove that Blymyer had a sincere belief that Rehmeyer, the big, black-bearded recluse whom he is accused of killing, had cast a spell over the Hess family and also was responsible for his loss of weight, the sad shrinkage in the size of his head and other infirmities and misfortunes.

Attorneys for Wilbert Hess and John Curry, also accused of having a part in the murder, gave active assistance at times to Cohen. It was learned they will ask that their clients be tried separately, and it was understood that in the Hess trial, at least, witchcraft will be gone into in an even bigger and better way.

Photographers Chase Judge.

Photographers and the village cut-up furnished comedy outside of court during the day. The photographers pursued Judge Sherwood, who refused to be photographed, down an alley and then across Continental Square, alive with noon-hour traffic, in an effort to get his picture. The judge proved fleet of foot, and, although numerous undignified pictures were taken, he never surrendered.

The village cut-up entertained in the corridors and anterooms. Disguised as a messenger boy, that short, rotund individual indulged in prestidigitation with trick cigars and otherwise kept the citizens of York, gathered in the corridors, as well entertained as they might have been inside the courtroom. At least, the applause he received indicated as much.

Woman Stoned as Witch.

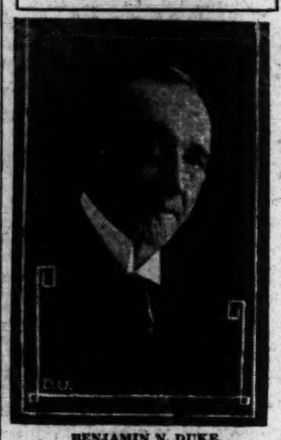
Another alleged "witch murder" was prevented near Hanover Monday when a policeman arrested Vernon Bankert, 35, as he was stoning Mrs. J. W. Hossaker, 55, a farmer's wife, because, he said, she had "put a 'hex' on him and bewitched him."

It developed tonight that Bankert had escaped four months ago from a Harrisburg mental institution—the same from which, four years ago, John Blymyer, now on trial here for the "witch murder" of Nelson Rehmyer, escaped.

Mrs. Hossaker was doing her housework when Bankert knocked on the door. When she did not respond at once, Bankert kicked in the door. Mrs. Hossaker fled to the back garden. Bankert, following, began stoning her. Neighbors summoned a motorcycle policeman. Bankert was charged with assault with intent to kill.

Mrs. Hossaker is in hospital recovering from her injuries.

MAGNATE DIES



BENJAMIN N. DUKE.

B. N. DUKE, TOBACCO MAGNATE, 73, DEAD

Once Boy Peddler, Amassed Fortune Estimated at $60,000,000.

GAVE BIG SUMS QUIETLY

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Benjamin N. Duke, who rose from a boy peddler of tobacco to help place his family among the pioneers of big business, died today in his upper Fifth avenue mansion after a long illness. He was in his seventy-fourth year.

Behind him he left a fortune estimated at upward of $60,000,000, founded on the profits of a Southern country tobacco shop and expanded by years of effort in railroads, banking, cotton, real estate and other high scale enterprises.

Out of this fortune came huge philanthropies which he never permitted to be publicly listed, but of which $1,000,000 was said to have been given to Trinity College, now Duke University, at Durham, N. C., and Guilford College, from which he was graduated.

Burial to Take Place at Durham.

Burial will take place at Durham, where he maintained an estate. A special train leaving Pennsylvania station at 4 p. m. tomorrow will carry the body, accompanied by members of the family and friends, to Durham, where it will lie in state at Duke University from the time of its arrival about 8:30 or 9 a. m. Thursday to 11:30 a. m., when the funeral will take place at Memorial Chapel. Meanwhile arrangements were that the body would remain at a funeral parlor here. There will be no service in New York.

Death came to Mr. Duke at 5:45 o'clock this morning when he failed to rally after a bronchial attack last night. As far back at 1915 he had suffered from nervous disorders, and more recently had been confined to his home.

Family at His Bedside.

With him when he died were his wife, Mrs. Sarah Pearson Duke; his daughter, Mrs. A. J. Drexel-Biddle, jr., and Mr. Biddle, and his clergyman, Dr. Ralph W. Sockman.

The Duke family name became known throughout the world after Mr Duke and his brother, the late James B Duke, peddled to country merchants the product of their father's business to save the enterprise from failure immediately after the Civil War. At the time of the death of their father, Washington Duke, a factory had been established at Durham and the business was regarded as one of the country's most prosperous tobacco factories. From this start the Duke fortune was made.

Dr. J. S. Harrison Funeral Is Today

Services to Be Conducted at 2 o'Clock for Well-Known Physician.

Funeral services for Dr. John Stewart Harrison, 72 years old, prominent in medical circles here for many years, who died Monday at Providence Hospital, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the funeral chapel of Charles S. Zurhorst. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Dr. Harrison was a member of the party which in 1883 sailed aboard the supply ship Yantic to aid in search of Gen. Greeley's lost expedition to the North Pole. At one time he was the attending physician at the District Jail. He was also attending physician at the Ruppert Home, the old German Orphan Home and the Bell Home.

Dr. Harrison was born in Martinsburg, W. Va., and was educated at the Jefferson Medical School in Philadelphia. He resided at 9 Eighth street southeast.

Surviving him are a stepdaughter, Mrs. Dorothea F. Dienelt, of this city, and a brother, Capt. H. W. Harrison, of the Navy, who is stationed in France. His brother-in-law, Philip Williams, is Governor of the Virgin Islands.

Dr. W. H. Davis Dies at His Home

Census Bureau Statistician Sucumbs to Attack of Heart Disease.

Dr. William H. Davis, chief statistician of the Bureau of the Census in charge of vital statistics, died suddenly last night at 11:45 o'clock at his home, 3724 Jocelyn street northwest. Death was attributed to an acute heart attack.

Dr. Davis had been with the Census Bureau for twelve years, and had become an authority on vital statistics. He had represented the bureau in many international conferences on the subject abroad.

He was a native of Massachusetts, having been born at Holyoke 58 years ago. He was a graduate of Harvard University and of the Harvard Medical School. He also studied extensively at medical schools in Vienna.

Funeral plans had not been made last night.

WOMAN IS ACCEPTED ON NORTHCOTT JURY

Tentative Panel Includes Eleven Men; State to Ask Death Penaty.

COURT GUARD INCREASED

Riverside, Calif., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The possibility of a woman on the jury which will decide the fate of Gordon Stewart Northcott, charged with the murder of three boys on his chicken ranch, appeared today with tentative acceptance by both defense and State of Mrs. Mildred Bresee, a housewife. A second woman, called immediately after Mrs. Bresee, was challenged peremptorily and excused by the prosecution.

The tentative woman juror told Norbert Savay, Northcott's counsel, that she had "no objection whatever" to serving on the jury with eleven men. In answer to questions put by Chief Deputy District Attorney Earl C. Redwine she said she had no prejudice against death as the penalty for first degree murder. Redwine in his examination of Mrs. Bresee, served notice again upon the jury as a whole that the State intended to demand the death penalty for Northcott.

At the close of today's court session the defense had left unused only seven of its twenty peremptory challenges while the State had eighteen peremptory remaining. Three of the original twelve men drawn were still in the box after three days given over largely to jury selection.

Savay today lost a motion for a change of venue. He alleged an "inflamed state of public mind" in affidavits presented in behalf of his motion and placed Northcott in the witness chair to testify that his life had been threatened by a fellow prisoner in the county jail.

Superior Judge G. R. Freeman denied the motion with the expressed opinion that affidavits of "careless statements" on the part of a few people were not sufficient proof of prejudice of the community.

Sheriff Clem Sweeters today placed an extra guard over the superior courtroom in which Northcott is on trial. The sheriff let it be known that the receipt of four letters by Judge Freeman had been the reason for the added precaution. The letters threatened Northcott. All the letters were mailed from San Diego.

J. G. M'Crory's Son Killed by Accident

Friend's Gun Is Discharged While Hunting on Chain-Store Owner's Ranch.

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Van McCrory, 32, of Ridgewood, N. C., son of John G. McCrory, 5-and-10-cent store magnate, was accidentally shot and killed while hunting near his father's ranch in Orange County late today by Raymer F. McGuire, Orlando attorney and close friend, according to oficers. The accident ocurred while the two were hunting deer on horseback.

Maguire's shotgun was discharged, the load taking effect in McCrory's back. Officers said the shooting was clearly an acident that no inquest would be held. Maguire was prostrated at his home tonight.

McCrory came to Orlando with his family shortly before Christmas for a season of sport on the 10,000-acre ranch of his father. The body was taken to a local undertaker while efforts were being made to communicate with the elder McCrory.

Wallace Eddinger, Noted Actor, Dead

Star, Who Began His Stage Career at 6 Years, Is Pneumonia Victim.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Wallace Eddinger, noted actor, who had been suffering from pneumonia in the Presbyterian Hospital here since January 5, died early today.

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Wallace Eddinger, actor, who died in Pittsburgh today, began his stage career at the age of 6. He played in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," for two and one half years. He was born in Albany, N. Y., in 1881, his parents, Lawrence and May Eddinger, both being in the theatrical profession.

After a successful career in child roles, he was sent to school. He returned to the stage in 1902. He made his first appearance as a star in 1910, playing the title role in "Bobby Burnit." One of his greatest successes was "Captain Applejack."

He was twice married. His first wife was Mrs. Ivy La Grove, whom he married in 1912. They were divorced in 1920. In 1924, he married Margaret Lawrence, the actress, who recently applied for a divorce.

LEGISLATORS PLAN BONDS FOR SCHOOLS

CHEVY CHASE MAY GAIN

(By a Staff Correspondent).

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 8.—The interrelation of bonds for civic improvements and the subject of taxes engaged the attention of the Montgomery and Prince Georges County delegations in the Maryland Legislature today, as that body settled down to business.

Maj. E. Brooke Lee, speaker of the house of delegates, and Democratic leader of Montgomery County, said that legislation designed to improve roads, schools, the Park and Planning Commission and the county courthouse would be sponsored by the Montgomery County delegation.

The 1927 legislature made available $250,000 for construction of a courthouse at Rockville, but the courthouse building committee and architect subsequently recommended an additional $150,000 as necessary. This legislature is expected to decide the amount of bond issue funds to be made available for construction.

$300,000 for New Schools.

Speaker Lee expects the early passage of a bill authorizing a bond issue of $300,000, proceeds from which would go to refinancing school construction, which the county commissioners finance temporarily.

Maj. Lee said he anticipated no difficulty in view of the action of Senator Jones and the four members of the house delegation in addressing a joint statement to the county commissioners that the 1928 school and road construction would be financed by bond issues to be authorized by the present legislature.

Composing the Montgomery delegation in the house are George L. Edmunds, Rockville; Richmond Lansdale, Sandy Spring; Maj. Lee, Silver Spring, and Harvey J. White, Dickerson. All are Democrats.

Chevy Chase May Gain.

Maj. Lee indicated that a new school bond issue might be authorized to allow construction of additional units for the Chevy Chase Elementary School and the Chevy Chase-Bethesda High School. Such an authorization would include stipulation for purchase of new elementary school sites in the Alta Vista and Chevy Chase Lake neighborhoods and the Silver Spring Woodside section.

These improvements, presumably would not necessitate additional tax burden. The Montgomery delegation is in receipt of information from Berry E. Clark, clerk of the board of county commissioners, that the county can issue bonds in the amount of $1,750,000 for public improvements without raising the county's tax rate.

A different sentiment toward bonds for civic improvements obtains among the Prince Georges delegation, in view of the fact that bonds in the amount of $400,000 were authorized by the last legislature. Some members profess to see the danger of a raised tax rate should additional bonds be issued.

Henry L. Morris, Upper Marlboro, chairman of the Prince Georges County delegation, said some members think it would be better for the voters to express their position on bonds at referendums in future.

Composing the county delegation are: J. Guy Bell, Bowie; Burton A. Ford, College Park; William P. Keyes, Mt. Ranier; Kent Roberts Mullikin, Laurel, and Mr. Morris. All are Democrats.

"There seems to be quite a demand in our county for a tax on road houses," Morris said. "There are a number in operation, and none contributes anything to the county. Changes have been suggested in the administration of police affairs, but nothing definite has been put forward."

Lee Expose Is Tabled.

Futile attacks on the administration launched by the coalition of Republicans and insurgent Democrats marked the first business session of the legislature last night.

A resolution calling on Speaker Lee to reveal to the house of delegates the financial lobby he threatened to expose when elected on January 2 was tabled after its sponsors failed to obtain support.

Another movement, headed by Daniel Joseph, defeated candidate for Speaker, sought a new rule which would provide that the chairman of each standing committee or somebody representing him should explain briefly to the House every bill and resolution reported favorably.

The proposed rule was referred to the rules committee over Joseph's objection. Speaker Lee announced to Joseph's surprise that the rules committee not only had been appointed but had met and made a report.

MRS. MATTINGLY RITES.

Services Will Be Held Tomorrow at St. John's Episcopal Church.

Funeral services for Mrs. Julia Brown Mattingly, widow of Samuel L. Mattingly and prominent in civic activities, who died at Garfield Hospital Monday night after a brief illness, will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at St. John's Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and H streets. The Rev. Dr. Robert Johnston will officiate. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Mattingly was a daughter of the late S. P. Brown and Charlotte Brown, of Mount Pleasant. She was a native of Orland, Me., coming here when her father was named by President Lincoln naval pay agent during the Civil War.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. David D. Porter, of Washington; three sisters, Mrs. Charles W. McDermott, of Boston, and Miss Minnie G. Brown and Miss Blanche Butler Brown, of Washington.

While surgeons struggled to save the lives of Miss Newland and Searle, two youths were being held at the Arlington County Jail in Arlington, both having surrendered shortly after the accident. Their names are Norwood Estes, 18 years old, and Frank Stevens, 19 years old, both of Ballston.

No charges had been placed against either of the youths last night, but both were subjected to a gruelling questioning by Acting Commonwealth Attorney H. Bruce Greene. After the inquiry, Greene stated that Estes, the driver of the automobile, denied that he was traveling over 25 miles an hour at the time of the accident.

According to reports gathered by Clarendon police, the two girls and Searle had just alighted from a Washington, Maryland & Virginia Coach Co. bus, and had stepped behind the bus and were walking across Wilson boulevard when struck down.

Taken to Georgetown Hospital.

Estes stopped after the accident, and he and Stevens assisted in placing the injured trio in the automobile of William Dangerfield, of 134 Sixteenth street northeast, Washington. Dangerfield and Stevens carried the injured to the Georgetown Hospital, where Dr. James Dannon and Dr. Ed Greco gave emergency treatment.

A short time afterward, Estes appeared at the hospital. He left shortly with Stevens, both going immediately to the Arlington Jail.

Acting Commonwealth Attorney Greene also went to the hospital, but, learning that Mrs. Bowbeer was dead and that the others were too seriously hurt to have visitors, he, too, went to the jail.

Mrs. Bowbeer has been married only since July, and at the time of the accident was returning to her home after a day's work in Washington.

Miss Newland and Searle also are said to work in Washington, but information as to their employers could not be learned last night.

The automobile which Estes was driving is the property of Miss Ida Gadd, of Ballston, according to Sheriff Fields, of Arlington County, who quoted Estes as saying he was en route to Washington to pick up Miss Gadd at the time of the accident.

Estes, according to records of Judge Harry R. Thomas' court, was fined $14.25 Monday on a charge of reckless driving and was instructed by the court not to drive Miss Gadd's automobile again until he had obtained a chauffeur's license.

Almond, Canada Leader In Finance, Is Dead

Houston, Tex., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Henry E. Almond, 52, political leader and millionaire manufacturer, of Vancouver, B. C., died here today. He had submitted to an operation New Year's Day. The family was on a tour of the United States after an official visit of Mr. Almond to Ottawa on behalf of his city, where he was alderman.

The Canadian financier, beginning as a milk delivery man, made his fortune in real estate and the manufacture of ice cream. He was also president of a chain of drug stores.

MEDIUM GIVES SIGN AGREED BY HOUDINIS

wife, Mrs. Dorothy Stafford; Francis R Fast, broker and importer; Mrs. Minnie Chester, of Elmhurst, Long Island, a lifelong friend of Mr. and Mrs. Houdini; Charles H. Williams, and Mrs. Rea Stevens and Harry R. Zander newspaper reporters, were present.

Chairs were arranged for the participants and witnesses in a close circle about the couch, from beneath whose pink coverlets the cameo-like face of the tiny, white-haired widow of Harry Houdini peered anxiously, almost fearfully.

A committee of Spiritualists had visited her the day before and told her that Ford had succeeded Saturday night in obtaining the full message from Houdini, recited it to her and she had approved it as genuine. A further test was to be put upon the message and this was the time for that test.

Ford, once an ordained minister, who was celebrating his thirty-second birthday in this strange rite, seated himself in a high-back cushioned chair and closed his eyes. Window shades were drawn at his request, but the room remained lighted notwithstanding. There were no attempts at "magicians' tricks."

"Please, every one, keep both feet flat on the floor," requested the medium. He held his hands to his temples for a few silent moments and dropped them to the low arms of the chair.

There was a convulsive twitching of the figure in the chair, and another, and still a third, then a sigh. Fast, intimate friend and coworker of Ford, accepted the signal to start talking to "Fletcher," the medium's control.

Code Is Repeated.

"Hello, hello Fletcher," said Fast. Fletcher in life was a French-Canadian by birth and a schoolmate of Ford, it was said.

"Hello," came crisply from the medium's lips. "This man's coming now, this man who was here Saturday. He says: 'Hello, Bess, my sweetheart.' He says he comes because he was to come and repeat the message he sent and finish it.

"He says it is the code you and he used to use in the mind-reading act.

"First of all he says the word 'Rosabelle.' And: 'Do you remember all that it stands for?'"

"Oh, yes," came plaintively, from the little figure on the couch.

"He repeats the message he gave before: 'Answer, tell, pray, answer, look, tell, answer, answer, tell,' said the medium. "He wants you to tell him if that is right or not."

"Yes, it is right," Mrs. Houdini answered clearly.

"'Thank you sweetheart,' he says," Fletcher continued. "'Now I can go on,' he says. 'Take off your wedding ring and tell them what "Rosabelle" means.'"

The pink coverlets stirred as the tiny white haired widow sought to free her arms. And Mrs. Houdini told the little group "what Rosabelle means" in the tremulous, plaintive, pathetic remnants of a once sweet soprano as she courageously sang the words:

"Rosabelle, sweet Rosabelle.

I love you more than I can tell;
Over me you've cast a spell.
I love you, my sweet Rosabelle."

"'Thank you darling,'"—Fletcher was speaking again through the medium—"'That's the first tune I ever heard you sing. You sang it in our first act together, in our first show. Do you remember?'"

"Oh yes, yes," sobbed the little figure on the couch.

"'I want to tell you what the words mean'" the voice came from the medium's lips. "'But I won't do that until you help me.'"

The little woman on the couch intoned the French words:

"Je tire le rideau, comme ca (I pull the curtain, so)."

"Fletcher" went on:

Code Used by Pair.

"He is smiling now. He is showing me something. A picture, a framed something—it has two curtains on it. 'I draw the curtain so, in this manner,'" he says.

The "control" then proceeded to explain the code used by Houdini and his wife in their stage mind-reading act. They had ten words corresponding to the first ten numerals; for example (these are not all identic words in the Houdini code):

1, pray; 2, answer; 3, talk; 4, then; 5, tell; 6, will; 7, hurry; 8, listen; 9, look; 10, hear.

In the code each numeral represents a letter of the alphabet in order, thus: 1 is A, 2 is B, 3 is C, and so on. Beyond the first ten letters of the alphabet numerals are doubled. K, being 11, would be "pray, pray." L being 12 would be "pray answer," and V, the twenty-second letter would be "answer, answer."

Worked out in the code given through the medium, the first word answer is B, tell is S, pray answer is L, look is I, answer answer is V and tell is E: "Believe."

Cries "Houdini Lives."

"'The message that I want to give my wife is: "Believe, Rosabelle, believe.' 'Is that right?" Fletcher asked.

"Yes, it is right," Mrs. Houdini answered.

"'Now I am happy that I have got it through,' he says," Fletcher went on. "'Now I can have many talks with my darling Bess. (Bess was Houdini's "pet" name for his wife, Beatrice.) I want you who are here to spare neither time nor money in shielding this sweetheart of mine, for her nearest friends will turn against her.

"'Tell the whole world that Harry Houdini lives and will prove it a thousand times more. Tell all those who have lost faith to lay hold of the truth: There is no death!'"

Guard Against "Flu" With Musterole

Musterole relieves the congestion and stimulates circulation. It has all the good qualities of the old fashioned mustard plaster without the blister.

First you feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief. Have Musterole handy for emergency use. It may prevent serious illness.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. Jars and Tubes.

Bare Legs Cost Woman 3 Months; Is Acquitted

Pottsville, Pa., Jan 8 (A.P.).—When Mrs. Mary Kauseksa, 38 years old, of Shenandoah, was called to trial today for being a common nuisance it was discovered that the charge was based on her going about the streets with bare legs. She had been in jail three months awaiting trial.

Judge R. H. Koch, in charging the jury, said: "We see bare legs in the chorus and at the beach and they are no nuisance there."

The jury promptly acquitted the woman.

Governor of Colorado Quits Bed to Be Sworn

Denver, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Arising from a sick bed, Gov. William H. Adams, veteran Colorado rancher, was inducted into office for his second term today in his quarters at the Brown Palace Hotel, where he has been confined for several weeks by an attack of influenza.

The oath was administered while the executive stood, aided by a nurse. Raising his right hand, he supported himself by placing his left hand on the arm of a chair. A second inaugural was held at the capitol, where other State officers were sworn in.

POLI'S THEATER
Jan. 11, 4:30

BORN in New York of Palestinian Jewish parents, Master Menuhin began to study the violin at the age of four. At seven, he was soloist of the San Francisco Symphony, under the baton of Alfred Hertz (likewise a Victor artist). A year later, he gave a recital at the Manhattan Opera House, New York. Then to Europe to learn the technique of Georges Enesco. At ten, he took Paris by storm. He is still only eleven years old! Hear this talented boy in person. Then hear him play "La Capricciosa" on Victor Record 1329. Both are Menuhin, definitely.

Herbert Hoover, Jr., Accepts Radio Post in Los Angeles

Will Join Forces of Western Air Express as Communication Specialist; Present Home in Boston; Elder Son of President-Elect Has Two Children.

(Associated Press.)

Herbert Hoover, jr., who has been in Washington to welcome his parents back from their South American goodwill tour, expects to go to California the last of the month to take a position as a radio and communication specialist with the Western Air Express, Inc., of Los Angeles.

In accepting this position, the elder son of the President-elect is continuing a career in aviation and radio, subjects which have held his interest since his boyhood.

It was said at his home yesterday that he had always shown a special liking for mechanical things and for electrical experiments and had taken courses in physics at Stanford University. After he was graduated from Stanford Mr. Hoover took a postgraduate course in business administration at Harvard, later accepting a position in the Guggenheim Foundation for aviation promotion.

Herbert, jr., now is 25 years of age, and has been married about five years. He has two children, Peggy Ann, aged 3 years, and Herbert Hoover 3d, aged 1 year.

His home at present is at Boston, and he drove from there last week to meet his father and mother and his younger brother, Allan, at Old Point Comfort Sunday morning.

FEDERAL PAY REVISION.

Representative Lehlbach, chairman of the House civil service committee, has introduced his long-promised bill for the clarification of the Welch act. The measure imposes upon the Personnel Classification Board the duty of determining finally the grade or subdivision to which all positions shall be allocated. It provides specifically for the relief of field employes who were not provided for in the administration of the Welch act, and it sets up a new formula for the determination of relative positions.

The bill prepared by Representative Lehlbach is the work of an individual who has studied the Federal salary structure long and carefully, and who has also taken pains to ascertain the salary-relief views of the administration. The bill does not provide complete salary relief, but it does promise to clarify the intent of Congress in connection with the measure enacted last session. If it is enacted, as it should be, Government workers will be benefited to the extent that Congress intended them to be benefited when it passed the Welch bill. Permanent relief will not have been provided, however, and the highly important matter of general pay revision will remain for future consideration.

Other bills seeking to clarify the Welch bill are before Congress. The Lehlbach measure, however, probably has the best chance of becoming law.

ANOTHER BOLLING FIELD FIRE.

Fire at Bolling Field yesterday destroyed a barracks. Damage is estimated at from $8,000 to $20,000. This was the fifth fire that has occurred at Bolling Field within a year and it was subdued only after District of Columbia fire apparatus reached the scene.

The District is more than glad to come to the aid of the Government in emergencies. Its fire apparatus responds to calls from Government reservations. Its police are always ready to come to the assistance of guardians of Federal property should situations arise with which they are unable to cope. The fire of yesterday, however, and each situation of this sort that arises on a Federal reservation, adds force to Washington's contention that the Government has not of recent years paid a fair share of the cost of running the District government.

Because Washington is honeycombed with Government reservations it is necessary to maintain fire and police departments larger than otherwise would be necessary. A similar situation obtains in connection with every other branch of municipal activity. The Federal contribution to the cost of maintaining the local government—$9,000,000—is not large enough to counterbalance the cost of the services that must be provided for the Government alone. Yesterday's fire at Bolling Field, together with the four that preceded it, should not be forgotten when consideration is given to the question of financing the District government.

FAULTY STEAMSHIP INSPECTION.

The report of D. N. Hoover, supervising inspector general of the Steamboat Inspection Service, who conducted an investigation into the sinking of the British steamship Vestris, affords another reason why the Senate should probe into the disaster. The report, which was filed Monday with the Secretary of Commerce, attaches no blame to the inspection service, but finds that the immediate cause of the loss of 110 lives was the absence of discipline and delay in calling for help.

Mr. Hoover arrived at the conclusion that "the inspection of the Vestris itself and its life-saving apparatus and equipment was thorough and complete in accordance with the practice that has been followed many years in the inspection of vessels." Mr. Hoover conducted his inquiry to find out if the inspection of the vessel had been lax or improper. United States Commissioner O'Neill, who conducted the investigation covering the cause of the disaster, arrived at a very different conclusion. He says that the "inspector who conducted the annual inspection of the Vestris in the early part of November affirmed in his report of such an inspection that 'every lifeboat was lowered to water or to a wharf, and lifted clear of water or wharf, with boat loaded to allowed capacity'—although he knew that neither such lowering nor such lifting had occurred at all."

Commissioner O'Neill further revealed the disquieting fact that there is no legal requirement for periodical testing of lifeboats on foreign vessels leaving American ports for foreign ports. Thus if such vessels do not visit their home ports they are immune to inspection. Under present conditions if the inspectors are guilty of negligence they could not be prosecuted, because of defects in the law.

These conflicting reports should be an invitation for the Senate to probe into the disaster and bring about a general revision of the safety code on the seas. Every ocean-going vessel carrying passengers from American ports should be made to comply with modern standards of safety equipment. Whether antiquated statutes or negligence in carrying out the law is responsible for the recent disaster, Congress should take such action as will make a repetition of it impossible.

THE QUESTION MARK'S FLIGHT.

It remained for Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the United States Navy, to epitomize the achievement of the Army endurance fliers. The flight of the Question Mark, he said, stirs the imagination deeply and opens the mind to new achievements now within the range of practicability.

For six days, six hours and 40 minutes, starting early New Year's morning, the crew of the Question Mark kept her aloft. During that time she covered more than 11,000 miles at an average speed of approximately 70 miles an hour, although officially, since she was not held to the designated course, she will be credited with nothing like that distance or speed. More than 5,000 gallons of gasoline were put aboard her by "nurse" ships, which, together with oil and other supplies, weighed some 42,000 pounds. Monday afternoon the motors faltered, having made more than 42,000,000 revolutions, and the Question Mark was brought back to earth. There can be no doubt that this flight marks the beginning of a new era in commercial and military aviation.

The flight of the Question Mark proved conclusively that it is practicable and comparatively easy to refuel airplanes in flight. It will not be long before the crude refueling system by which it was kept aloft will have been refined, and then such projects as a non-stop-round-the-world flight will be practicable. It is not likely, of course, that there ever will be need for such a flight, but refueling and transfer of supplies in flight will make possible the carrying of greater pay loads, cut the time of long-distance flights and lengthen the life of planes by decreasing the wear imposed by frequent take-offs. It is in connection with saving time and increasing pay loads that refueling will be of importance.

The Question Mark will be subjected to the most minute scientific scrutiny. It is important to note that the engines failed after approximately 150 air hours, far less time than they would have run on the testing block. In the Question Mark the motors were tested through the variations of temperature, altitude and speed of actual flight, conditions impossible to simulate in shop tests. As a result of this flight it should be found possible to discover flaws in design and construction of both engines and plane that might never be detected in ordinary flight or in laboratory tests.

THE SCIENCE THEATER.

A novel experiment designed to make use of the theater in the promotion of science has been announced in New York. The American Institute will establish a science theater which will "cater to the increasing public consciousness of scientific developments and their significance in the modern world." Two scientists and a playwright will be engaged to work out stage productions which, the promoters hope, will graphically and dramatically represent certain discoveries of science.

The first production will be based on the scientific explanation of man's development on the earth. An announcer will tell the story of the ages before human life appeared; motion pictures will be used to illustrate the glacial periods. When the age of man is reached in the drama, human actors will carry on the theme, showing how the race has progressed from nomadic hunters to the present state of civilization. Striking scenes will be made of the struggles of the cave man and other prehistoric human beings in their crude environment.

According to present plans this anthropologic drama will be followed by other stage productions based on many phases of science. Edwin Forrest Murdock, president of the American Institute, believes that "the science theater will be an unequaled instrument for the popular exposition of the sciences in their manifold phases." In view of the unpopularity of most educational films, it will be interesting to watch the outcome of this experiment.

One thing is certain: The plan will have little or no effect upon the current disintegration of the theater, and whatever is accomplished will be in the name of science and not of art. The movement can not be regarded as a wedding of the sciences and the drama. Art always fails as such when used to expound scientific knowledge that is foreign to it. The drama is a literary form fashioned to present the many phases of human life and character. It can not be successfully used to explain the findings of science and at the same time maintain its artistic qualities.

If the venture proves successful it will signify public interest in science rather than interest in dramatic production. This makes the outlook rather gloomy, because of the well-established habit of attending a theater to be entertained. The technicalities of science can not be taught effectively through entertainment, and when only generalities are given to the public the result is often confusing and tends to discredit science as unfounded speculation. The laboratory is the proper sphere of science; the theater is an institution dedicated to art. It appears that the science theater can make little contribution to either art or science.

GRAND DUKE NICHOLAS.

The death of Grand Duke Nicholas of Russia, who was head of the movement among Russian emigres to overturn the Soviet government, will be a blow to the royalists. The grand duke died in exile, still hoping that the time would come when the Soviet regime could be overthrown to open the way for restoration of the czars. His death makes the possibility of such a restoration even more remote than before.

Grand Duke Nicholas was elected successor to the throne at a meeting of the supreme council of Russian monarchists at Paris in 1922. Since that time he had constantly predicted that the Soviet could not endure, and a number of times he is said to have formed plans for a revolt.

Once commander-in-chief of the Russian armies and one of the czar's most powerful aids during the World War, the grand duke closed his life in humble circumstances. His property in Russia was confiscated during the revolution and he owned nothing outside of that country. He is reported to have lived in France on money obtained from the sale of jewels which the grand duchess managed to save when they escaped from Russia.

The cause of the Romanoffs is now more gloomy than ever before. Grand Duke Nicholas was considered the most able executive among the surviving members of the family. Grand Duke Cyril now becomes head of the family and the claimant to the throne. But there is little chance that the movement to restore the Romanoffs in Russia will ever gain any strength. At present the royal emigres are under penalty of death if they return to their country. As members of the family become fewer and claims to the throne become weaker by lapse of time, the hope that the Russian revolution will turn backward in favor of the dynasty becomes very faint indeed.

COMPETITION FOR SEA ROUTES.

The drive so promptly undertaken by the United States Shipping Board against the foreign invasion of what has hitherto been regarded as the distinctively American trade route between New York and Havana seems likely enough to produce far-reaching repercussions. The Australic, of the Transatlantic West African Line, which is scheduled to arrive at the Port of New York on Saturday next, with cargo from West Africa, throws down a new challenge, somewhat similar to that given by the Cunarder Caronia when she started a week or two ago on the New York-Havana service. The Transatlantic West African Line was recently formed by strong Swedish interests to operate Swedish vessels to and from West Africa and New York, and the Australic is the first of its ships to enter upon the new service. She will, it is understood, be followed in regular monthly sailings by fast Swedish motor ships. Formidable competition is thus indicated with the American West African service, which the United States Shipping Board recently sold, at a record high figure, to the Barber Line, an American company.

When it is remembered that the Transatlantic West African Line is a subsidiary of the Transatlantic Steamship Co., of Gothenburg, which owns a large fleet of steamers and motorships plying for passengers and cargo from Sweden, Norway and Denmark to South Africa, Australia, the Sunda Islands, the Persian Gulf, the Atlantic and Pacific ports of the United States and the Philippines, it will be at once seen how wide may be the ramifications attendant on any action of the United States Shipping Board to stand by the Barber Line, either by allocating to it faster ships or encouraging it to initiate a rate war. It is rumored that several members of the Shipping Board are determined to oppose vigorously the foreign lines that invade American routes, although it is quite possible that no public declaration of policy on this thorny subject may be made until the second national mercantile marine convention, to which all private American shipowners are invited, begins its sessions at Washington on January 23. Great interest therefore attaches to the deliberations and decisions of that convention.

In the meantime, it is understood that Representative Wallace H. White, who is chairman of the House committee on merchant marine and coauthor of the Jones-White bill, is engaged on the drafting of a measure to cope with the new situation that has arisen. This measure, if enacted into law, would place serious restrictions on such foreign lines as compete with established American services in direct foreign trade, unless they fly the flag of the countries served. As a matter of fact, similar regulations have already been adopted and are now in effect in various foreign countries.

A crisis may well be at hand for American shipowners and operators, and it is the obvious duty of every one concerned to see to it that the interests of the national mercantile marine may not suffer through being placed at any disadvantage in relation to foreign competitors.

WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS.

A tabulation of dry enforcement expedients suggested by contenders for the Durant prize shows that the greatest need of the United States is the education of contenders for such prizes. There were 23,230 participants in the scramble for the Durant purse. Of these, 1,171 suggested the use of the Army and Navy in enforcing the dry law. Over 3,600 proposed new Government agencies, ranging from commissions and dictators to a full-fledged department of prohibition, including a spy system.

More than 1,000 advocated Government manufacture and sale of liquor as a means of making the country dry. An equal number suggested that the churches be used for dry propaganda, and 1,465 suggested that the public schools be required to teach prohibition. Many proposed that the Government should give money to the States to enforce the dry law. Others suggested that embassies and legations be denied liquor. Others proposed that treaties be made, to help enforce a domestic law. More than 100 proposed that dry agents be drafted by the President, and 111 proposed that juries be abolished. More than 375 wanted to do away with search warrants. The recall of judges for failing to punish was proposed, and 300 geniuses suggested as a panacea that the entire population be required to take a pledge to quit drinking.

A few individuals said, "Deport all aliens;" others said, "Christianize the Nation," while others went further and said, "Put none but Protestants on guard." Life imprisonment was suggested by 188; ostracism was suggested by 152; torture was proposed by 60; whipping was favored by 73; while 187 came out for the death penalty.

It's hard for the old-timers to believe in evolution when they are asked to believe the new generation an improvement.

Many people condemn the stock market, but there must be good in a thing that can make so many people go back to work.

If you plan a trip abroad, start a rumor that smugglers are using the lifeboats, and thus insure minute inspection.

A republic isn't ungrateful. It waits until a great man is dead before naming that kind of cigar for him.

Crazy Transfer Rules.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The list of "Washington funny ways," enumerated by your correspondent, Mr. Henderson, yesterday, could be lengthened indefinitely. One of the things that irritates me most is the transfer system of our street railways. Up to 1914 these transfers were all that were to be desired. Then an "expert" was consulted, and what he did was "quite a sufficiency" in confounding what was never confused. Lack of space prevents a complete enumeration of the muddled mess; but let us take only two or three examples.

At Fifteenth street, transferring to Georgetown or the Southeast, we must walk a full square and a half to take the car to which we wish to transfer.

At Ninth and F streets, although we come to a full stop on reaching Ninth street, we must be carried on to Eighth street, before being allowed to alight; thence to walk back to Ninth street.

At the Peace Monument we are carried a full square beyond the place at which we are to take the car to which we transfer, and at U and Fourteenth streets we need a blue print to tell us where to stand to take a car going south or east, as the case may be.

Let us add to the litany:

From the folly of the experts,
Good Lord, deliver us.

H. L. B. A.

Effects of Nonreappertionment.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your clarifying editorial, "Reapportionment," in your issue of Sunday, January 6, you most clearly show the danger that lies in the neglect to provide constitutional representation in the Congress.

This representation is composite, made up of the representations of the peoples of the several sovereign States, in the Senate, combined with the representation of the people of the United States in the House; each kind of representation, for each kind of people, being totally different from the other.

The constitutional representation of the peoples of the several States consists of two senators for each State, whether the population of a State be forty hundred or forty million.

The constitutional representation of the people of the United States consists of representation apportioned to the several States, strictly in accordance with the populations of the several States, as shown by the census.

This is the only way in which the people of the United States can be represented in the Congress.

As you so clearly point out, in your discussion of reapportionment, there is no such constitutional representation.

Therefore, there can be no constitutional Congress and no constitutional representative United States.

There is an intimate and rather interesting connection between the unconstitutional Congress, every act of which may be found null and void by the Supreme Court and the unconstitutional electoral college.

Constitutional congressional representation, as you show, determines the number of constitutional presidential electors from each State. Incidentally, it determines the value, in presidential elections, of the vote of a citizen of one State as compared with the value of the vote of another citizen in another State; for example, in the last November elections the vote of a citizen of Arizona had nearly three times the electoral power of the vote of a citizen of New York.

This ratio between the electoral powers of votes in the different States is accurately and definitely determined by the Constitution.

As there was no constitutional representation and consequently no constitutional Congress, by no possibility could there be any constitutional presidential electors elected last November.

When the presiding officer of the joint session of Senate and House, on the 13th of February next, opens the certificates of the voting of the so-called presidential electors, in the several States, he can not declare Mr. Hoover formally elected President of the United States, because a President of that Nation can be selected only by the method laid down in the Constitution.

It may be declared that Mr. Hoover has been formally elected by us the people as de facto president of something, perhaps of the de facto nation with a de facto government occupying the territory of what was the United States.

In regard to this matter of the legality of Mr. Hoover's election and the office to which he has been elected by us the people, I have stated to a half dozen or more prominent constitutional lawyers that I have proved to my own great dissatisfaction what I hate to believe and have asked them to show me the surds in what would appear to be a clear reductio ad absurdum. Not one of them will tell me that Mr. Hoover has been legally elected President of the United States.

THE GREAT FLU GERM ROBBERY

"LONDON, Jan. 5.—Scotland Yard today speeded up its hunt for the thief or thieves who stole culture tubes containing millions of influenza germs from the automobile of Dr. W. M. Grofton, bacteriologist. Disastrous results are feared if the germs are released."—News item.

Dablyn Crymes, the Great Detective, took up an investigation into the Mystery of the Stolen Flu Germs or London's Great Sneeze Conspiracy as soon as he heard the details. He reports that behind the theft is one of the most amazing plots in the history of crime and bacteria. In both England and the United States there is a gigantic "Germ Ring," declares the detective, which makes it a business to steal influenza bacilli and dispose of them at a price.

Dablyn says that the gang is headed by three desperate characters known as Eddie ("Epidemic") Goggins, Max ("The Plague") Schnellitz and a third crook known on both continents as "The Big Sneeze."

"These crooks dispose of the germs through a 'fence,'" charges the Great Detective. "The 'fence' has agents in many big cities who sell the germs for enormous sums to another ring composed of men with big interests in the gargle, lozenge, cough drops, handkerchief, antiseptic spray and aspirin tablet industries."

Mr. Crymes also states that there are thousands of quack doctors, masseurs and woolen underwear, hot-water bottle and electric pad manufacturers in the Germ Ring.

"It wouldn't surprise me to find that many public health officers were in the plot, too," argues Mr. Crymes. "The way they issue bulletins and warnings to frighten the public into influenza or something worse looks suspicious to me. Even a man who had no symptoms of influenza would develop them after reading these daily bulletins."

His investigation up to 10:45 this morning convinced Dablyn Crymes that the London robbery was but a trivial incident and that hundreds of larger germ robberies are being committed daily. More than a billion particularly desperate flu germs (all second offenders) were stolen from the beard of a respectable citizen in New York's East Side subway yesterday afternoon, he reports.

"Not a germ is safe," said Mr. Crymes today, issuing the following warnings to the public until the danger passes:

1. Watch your influenza germs.
2. Do not leave them unguarded at home.
3. Do not expose them in public places.
4. When you leave the house without taking your germs with you, do not lower the shades. Lowered shades are a sign to crooks that the house is unoccupied.

AIR INSURANCE.

Increase in the safety of travel by air has been so rapid since 1922 that aviation insurance rates have been reduced by 40 per cent, says Freeman Lincoln in World's Work. Seventy out of every 100 airplane accidents today are caused by pilots' mistakes, according to one underwriter; Co' Lindbergh places the figure as high as 80. Capt. Carranza, the "Mexican Lindbergh," was insured for $100,000 on his first flight from Mexico City to Washington, but was completely unprotected when he crashed to death on his return trip.

"The condition of his plane, his proposed route and his preparations for the northern flight justified the insurers in protecting him for $75,000 and the plane for an additional $25,000," says Lincoln. "But for his return trip Capt. Carranza was not so well prepared. He had, moreover, ambitions to better Lindbergh's record in time, and for that reason was determined to make a nonstop flight instead of breaking the journey at 500-mile intervals. He decided also to attempt to bridge the Gulf of Mexico in place of following the course along the shore. His application for insurance was denied."

Severe Case of Eczema Lasted Two Years. Healed by Cuticura.

"My mother had a severe case of eczema which affected the whole of her body. It broke out in a rash and itched something terrible. When she scratched it more eruptions would appear, and her clothing aggravated it. The irritation prevented her from sleeping. The trouble lasted about two years.

"She tried other remedies but with no results. She began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and got relief, and after using five boxes of the Cuticura Ointment, with the Cuticura Soap, she was healed." (Signed) Miss Mary Brown, Lorely, Maryland.

Tying Girl to Tree Is 'Game,' Says Man

Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—It was just a game when he danced around Mrs. Margaret Smith, 22, with a hatchet after her clothes had been removed and she was tied to a tree near Highland Park, David Ackerman, 41, landscape gardener, testified in Circuit Court here today.

Ackerman is charged with attacking the young woman, a Chicago model, who testified the accused had engaged her to pose for pictures, representing himself as a commercial photographer.

Ackerman admitted he had used nine names at various times, besides the title "professor." He was arrested when he advertised for an assistant several months after he left Mrs. Smith tied to a tree.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.

Washington, Tuesday, Jan. 8—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia, Increasing cloudiness and warmer Wednesday; Thursday rain and warmer; gentle to moderate southwest and south winds.

For Maryland, mostly cloudy and warmer, possibly light local snows in the mountains, Wednesday; Thursday rain and warmer; moderate winds, mostly southwest and south.

For Virginia, increasing cloudiness and warmer Wednesday; Thursday rain and warmer in east portions and colder Thursday afternoon in west portions; gentle to moderate southerly winds, becoming fresh Thursday.

Pressure remains abnormally low over Greenland and the Hudson Straits region, Port Burwell, 29.20 inches. The disturbance that was central over northern Manitoba Monday night has moved rapidly east-southeastward to western Quebec, Doucet, 29.76 inches. Another disturbance has moved rapidly northeastward over British Columbia, Alberta and North Dakota, Williston, 29.68 inches, and pressure is falling quite rapidly southward over the Plains States, the southern Rocky Mountain region, and Texas, Flagstaff, Ariz., 29.86 inches. These disturbances have been attended by rain within the last 24 hours in southern Texas and southern Arizona, and by light snow in the lake region, the extreme upper Mississippi Valley, the Canadian Northwest, and Montana. High pressure prevails over most sections east of the Mississippi River, Wilmington, N. C., 30.46 inches, and from the mouth of the Mackenzie River southeastward to western Ontario, Fort Simpson, B. N. T., 30.36 inches, and from British Columbia southeastward to Nevada and Utah, Prince Rupert, B. C., 30.42 inches. The temperature has fallen along the Atlantic Coast and in the Canadian Northwest provinces, while there has been a reaction to much higher temperature from the Plains States eastward to Ohio and Michigan.

There will be much cloudiness over the States east of the Mississippi River during the next two days, and there will be snow, probably changing to rain, from the lower lake region eastward to the New England coast, and rain in the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic States, within the next 36 to 48 hours. The weather will remain fair Wednesday, however, in the Middle Atlantic and South Atlantic States. The temperature will rise Wednesday quite generally east of the Mississippi River, and in the Atlantic States during Thursday, but colder weather will again overspread the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, Tennessee, and portions of the South Atlantic States during Thursday.

FLU SWEEPS NATION

Prominent Government Health Authorities Now State Total Number of Cases Has Reached 1,250,000

Precautions Necessary to Prevent Further Spread of Disease

Situation Is Serious, But Disease Can Be Checked at the Start.

More than half of the expenditures of the hospitals of the country are going toward combating the effects of the common cold. It is estimated that 90% of the deaths among children is due to colds.

Practically all colds are contracted through germs that enter the human system by way of the nose and throat, where they multiply quickly unless checked immediately.

Science Rushes Relief.

A new formula has been perfected for use at the point of infection in the nose and throat. Doctors, nurses and hospitals are being supplied with it. A supply has been rushed to all druggists in Washington. You can now obtain this new product of science—Menth-Ol-Pine which gives instant relief from colds. Menth-Ol-Pine checks colds at their source before they become serious.

A Splendid Preventive.

According to local authorities the peak of the "flu" epidemic is due in Washington this month. In the face of this danger everyone should keep Menth-Ol-Pine on hand and use it constantly. Used daily it is a most effective preventive from cold infection. Already over 50,000 packages have been used in Washington. Telephone your druggist now for a package of this new formula—Menth-Ol-Pine—and start using it tonight.

BOLLING FIELD FIRE DESTROYS BUILDING

SOLDIERS FIGHT FLAMES

Barracks No. 2C, four adjacent garages and an automobile belonging to Private James Baker, of the Air Corps, were destroyed by a fire of unknown origin at Bolling Field yesterday, causing damage estimated at $10,000.

Capts. C. A. Schwarzwaelder, John J. Devery and H. A. Dinger form a board of investigation to determine the cause of the fire, which originated in the boiler room of the barracks and is believed to have been the result of an overheated flue.

Fortune in Planes in Danger.

Fanned by a high wind, the blaze spread rapidly, destroying bedding and clothing of 40 soldiers living in the barracks and keeping the field fire truck and engines from the city busy to prevent it from reaching nearby hangars, where millions of dollars' worth of planes were housed.

Soldiers made desperate efforts to save their personal belongings from the burning building, but for the most part were unsuccessful.

Private Stanley Warren, driver of the field fire truck, saved the vehicle from destruction by the fire. It had been attached to a hydrant in front of the burning building and was pumping water on the blaze when a changing wind drove the flames in the truck's direction.

Drives Truck From Flames.

Receiving orders to bring it out of danger, Private Warren drove it through the smoke and fire to safety.

The destroyed structures were temporary ones, a number of which have burned during the past several years. The present appropriation bill before Congress contains a provision for permanent fire-proof barracks at the field.

Funds to be used in one of these buildings have been provided, but after a survey its projected site was rejected, because of the marshy condition of the ground. Another site has not yet been selected.

RUINS OF WAR-TIME BARRACKS AFTER BLAZE

Practically nothing but kindling wood, and not a good grade of that, is all that remains of the enlisted men's barracks at Bolling Field, where fire caused $10,000 damage yesterday morning.

District Asks Cash For Trash Disposal

$395,000 Asked at Once to Provide Pair of New Incinerators.

Construction of a new trash disposal system for the District is authorized in a bill sent to the Budget Bureau yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The measure provides an immediate appropriation of $395,000 and the total cost of the new system will be $902,000. District officials are confident of the approval of the Budget Bureau for the plan and are hopeful that it will be enacted at the present session of Congress.

Two new incinerators are to be built, one east of the gas plant on the Anacostia River and the other at the foot of Thirty-fourth street in Georgetown. Construction of a new road running back of Bolling Field to Blue Plains is a part of the plan. The road will follow the river level and avoid the hills traversed by existing roads through Anacostia. It will be used by trucks hauling the residue from the eastern incinerator to be dumped into a shallow bay which eventually will be reclaimed land.

Telegraph Night Letter Service to Go Overseas

The Western Union Telegraph Company announced yesterday that effective January 14 its 50-word night letter service will be extended overseas to its offices in London, Liverpool, Birmingham, Bristol, Bradford, Manchester, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Southampton, Dundee, Edinburgh, Glasgow and Belfast.

This cable night letter, it was said, will supplement the week-end cable letter and the regular cable letter and is two cents per word cheaper than the latter.

RONGETTI, ON TRIAL, DENIES KILLING GIRL

ADDS HE AIDED FAMILY

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Dr. Amante Rongetti, charged with the murder of Miss Loretta Enders, 19, by an illegal operation, testified today that he had performed no such operation and charged a former coroner's physician with an attempt to extort money from him in connection with the girl's death.

It was Dr. Rongetti's first appearance on the stand in his two trials for the girl's murder. He did not testify in the first trial in which he was convicted and sentenced to death, but later granted a new trial by the Supreme Court.

Dr. Rongetti took the stand after the State had made a request that one of his principal witnesses be arrested on a perjury charge. The court ordered her taken into custody.

Woman Accused of Perjury.

The prosecution said she was Miss Martha Linquist and that she appeared as a witness today under the name of Miss Ebba Lou Linquist, a sister, formerly employed by Dr. Rongetti in his Ashland Boulevard Hospital, closed after the Enders girl's death. The woman under cross-examination said she had been married in Pittsburgh and her name at present was Mrs. Ebba Linquist Carter, of Leechburg, Pa.

Dr. Rongetti, who has been in jail for more than a year, appeared nervous and ill at ease as he submitted to direct examination, fidgeting about in the witness chair and asking that questions be repeated. He said that a man whom he believed to be the husband of the Enders girl asked to admit her to his hospital for examination in November of 1927.

Tried to Save Girl.

While a patient there, Dr. Rongetti said, the girl gave birth to a baby. He made every effort to save her life, he testified, and performed a slight operation after the baby's birth, but none previously. When the girl died, he said he gave her family $150 to help defray funeral expenses because they told him they were poor people and he felt sorry for them.

Dr. Samuel Epstein, former coroner's physician, Dr. Rongetti said, visited him the day after the girl's death and said he had made an examination and that she had died of an illegal operation, demanding $1,500. Dr. Rongetti said he refused the money and that Dr. Epstein again asked him for this sum later to "fix things up." Dr. Rongetti said the girl had died of peritonitis and blood poisoning.

Italian Avalanche Kills 2; Another Is Injured

Verghereto, Italy, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—An avalanche last night killed two persons and injured another in the village of Pereto, near here.

Two houses were demolished and the inhabitants of the village were terror-stricken.

Rev. Eveler's Son Held in Blackmail

Capital Pastor at First Asks Stern Punishment, but Later Urges Mercy.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A minister's plea that his son be sent to prison for attempted blackmail was changed to a plea for mercy today when Robert Eveler, 17, son of the Rev. George A. Eveler, of Washington, D. C., was arraigned on a charge of attempting extortion.

When young Eveler was arrested December 18 after he had sent several threatening letters to his employer, the Rev. Mr. Eveler recommended stern punishment for his son, saying the youth had been in trouble before. The father later asked that the youth only be sent to a reform school for six months. His last message to police, however, requested that his son be sent home.

The youth's case today was continued until January 23 by Judge William Helander, who ordered him sent to the psychopathic hospital for examination.

JUGOSLAV MILITARY RULERS DRAFT LAWS

Fewer Officials and More Honesty Is Aim; Large Public Works Next.

Belgrade, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—A special edition of Vreme (the Times) tonight contained announcement that the new military government of Jugoslavia will remain in office for a long time, or until all of the contemplated widespread reforms are effected.

The number of cabinet portfolios will be reduced to nine in order to effect economies. Almost all of the present major laws will be redrafted and virtually an entire new state will be created.

All state organizations will be completely reorganized. Thousands of unnecessary government employes will be dismissed without pensions, and the resulting savings will be applied to the salaries of civil servants to raise their positions above graft and corruption.

Special attention will be given to developing backward areas throughout the country. Large new public works will be inaugurated. The district governors will be held strictly responsible for the work of their subordinates. The motto of the government will be "Work, Order, Honesty." It will deal with the corrupt practices with an iron hand.

Special commissions, including the best experts available, will be formed to draw up new laws and ordinances as needed by the various provinces.

Dr. Spaho, a Moslem leader, was summoned to the capital today. It is expected that he will be made minister of trade as a concession to the Mohammedan element of the country.

A new supreme court is being created, which will deal with offenses under the new defense of the realm act. There will be no appeal from its decisions. Laws promulgated tonight bring all law courts under direct control of the government. The state finance control committee has been converted into a body of experts, working under the king, to prepare and carry out the budget.

AUDIENCE PLEASED BY PRAGUE CHORUS

VISIT PRESS CLUB TODAY

Washington music lovers heard the Prague Teachers Chorus last night in a concert in the chamber music auditorium of the Library of Congress, given under auspices of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation. Members of the chorus will be guests of the National Press Club at luncheon today after being received by President Coolidge.

This renowned chorus, which is in America for several months, was directed by its conductor in chief, Metod Dolzeil, known as the "Toscannini of Choral Music." It is composed of 50 of the leading men teachers in the public schools of Prague, Czechoslovakia, and was founded 25 years ago. Its excellent work in choral singing has won it an enviable reputation all over Europe. None of the singers receives any remuneration for his services.

The chorus presented in its program last night compositions of modern native composers and also folk songs and ancient chorales. Among the composers whose works were presented were Dvorak, who has become widely known in this country through his New World symphony, Smetana and Janacek.

M. Dolzeil conducted entirely from memory and the fine effects he achieved by quiet motions of the hand or a nod of the head were remarkable. The chorus sang a capella with absolute pitch. The general effect was that of a great human organ on which the conductor played at will, developing a variety of human emotions in the songs. There was a refinement in the ensemble work and yet a vigor which was refreshing. The incidental solos were well done and the phrasing was artistic and at times novel.

The audience was generous with applause and seemed to particularly like "Song of the Sea," two rousing numbers by Dvorak, and "On the Field Path," all of which were rendered with fine expression.

Jenny Dolly, Dancer, Victim of Appendicitis

Paris, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Jenny Dolly, one of the noted American dancing sisters, may escape the operation for appendicitis which was announced last night as having been set for tomorrow.

She was to have entered a private clinic at 8 p. m., but the doctors decided to wait another 12 hours to see if the case would yield to treatment.

PHILHARMONIC GIVES WORKS FINE READING

Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Hoover Attend Concert Conducted by Noted Leader.

BACH "SINFONIA" PLAYED

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Herbert Hoover headed the representative audience which greeted enthusiastically the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra of New York at its concert at the New National Theater yesterday. Willem Mengelberg, the renowned Dutch leader, was the conductor.

The concert was given under the local management of T. Arthur Smith. A comprehensive program had been arranged by Herr Mengelberg and it featured three great composers, J. S. Bach, Mozart and Beethoven. It was admirably opened by the performance of the "Sinfonia in B flat major," by Bach, in which the conductor's quiet but forceful leadership developed many unusual beauties. Its three movements were played without pause. The genius of Bach is evident in every measure of the "Sinfonia" and in the allegro movement, which foreshadows his later use of the classic sonata form, the orchestral effects were brought out with a nicety of tone quality. In the andante movement the fine work of the oboe and strings was particularly noticeable.

The dainty themes of Mozart received good treatment at the hands of the symphony orchestra yesterday. To play Mozart well requires complete sympathy and understanding of the nobility and ethereal elements of his instrumental songs without words, as many of them are, beyond doubt. In the "Symphony in E Flat," by Mozart, Herr Mengelberg conducted with such meticulous care and skill yesterday that the audence was most appreciative of the exquisite rendition of the well known "menuetto" movement as well as the beautiful "andante con moto" with the delightful music of the strings again uppermost, while the finale was well handled.

Beethoven's much-discussed Seventh Symphony was the final and most elaborate number of the program. This beautiful classic has seldom been as well played, in Washington, at least, as it was yesterday.

There was no overemphasis; the phrasing was of a satisfactory nature, and the ensemble tone as well as the solo work were outstandingly well done.

The four movements, while each of individual distinction, were played with a uniformity of merit which spoke volumes for the fine training and cooperative powers of the orchestra. There were no weak spots, with sudden bursts of excellence, which too often mar an orchestral performance.

The next concert of the orchestra here will be awaited with keen interest because of the success of yesterday's performance.

John Hertz Gets Out Of Yellow Cab Office

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The board of directors of the Yellow Cab Co. has announced that it had accepted the resignation of John Hertz, chairman of the board and president. Hertz, who was one of the founders of the company, at the same time announced that he had sold his entire interest in the business save 14,000 shares which he gave to 60 employes who started in business with him. Hertz will retire to private life.

Charles C. McCulloch, president of the Parmlee Transfer Co., has purchased the majority of Hertz's interest and was elected chairman of the board to succeed Hertz.

Mackay Is Named Head Of North American Co.

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Clarence H. Mackay, president of the Postal Telegraph & Cable Co. and of the Mackay system of telegraph and cable companies, was elected president of the North American Telegraph Co. at the annual meeting of directors of the latter corporation here today. He succeeds the late William Henry Eustis, of Minneapolis.

MAIL FLIERS OFF TODAY

Miami, Fla., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Zooming service planes today closed the All-American air meet celebrating the inauguration tomorrow of air mail service to Porto Rico. Tonight Postmaster General New, here to dedicate the new Pan-American mail route, spoke to Miamians and their winter visitors in Bay Front Park.

William P. MacCracken, jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce in charge of aviation, told of the growth of commercial aviation in the United States and praised this city for its selection as the hub for Pan-American aerial traffic. He predicted inauguration of mail service will bring a favorable development in the commercial relations between the two continents.

Other speakers were W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, and Col. John A. Hambleton, vice president of the Pan-American Airways, Inc.

Among those on the speakers' platform were Amelia Earhart, Lady Mary Heath, British aviatrix; Lieut. Lester Maitland, San Francisco-Hawaii flier; Lieut. Al Williams, crack Navy pilot; William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, Detroit-to-Tokyo fliers; George Haldeman, pilot for Ruth Elder's attempted transatlantic hop; Maj. B. H. Brainard, in charge of Marine Corps aviation, and a score of prominent Army, Navy and Marine aviators.

A low ceiling hampered the various racing events. Lady Heath was forced to withdraw from events this afternoon by engine trouble.

Amelia Earhart announced she will fly to Havana, Cuba, tomorrow, as guest of the Pan-American Airways. She planned to return to Miami during the day and will not return to New York before Monday.

KING IS UNCHANGED, SAYS BRIEF BULLETIN

Renewed Activities of Royal Family Are Regarded as Reassuring.

REPORTS ARE CUT DOWN

London, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Another stereotyped medical bulletin on the condition of King George was issued at Buckingham Palace tonight. It was signed by Sir Stanley Hewett and Lord Dawson of Penn, and, although it was the first announcement in 24 hours, it said only this:

"The king had a quiet day, and the condition of his majesty is unchanged. No further bulletin will be issued until tomorrow night."

The public showed a distinct decrease in interest in the case today, and is beginning to adopt the view that so long as "no change" is recorded there is no occasion for anxiety.

The general confidence has been reflected in all movements of the royal family. They are going about their regular lives again except that additional duties have evolved upon the Prince of Wales. Among other indications of the calm in the household was the announcement today that if the king's improvement is not retarded the prince will adhere to original plans for the entertainment of former President Alvear of Argentina and his wife when they arrive from Buenos Aires next week.

CITY'S BANKS ELECT NEW DIRECTORATES

PARK SAVINGS ADDS SIX

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Stockholders of 23 national banks, trust companies and savings institutions of this city yesterday added a total of 22 new members to their respective boards of directors, at annual meetings. Of the institutions holding elections ten made no changes in their directorates.

The broadest expansion developed in the board of the Park Savings Bank, shareholders of that institution electing six new directors. They were: Peter M. Dorsch, prominent Washington baker; G. W. Forsberg, president of the Forsberg Machine Works; Claude W. Owen, president of E. G. Schafer & Co., Inc.; R. L. W. Owens, president of the Owens Motor Co., Inc.; Norman W. Oyster, president of the Norman W. Oyster Co., Inc.; and Maurice Schlosberg, merchant.

The Federal-American National Bank increased the size of its board to 89, by the addition of four men eminent in Washington's scientific and professional circles. Charles G. Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, was elected a director, as were Dr. Charles Stanley White, surgeon of national repute; Wilton J. Lambert, attorney; and Francis R. Weller, engineer.

Two new directors were elected at the Franklin National Bank, Charles M. Schneider, owner of Schneider's Restaurant, and Herbert Guggenheim, wholesaler. The Seventh Street Savings Bank also made two additions to its board, W. Elmer Bacon and Thomas S. Sergeon.

Shareholders of the Union Trust Co. elected Edward L. Hillyer a director. Mr. Hillyer, who is a vice president of the bank, is now critically ill, and has been absent from the institution more than a month.

Other banks electing a single director were the McLachlen Banking Corporation, which named William Barron Kerkam, of Cameron, Kerkam & Sutton, patent attorneys; Second National, which elevated W. W. Marlow, cashier; National Capital Bank, which elected Charles B. Stewart; National Metropolitan, which named Charles H. Johnson; Washington Loan & Trust Co., A. Chambers Oliphant, engineer; Liberty National Bank, M. F. Calnan, cashier, and Prudential, J. H. Green.

S.S.S. and Rheumatism
Simply don't get along together

ARE you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.?

S.S.S. is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

For more than 100 years S.S.S. has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

All drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Get the larger size. It is more economical.

"After suffering several years, six bottles of S.S.S. completely relieved me of rheumatism. It also cleared up a skin eruption and gave me a good appetite. I think S.S.S. is a wonderful medicine."
R. L. Busic,
Southern Railway,
Knoxville, Tenn.

"I was very nervous, had hardly any appetite, and suffered with rheumatism. I tried many medicines, but S.S.S. is the one that did me the most good. I am now well, and feel like a new man."

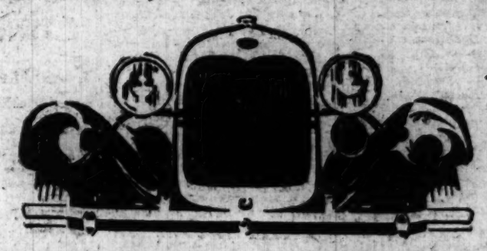
Builds Sturdy Health

Simplicity of cooling system is a feature of the new Ford



A COMPLETE water plant is a part of every automobile as it is a part of every modern city.

The purpose of this water plant is to keep the engine cooled to a temperature that will make it efficient in operation. If it were not for this, the cylinder walls would overheat and the pistons would refuse to operate.

The cooling system of the new Ford is particularly interesting because it is so simple and reliable.

When the radiator is full of water, the engine of the new Ford will not overheat under the hardest driving. Yet the action of the water is so regulated that it will not impair engine operation by running too cold in winter.

The cooling surface of the Ford radiator is large and there are four rows of tubes, set in staggered position so that each receives the full benefit of the incoming air.

The fan is of the airplane-propeller type and draws air through the radiator at the rapid rate of 850 cubic feet per minute at 1000 revolutions per minute of the motor.

The hot water around the cylinder-head is drawn to the radiator to be cooled by a centrifugal water pump of new design.

The entire cooling system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little attention.

The radiator should be kept full of water, of course, and drained once each month so that sediment will not collect and retard the free passage of water. In cold weather a reliable anti-freeze solution should be added.

As owner and manager of this important water plant, you should also see that the water pump and fan shaft are properly lubricated and the packing around the pump shaft kept in adjustment.

The hose connections may also need replacement after long, continuous service. For those little adjustments, it pays to call on the Ford dealer.

He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to do a competent job at a fair price.

Bridge Play By Experts Is Explained

Surprise Expressed as Whitehead, Dealer, Opens Bidding With One Diamond, Justified by Hand Above Average.

The radio bridge game, broadcast at 4:30 yesterday afternoon from Station WRC, brought together two of Pennsylvania's Bridge stars, George M. Hosack, of Pittsburgh, and R. E. Needham, of Greenville, with Mr. Work and Mr. Whitehead.

The hands were: Mr. Whitehead, Dealer, South: Spades, Q, 10, 2; Hearts, 9, 2; Diamonds, A, Q, 9, 3, 2; Clubs, K, 7, 3. Mr. Work, West: Spades, 8, 6, 4; Hearts, J, 10, 4; Diamonds, K, 8, 4; Clubs, Q, 10, 8, 4. Mr. Hosack, North: Spades, K, J, 7, 5; Hearts, A, K, 3; Diamonds, J, 10, 6; Clubs, A, 9, 2. Mr. Needham, East: Spades, A, 9, 3; Hearts, Q, 8, 7, 6, 5; Diamonds, 7, 5,; Clubs, J, 6, 5.

Mr. Whitehead, Dealer, doubtless surprised many of his hearers by opening the bidding with one Diamond. It is true that his hand did not contain two quick tricks in the shape of Aces or King-Queens; but it had more than the equivalent of two quick tricks because its Ace-Queen of Diamonds plus the King of Clubs make a combination which, in the long run, will average to yield better than two tricks—even without the assistance of the Queen-Ten and another Spade. The Diamond bid was decidedly preferable to a No Trump because of the worthless doubleton in Hearts and the fact that the Spade suit was not surely stopped. Moreover, Mr. Whitehead was practically sure that he would have a further opportunity to bid, as initial Minor bids of one seldom are left in.

Mr. Work, West, passed, and Mr. Hosack, North, said one No Trump, the obviously correct bid. East, South and West passed, and North became the Declarer with his contract one No Trump. Mr. Needham, East, had the opening lead, for which he chose the 6 of Hearts, the fourth best of his longest suit.

Mr. Whitehead, South, spread his hand for Dummy, and Mr. Hosack, Declarer, played from it the 2 of Hearts. Mr. Work, West, played the 10, the lower of his two cards in sequence. Had he played the Jack he would have denied holding the 10. Declarer, North, won with the King of Hearts.

Studying the hand before leading to the next trick, Declarer noted that a successful finesse in Diamonds would give him five Diamond tricks, which, with two sure tricks in Hearts and two in Clubs, would produce game. But, if the Diamond finesse failed, he would be one trick short. Moreover, if he tried the Diamond finesse at once and Mr. Work, West, should win with the King, Mr. Work could return his partner's Heart and establish the suit, or at least establish it on the next round should Mr. Hosack, Declarer, hold off.

Then, if Mr. Needham, East, held the Ace of Spades, he could get in with that card and run off his remaining Hearts. If Mr. Needham's original Heart holding were five, he could take three Heart tricks, which, with the Ace of Spades and King of Diamonds, would stop game.

Mr. Hosack, Declarer, therefore saw that he must take out Mr. Needham's possible Ace of Spades reentry before attempting the Diamond finesse. This would also establish Declarer's Spades. Subsequently the Diamond finesse could be taken with safety, if Mr. Work, West, were meanwhile exhausted of Hearts; for Mr. Needham, East, could not then be put in to make his established suit. Of course, if Mr. Work, West, originally held four Hearts, he could put his partner in; but in that case Mr. Needham, East, could have held only four originally, and could take but two Heart tricks—not sufficient to stop Declarer's game.

Accordingly, at trick 2, Mr. Hosack, Declarer, led the 5 of Spades. Mr. Needham, East, played the 3; Dummy, the 10; Mr. Work, West, the 4. Dummy returned the Queen of Spades; Mr. Work played the 6; Declarer the 7; and Mr. Needham, East, the Ace. While reluctant to give up his entry, Mr. Needham saw he could gain nothing by holding off longer.

Mr. Needham then led the 5 of Hearts to his partner's marked Jack. Dummy played the 9; Mr. Work the Jack; Declarer the 3, holding off to exhaust Mr. Work of Hearts, if possible. Mr. Work continued Hearts, leading the 4; Declarer played the Ace; Mr. Needham the 7; and Dummy discarded the 3 of Clubs.

Mr. Hosack, Declarer, then led the King of Spades; Mr. Needham, East, played the 9; Dummy the 2; Mr. Work the 8. Mr. Hosack continued with the Jack of Spades; Mr. Needham discarded the 5 of Diamonds; Dummy the 2 of Diamonds; Mr. Work the 4 of Diamonds.

Declarer was then ready for the Diamond finesse. He led the Jack of Diamonds; Mr. Needham, East, played the 7; Dummy, South, the 3; Mr. Work, West, won with the King. Since he could not lead his partner's Hearts, Mr. Work led the 4 of Clubs, in the faint hope of finding his partner with that Ace. Declarer played the 2 of Clubs; Mr. Needham the Jack, Dummy the King.

Dummy led the 7 of Clubs; Mr. Work played the 8; Declarer the Ace; Mr. Needham the 5. Dummy's three Diamonds won the last three tricks. Having limited the adversaries to one trick in Spades, one in Hearts, and one in Diamonds, Mr. Hosack, Declarer, scored four odd at No Trump, 40 trick points, and 30 honor points for three Aces.

The play of this hand would be the same both at Auction and at Contract Bridge. The principle involved is an important one, and only too easy to overlook. An entry, in what is called the danger hand, should be removed before the long suit of that hand has been established, whenever it is possible to extract it in time.

In this hand, a thoughtless Declarer, winning the first trick and seeing that he is sure to make two Clubs, two Hearts, four Diamonds if the finesse lose, five if it win, and, after the adverse Ace is taken out, three Spades, is liable to overlook the fact that if West holds the King of Diamonds Declarer's finesse will lose, and then Hearts will be led. North's Ace of Hearths, which blocks the adverse Hearts, will be taken out and, without using his Spades, Declarer will be one trick short of game. In that situation, if the Ace of Spades be held by East, game will be lost.

But by leading a Spade first, the menace of the possibility that the Ace may be in the danger hand will be removed; and it will not matter where the two adverse high cards are, or what the distribution of the Hearts may be, game is assured. The principle involved in this play should be in the mind of every Declarer when he is planning his campaign for a No Trump hand.

In bidding this hand at Contract, Mr. Work advocates the bidding of one Diamond by Dealer, as opposed to the school of bidding which does not believe in opening the bid at Contract on anything but an exceptionally strong hand.

In Contract the Dealer would not think of bidding one No Trump. The worthless doubleton in Hearts would be a menace, but not necessarily a bar; but that weakness, coupled with a Spade suit not surely stopped puts the No Trump outside consideration. Furthermore, the hand figures up to only 11 on the basis of counting Ace 4, King 3, Queen 2 and Jack 1; and while there are some 11s that a Dealer will bid in Auction Bridge, he should have 12 count of 13 to justify a conservative No Trump in Contract.

Playing Contract, North would jump at once to three No Trumps after South's Diamond and West's pass. He has help for South's Diamonds and has the three other suits all stopped. With every suit taken care of and a hand which counts 16, North is amply justified in bidding for game.

Part of Mozart's Opera Will Be Broadcast at 10 P. M.—Whispering Tenor at 9:30—Brenon, Movie Director, 10:30.

A portion of Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro," presented by the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will be broadcast through Stations WJZ, WBAL and WLW direct from the stage of the Auditorium Theater, Chicago, at 10 o'clock tonight.

The opera, which will be sung in Italian, was taken from the comedy by Beaumarchais. The cast will include Virgilio Lazzari as Figaro; Richard Bonelli as Count Alma Viva; Eva Turner as Countess Alma Viva; Edith Mason as Susanna; Marion Claire as Cherubino; Maria Claessens as Marcellina; Vittorio Trevision as Don Bartolo; Jose Mojica as Don Basilo; Eugenio Sandrini as Antonio; Lucille Meusel as Barbina, and Giuseppe Cavadore as Don Gurzio. Roberto Moranzoni will conduct.

"Figaro," ensemble; "I Like You as You Are," from "Rainbow," Olive Palmer and Paul Oliver, duet; "Doin' Things," Speciality Orchestra; "Sonny Boy," the Revelers; Mad Scene from "Hamlet," Olive Palmer; "Blue Danube Waltz," Symphony Orchestra; "Eleanor," Paul Oliver; "Oh That We Two Were Maying," Olive Palmer and contraltol; "By the Mill," wood-wind novelty; "Mah Lindy Lou," the Revelers; quartet from "Martha," ensemble; "I'm Bringing You a Red, Red Rose," from "Whoopee," orchestra; "I Saw Your Eyes," Paul Oliver; "Los Toros," Symphony Orchestra; "The Heart That's Free," Olive Palmer; "Slow River," the Revelers; "Hay Straw," Specialty Orchestra, and "Blue Grass," ensemble.

Compositions of Russian composers will be featured in the hour of Slumber Music at 11 o'clock from WRC:

"Cossack Revels," Tschaikowsky; ballet music from "Prince Igor," Borodine; "Kammenoi-Ostrow," Rubinstein; "Prelude in G Minor," Rachmaninoff; Suite, "Enchanted Lake," and Elegie from "Serenade," Tschaikowsky; "Minuet," Karganoff; "Meditation," Glazounow, and "Berceuse," Iljinsky.

Richard Crooks, tenor, will be the guest artist in the La Touraine concert at 7:30 o'clock from WEAF, New York; WEEI, Boston; WGY, Schenectady, and WWJ, Detroit. Mr. Crooks will sing Lehmann's "Ah, Moon of My Delight," "O Sole Mio" and an aria from "The Pearl Fishers."

Following the Merchants' Musical Half Hour, Station WJSV will broadcast an hour's concert by the U. S. Army Band at 7:30 o'clock this evening. The Manassas Trio, the Harmonious Twins, and Fran Trappe are other features of the evening.

Wagner in Bayreuth, at the opening of the festivities in his honor, will be the next musical episode at 8 o'clock tonight, via Station WMAL. Ann Lang will be featured in the Merrymakers' program at 8:30 o'clock.

Morton Downey, whispering tenor, will be the star of the La Palina Smoker at 9:30 o'clock. Chamber music will be featured in the Kolster Radio Hour at 10 o'clock. Usually chamber music is rendered by small groups of musicians, such as string quartets and quintets, but on this occasion the Kolster Concert Orchestra will play the group of selections by the old masters which will make up the program tonight.

Herbert Brenon, famous movie director, and a young movie star will air their views on the "talkies" in the Night Club Romances from WMAL at 10:30 o'clock tonight.

The Carolinians Dance Orchestra will be featured from WOL at 7 o'clock this evening, following which the station will remain silent until 10 o'clock, when the Wardman Park Dance Orchestra is put on the air.

Station WABC, New York, will broadcast the Majestic Radio Style Show from the Hotel Pennsylvania at 11 o'clock tonight, starring Belle Baker, the Two Black Crows, Florence Moore, Ruth Etting, Phil Baker, Maj. J. Andrew White and Henry Burbig. In addition, Arnold Johnson's orchestra, the Majestic Quartet and other features will round out the program.

New York, Jan. 8, 1929.

THROUGH a quaint old courtyard, with its lovely fountain—a charming old French home, in the heart of fashionable Paris—a tiny porch—and into the hallway of what appears to still be an aristocratic residence—this is the Maison Tollman. Almost nothing in sight to indicate that it is a couturiere's establishment.

We take a comfortable seat to await the return of Madame Tollman, who is not only the head of the house but the creator of the models shown.

One by one lithe mannequins parade before us, walking as only one who is a mannequin and a Parisienne can ning gowns. And what evening gowns! The touch of youthful charm, of rich fabrics, of aristocratic elegance, with a note of chic daring—small wonder that we forgot to be annoyed because we were going to be late for another appointment.

Family Interference.

HAVE friends and relatives any moral right to project themselves and their prejudices into the affairs of two people caught in the tide of life, and complicate their situation by aggravating the general tension? Why is it that we feel we must advise, lecture, berate and reproach those unfortunate enought to cross our path? Must we try to arrange the affairs of others? How much better is it to be helpfully serene, and considerately patient?

If you happen to be at the moment intent upon making some human miserable, read Pete's letter and desist.

Dear Miss McDonald: I am between two fires and nearly out of my mind as a result. Two years ago my wife and I separated, because I believed a most unjust story circulated regarding her.

Recently I discovered that there was not one word of truth in it. As I still adore her, I went to her begging her to return to me. After two tearful and devastating meetings she consented. I bought a house and furnished it, and then the relatives on both sides took charge.

Her people tell her that if I failed her when she needed me before, I will do so again, and am not worth having. They refuse ever to see either of us again if we remarry. She worships her people, who really are a fine lot of people and stood by her through all the disgrace I caused her in divorcing her.

On the other side, my mother and sisters still believe her guilty, will not investigate or listen to me, and tell me I am dead to them the day I go to live with her.

Is there no mercy in the human heart at all? What have we done to deserve this constant misery? What can we do to find peace? PETE.

Get married, of course! Why bother about the two camps of interfering trouble-makers? If the least spark of family love burned on either side, your relatives would be helping you to find the peace you crave. Interference in such an instance is not only criminal but downright inhuman. Be a man, Pete, and call the world well lost if you can right so terrible a wrong as you have done. Families like these are poisonous. Forget them.

Torn fragments of a manuscript found in a soda-pop bottle 10,000 years A. B. (after bustles):

"So she sent a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post, and when it came back to her containing an illustrated leaflet telling her eggzactly how to make eight costume slips she telephoned the yardstick department of her favorite department store—and from that day to this she has been known as the most soignee swanlike sylph in all the universe."

A friend wants to know if I really think it is helpful to a wrinkled neck to sleep without a pillow. She says she has been doing so for three months without any very evident results.

The answer is "Yes," but that this is a habit that should be established before one's neck wrinkles at all, or certainly before it wrinkles very deeply. Also you must not sleep on your side if you sleep without a pillow, but flat on your back, as do the Japanese women—primarily not to derange the coiffure! And then, too, one must massage the neck with tissue-building creams to plump it out and make the flesh under the wrinkles firm.

Frost and Ice.

WHITE frost makes a pretty sight when it covers a bush. It seems as though some magic painter had been along, with the purpose of making the bush look well in the morning sunlight.

A "close-up" of ice-flowers.

White frost forms when the air gets colder than the freezing point after a fall of dew. It is a pretty sight, but when it comes in early fall or late spring, the farmer does not like it; for frost can do damage to crops.

Silver frost is a kind of ice which forms on the branches of trees. It may cover every twig in the tree, and there is rare beauty when the sun or moon shines down.

Ice is lighter than water, and that is why it floats. Most things which become cold, also become heavier for each cubic foot. That is not true of water when it freezes. The reason is that the water turns into ice crystals, and air spaces are left between the crystals.

Another way of saying this is that water grows larger when it turns into ice. Have you ever noticed what happens to a pailful of water when it freezes? The ice comes up over the rim of the pail.

When a lake freezes, the ice forms at the surface first. The ice slowly becomes thicker, and it may go down to a depth of several feet. Be very careful when you walk on ice over a lake. Be sure that it is thick enough before you step on it—it is best to wait until the weather has been very cold for a week or two.

One of my younger brothers once fell through the ice of a lake. He could not get back, but another brother crawled to him and pulled him up over the side of the hole—to safety.

Salt water will freeze, but the air must be colder than the freezing point of fresh water. The Gulf Stream warms much of the water of the Atlantic and keeps it from freezing.

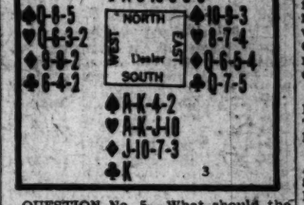
WORK ON BRIDGE

TODAY we give Deal B, the second in this week's series, and four questions.



QUESTION No. 5. What should the bidding be at Auction?

QUESTION No. 6. What should the bidding be at Contract?

QUESTION No. 7. What four cards should be played to trick 1?

THE ANSWERS.

5. At Auction the bidding would be: South on Heart, West pass, North one No Trump, which would obtain the contract.

6. At Contract the bidding would be: South one Heart, North two No Trumps, South three No Trumps; East and West passing each time.

At both games, because of the singleton King of Clubs, South would bid a four-card Heart suit with four honors in preference to No Trump. North would bid No Trump in preference to Clubs because his strength in Diamonds would be denied by a Club bid over South's Heart.

7. To trick 1, East should lead the Four Diamonds, South should play the Trey, West the Eight, and North the King.

8. To trick 2, North should lead the Ace of Clubs, East should play the Five, South the King, and West the Deuce. Declarer leads the Ace of Clubs and drops his Dummy's King so as to be able to continue his long Clubs and establish them while he has an entry left in his Closed Hand (the Ace of Diamonds). Played in this way North and South will make at least five Clubs, two diamonds, two Hearts and two Spades.

AN ANSWER TO JEAN C.

"I AM giving a party and would like to ask your advice. Am having about six couples, all old friends of mine. Would like to ask a young man I have known for some time, but have never gone out with, although I have been to several parties where he was to be my partner for the evening. Would that be proper, or would it appear too bold? And how would I go about asking him? Please answer soon as I am having the party next week."

I regret that though this letter is dated December 10 I can't answer it earlier in this column. A self-addressed stamped envelope is the only way to get a direct response. I hope Jean asked the young man and had a pleasant party. She might have telephoned to him, or she might have written him a note, something like this:

Dear Mr. Jones,

I am giving a very small dance for some of my friends on such and such a day, at such and such a place, at such and such a time. If you are not doing anything else, will you join us?

Sincerely yours,

JEAN C.

I am always a little at a loss to know how to give advice to young people whose customs are so different from those of my young people. For instance, here in New York, it would make no difference whether you had "gone out" with him or not, so long as you knew him reasonably well. Then, again, here there would be no parties (except perhaps a theater party) where a young man could be a girl's partner for the evening. The Eastern girl would feel she had had, and the boy had had, a hard time if they hadn't danced with lots of other boys and girls.

Skeeing and Skating Costume.

The ideal costume for skeeing and skating consists of a coat cut like a Russian blouse, with the fastening on one side and long trousers of heavy red serge. With it is worn cap, socks, &c., of a yellow green, which is most effective with the red.

Frocks of Tweed.

A stunning frock of blue tweed is equally at home in the city and in the country.

Pajamas for Children.

The Poinsettia Frock.

The frock of stiff oyster white taffeta, is particularly gay and charming when the skirt consists of three ruffles, each lined with red, and scalloped in deep curves. These ruffles are much deeper on one side than the other.

Red and White.

Skating gains an added charm if one is the lucky possessor of a heavy white jersey dress, with a red leather coat, wool muffler, socks, cap, &c.

Cleansing Tissues.

Cleansing tissues are decorative as well as useful if one chooses a delicate pastel shade to match the bathroom decorations.

TODAY'S WOMEN

By EARL MINDERMAN.

JANUARY 9.

CARRIE CHAPMAN CATT, one of the leaders in the fight for woman suffrage in America, was born this day, 1859.

Mrs. Catt was a high school principal for three years in Mason City, Iowa. From 1890 on, she devoted herself to the cause of woman suffrage, lecturing in every State in the Union and in most of the countries in Europe.

In 1904, Mrs. Catt was elected president of the International Woman Suffrage Alliance. In 1915 she was elected president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association. The long fight was won when the suffrage amendment to the Constitution was ratified August 24, 1920.

Mary E. Ireland, American author and translator, was born this day, 1834. Some of her most popular translations are: "In the Days of Abdel-Kader," "The Block House on the Shore," "The Gypsy Mother" and "The Patriot."

Other noted women born this day include Lizette Reese, author, 1856; Catharine P. Traill, Canadian writer, 1802, and Elizabeth G. Britton, bryologist, 1858.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertinent to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

SPRAY painting, speaking inclusively, is fast winning its way. One reason for this is the speed with which the paint dries. This good quality carries with it some dangers. The paint dries quickly because the solvent for the pigment evaporates with great rapidity, as compared with the oils, and even the turpentines, used in the older processes.

Among the solvents in use are benzol, tolnol, xylol, naphtha, benzine butyl acetate, amyl acetate, denatured grain alcohol, acetone, and diethyl carbonate. Unless the sprayer recognizes that these solvents are poisonous and takes precautions he pays the penalty with his health or his life.

Against benzol there seems to be no effective measure of protection. Therefore, Drs. Smyth say, no paints or lacquers containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of benzol should be allowed on the market. Any manufacturer who permits the use of a lacquer or paint which is high in benzol should be penalized.

Against the other substances used as solvents there are measures of protection which are satisfactory. Spray painting should be done while the automobile body, or whatever else is being painted, is in a cabinet devised for the purpose. A current of air blowing at the rate of 150 to 200 feet per minute should be discharged into this cabinet at a point which will blow the spray away from the head of the painter. An exhaust located on the farther side of the body being painted assists in keeping the breathing zone free from harmful fumes.

The symptoms noted in poisoned spray painters are as follows: Irritation of the eyes, headache, dizziness, difficulty in breathing, something like a mild asthma, constipation and digestive disturbance, and bleeding and loss of weight.

Many paints contain lead and this is generally recognized as a poison. Some of these solvents are far more poisonous than lead. Any usage which is based on the toxicity of old-fashioned paints is not safe when the quick-drying agents are used.

FEARS SHE DREAMS TOO MUCH.

Mrs H N. writes: As far back as I can remember I have dreamed one or more dreams every night.

1. Do I get the same amount of rest as one who doesn't?
2. Is oversleeping fattening?

REPLY.

1. Everybody dreams many dreams every night. I expect your sleep is about like the other fellow's.

2. It is indirectly. A sleeping person uses very little food. Therefore, if he eats abundantly and spends much of his time sleeping his food goes to fat. The farmers know that and apply it when they fatten hogs. The packers apply it when they fatten chickens. Our Watertown friends apply this principle to fattening geese.

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

"DISTRESSED" has written me a letter asking about the correct treatment for a foot disorder that is known as a "hammer toe." Every so often, I have a plea for help of this sort, and I am going to answer this in detail, because I know what a painful and distressing matter this is to any one who is afflicted with it.

A hammer toe is one that is bent back underneath itself, and this is a condition that is due to the wearing of ill-fitting shoes upon sensitive feet. Occasionally the toe is bent back so far that the joint is raised above the other toes and is constantly rubbed by the shoe.

If the condition has not developed too far, it can sometimes be remedied by wearing corrective shoes. The correct shoe to help in curing such a condition is one with a high box and no toe cap. The salesman in a shop for orthopedic shoes will help you in selecting the right shoe, if you give him these qualifications.

If the toe is badly deformed, I would by all means consult an orthopedic surgeon and be guided by his advice. He may bind the toes on splints to bring them back to their correct position. Or he may cut the tendons at the back of the toes so that they can be straightened. Certainly, I would never make up my mind to have them amputated, as "Distressed" suggests, before getting the advice of an expert orthopedic surgeon.

While I am on the subject of specific foot ailments, I should like to suggest a simple means of treating the little corn that frequently appears on an enlarged joint of the big toe. When this corn has been carefully removed (preferably by an expert chiropodist), if the spot where it was is scrubbed briskly when you are in the bathtub with the same brush with which you are accustomed to scrub your hands, it can frequently be made to disappear entirely. This, of course, is true only when the shoe that has been causing the corn is discarded at once—a precaution, incidently, that is a more important cure for minor foot ills than we are prone to believe.

SHARP GAINS OFFSET DAY'S MANY LOSSES

CALL FUNDS 7 PER CENT

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Jan. 8.—The stock market was uneven and spotty today, with trading activity considerably reduced as compared with recent sessions, and failed to establish any definite trend. Net losses outnumbered gains by a small margin, but this was offset by sharp advances in several issues.

Many stocks that were weak yesterday braced today, and others that were selling higher yesterday tapered today. In the early session the bears managed to keep prices of most of the active shares moving downward, but the bulls staged a rally in the afternoon and made a very good recovery in many quarters of the list, notably in the rubbers, metal shares and specialties.

There was no news of importance to account for the irregularity of the market. The rally in the late trading had for its only stimulus the good behavior of a score or more issues throughout the session; the resistance in nearly every group after a point or so from the previous close had been yielded and the abatement of trading almost altogether by many operators on the side of the decline. The market was unsteady at the close. In the turnover—some 3,850,000 shares on the day—ten highs and six lows for the year or longer were attained.

Call Rate Holds at 7 per Cent.

The call money rate held at 7 per cent throughout the session. Banks called very few loans, but there were no funds on the outside at concessions. Time funds and bankers' acceptances remained unchanged.

Listing on the Stock Exchange of the new Radio stock brought a fresh burst of activity, but the real position in Radio was clouded not only by the Victor exchange offer, but by arbitrage operations as between the old and new stock. The old stock today opened at 370¼, moved up to 371, dropped to 363 and closed at 369, a net recession of 10 points. The new shares started at 75⅜, backed to 72 and closed at 74.

The sharp advance in Studebaker yesterday was followed by the loss today of 1⅞ net. Most of the other motor shares gave ground on the day, although some of them rallied strongly in the afternoon.

Other Outstanding Gains.

Other outstanding gains on the day were attained by Federal Smelting, up 13⅞; Goodyear Tire, up 7½; Goodrich, 4⅜; United States Rubber, 2¾; Curtiss, 5; Archer Daniel Midland, 3¾; City Stores B, 2; Commercial Investment Trust, 3; Crucible Steel, 3¾; Ingersoll Rand, 3½; National Lead, 5; National Tea, 7; Pierce-Arrow and preferred 3 and 6½, respectively; Ludlum, 3; Sloss-Sheffield, 2; Otis Elevator, 4; Otis Steel, 1½; Standard Mill ing, 3¾; Wabash preferred B, 3; Union Pacific, 2¼; Pere Marquette common and preferred, 1 and 3 1-3, respectively; Pittsburgh Coal, 3; Bush Terminal, 3; Wesson Oil, 9½, and Purity Bakery, 2.

On the losing side at the close were found A. M. Byers, down 5⅝ net; Allis Chalmers, 3½; Boston & Maine, 5; Louisville & Nashville, 2; New York Central, 1¼; Packard, 2¼; Chrysler, 1½; Graham-Paige, 1⅝; Houston Oil, 3½; By-Products Coke, 3; Mexican Seaboard, 2½; Mullins, 3½; Pan-American Petroleum, 2½; Bonds Insurance, 4½; Sears Roebuck, 1½; Woolworth, 1¼; Wright, 7½; Transue & Williams, 3½; Reynolds Tobacco B, 2½; Kennecott, 1½; Gotham Hosiery, 2; American Car & Foundry, 2¼; Allied Chemical, 2½, and others.

Speculative efforts in the petroleum shares received something of a setback on indications of new record crude production last week. Most of the oil shares were lower on the day, including several which have been quite prominent on the rise of the petroleum figures compiled by the Tulsa Oil and Gas Journal, which indicate production of crude for the week ended January 5 reached an average of 2,599,791 barrels a day, 13,97 barrels above the previous week and 12,686 higher than the previous peak reached in the last week of July, 1927.

Another "New" Stock.

Formal approval by the Kennecott Copper board of the plan to split the stock two for one brings another "new" stock to the street. Doubtless the stock will go through the usual procedure for selling for a few days on the curb and then move to the big board. Shareholders will meet February 1 to vote on the proposal and possibly at that time they may receive an intimation of what the dividend rate is likely to be on the new shares. In some quarters it is insisted that $5 will be paid, but in others a more conservative view is taken. However, the matter will depend on earnings and the outlook, for this year indicates that Kennecott will be able to pay a higher rate.

Weakness ruled in most European currencies, although revisions were of small proportions. Slightly lower quotations were in evidence in the British, German, Belgian, Swiss, Swedish and Danish units, while the French franc and Norwegian krone improved 1-16 and a full point, respectively. Guilders came down 1½ points. The Canadian dollar was easier, slumping to 99.70. South Americans were steady to firm, with Brazilian, Peruvian and Chilean rates slightly improved. Japanese eased 3 points; other Far Easterns were unchanged.

TECH AND BUSINESS FIVES WIN IN SERIES THRILLERS

Dempsey Says He'll Fight Again

Ex-Champion, Deeply Grieved, Tells of Promoter's Plans.

By JACK FARRELL.
Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Jack Dempsey, the uncompromising mauler of the ring whose iron fists beat into helpless submission such physical specimens as Jess Willard, Luis Angel Firpo, Georges Carpentier, the late Bill Brennan and Billy Miske, stood in the center of his sumptuous suite in the Ambassador Hotel today, his coat off and his hands clenched tightly. In a voice choked with emotion he said: "Tex Rickard, my pal, signed me to fight for him again before he went West. I will go through with that contract just as though he were alive. He never went back on his word with me and you can rest assured I won't go back on mine."

Dempsey really meant to fight again? The statement surprised Jack's audience, a group of newspaper men. It was hard to believe. Most of the scribes knew Dempsey as one of those fighters given to the habit of making what appear on the surface to be honest, sincere statements—only to contradict them in the next breath.

The former champion seemed to sense his hearers' doubts. "Yes, fellows," he said with obvious effort holding back the tears that welled in his bloodshot eyes, "I will carry out Tex's plans to the dot. I don't want my master's job (meaning that as president and general manager of Madison Square Garden), but I will listen to my master's voice and I know he would haunt me if I ever ran out on this last agreement I made with the greatest, squarest-shootin' guy that ever lived."

Knowing the close bond of friendship that existed between the promoter and Dempsey, this writer is inclined to believe that Jack for once was not kidding. Then, again, Dempsey may carry on for Rickard, but not inside the ring. He will return to Miami Beach with Tex's widow to see the Sharkey-Stribling fight through on February 27.

When he makes what he termed "an official announcement of my future plans" on Thursday he will reiterate, no doubt, what he said today, but it may be merely for the purpose of giving the Miami fight a lot of badly needed ballyhooing.

He would have done just that thing for Rickard alive even if he had not the slightest intention of essaying a comeback; and now that the promoter who made him rich is dead, the former champion may count his dramatic announcement, even though wholly false as to his having signed to fight again, his debt to his departed friend and the Rickard estate.

Canada's Champion Leads Taberski by 13 Points

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Charles Seabach, Canadian champion, was leading the world's titleholder, Frank Taberski, by more than 80 points at the end of the first two blocks of their special 750-point pocket billiards match here tonight. The totals were, Seach, 252; Taberski, 169.

ESCORT RICKARD'S BODY TO GARDEN

5,000 Per Hour Pass Bier Of Tex Rickard in Garden

Throngs Pay Homage to Famed Promoter in Sports Temple He Built; His "Best People" There; Funeral Today.

NEW YORK, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Tex Rickard's patrons in life, the general public, paid a parting tribute to him as he lay dead in Madison Square Garden tonight.

An endless file of silent men, women and children, passed in solemn fashion before the dead promoter's bier where it lay in the center of the huge arena his genius built. These mourners, recruited from every walk of life, were entering the Garden at a rate estimated at 5,000 an hour.

The Garden certainly never before had seen such an impressive sight. Underneath a battery of floodlights, the promoter's body lay in its $15,000 bronze casket. Draped in a magnificent robe of red roses, gift of Mrs. Rickard, the casket was opened to expose the dead promoter's head and shoulders.

The casket rested on a little stand, below it a green grass carpet. Around were banked thousands of floral tributes interspersed with huge palms. A path four or five feet wide had been left clear of the casket to permit the file of mourners to pass.

Leading up to the casket from the two main arena entrances were lines of policemen. The two lines converged at the casket and then broke away almost at right angles to lead mourners out of the Garden by way of the side entrances.

From the moment the doors were opened to the public at 6 o'clock two steady streams of mourners marched slowly up to the casket and without halting, turned away to leave the great sports arena.

A good part of the crowd, it seemed, consisted of men and women who never had seen Rickard in life. Women with children, women with bundles, old women, middle-aged women, women of all classes, were there.

Among the men, it appeared that most were of the type who never before had penetrated to the main floor of the Garden. Most of them were of the working class which patronized the mezzanine and balconies at Rickard's fight shows.

One crippled World War veteran was there stumping up to and past the bier with the aid of crutches.

Among the most impressive of the floral tributes was a huge bed of red carnations with a boxing glove of white carnations in the center. It was the tribute of the Boxing Writers Association.

On the spot where the ring is placed when boxing contests are held the body of Rickard rested tonight, awaiting funeral services tomorrow afternoon and burial.

Before the final words are said in praise of the genius of the sports promoter who built the great arena where his body lies, thousands of men and women from every walk of life will have paid their silent tribute. Tomorrow other thousands will be admitted until 1:30 o'clock, half an hour before the funeral service is read.

For three hours tonight the doors of the Garden were swung open to admit the public to pass the massive bronze casket holding the body of Tex.

American Five to Play At Gettysburg Tonight

American University's Basket Ball Team will leave today for Gettysburg, Pa., where tonight it will meet the Gettysburg College Quintet in a game arranged by telephone late yesterday.

American will be seeking its third victory in three games this season, having previously defeated Gallaudet College and Virginia Medical College. Coach Springston anonunced that his first string line-up of Lichtiter, center; Keasler and Schloss, guards, and Le Fevre and Burgess, forwards. Shirleds, Elliott and Olsen are the substitutes most likely to see action. It was learned yesterday that Warren Hayes, star forward, who was scholastically deficient at the start of the basket ball season, will not rejoin the team this season.

Loughran and Emanuel Sign for Coast Bout

Philadelphia, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Tommy Loughran, world's light-heavyweight champion, was signed today to fight Armand Emanuel in Los Angeles February 12, his manager announced tonight.

The match, it was said, is in line with Loughran's announced program to meet any heavyweight contenders for the title left vacant by the retirement of Gene Tunney. After the Emanuel match Loughran will fight a heavyweight not yet named at the opening of a new sport stadium in Chicago in March.

G.U. Triumphs Over Duke, 48-33

Score at Half, 28-17; Werber Bears Brunt of Duke Attack.

GEORGETOWN initiated Duke University into the intricacies of basketball as it is taught professionally last night and the Durham, N. C., young men who deal in a very fine amateur brand of game themselves emerged at the little end of the horn besmeared with the numbers of a 48-33 defeat. A capacity crowd of 1,000 highly-pleased noncombatants sat in on the game at the American University gymnasium.

It was the opening game of the season for Duke and the Carolinians were making a bold bid for a victory. Georgetown is engaged in its second season of play under the tutelage of Elmer Ripley and the Hilltoppers have absorbed much of the professional mannerisms of basket ball, which include among other things the happy ability to drop the ball into the basket from conceivable and inconceivable angles with a high degree of consistency.

The Georgetown team fairly reeked with class last night, unhampered by the newness of three of the line-up to starting positions. Duke had a good team that was further enhanced by the presence of Bill Werber, a home-town boy, but Duke couldn't match the wizardry of Freddy Mesmer and Don Dutton and Paul Dillon, et al.

Georgetown won the game in a series of fits and starts that saw its score mount to reassuring proportions at intervals in both halves.

At the finish of the first session, Georgetown was leading, 28 to 17, but Duke took a long inhale during the intermission and by dint of some applied shooting by Werber and Candler reduced this lead to six points, which represented the smallest margin between the teams since the first few minutes of play.

The moving spirit in all of this was Freddy Mesmer, the little Georgetown captain, who loomed large every now and then as he became afflicted with attack of unerring accuracy more popularly known as the "hot hand." On one occasion when Georgetown was leading by the precarious margin of 5 to 3, Mesmer was stricken with a sense of duty that almost placed the contest beyond Duke's reach and dissipated in a large measure any immediate hope of victory for Duke. Four times he let loose and four times the ball arched, slipped, fell and skidded into the basket, and when he had done with his act Georgetown's lead had assumed the comforting number of 13 to 3.

But Duke had a good team and Georgetown was not to run away with the contest in any such fashion. Reinforced by the reappearance of Councilor in the game, Duke struck a more fashionable stride and matched Georgetown point for point, with Werber contributing three field goals.

The Georgetown lead was extended just before the half, however, when Meenan and McCarthy counted from the field in rapid order.

The duel for high scoring honors was carried into the second half by Werber and Mesmer, with each scoring 6 more points before the contest ended and the Georgetown leader emerged the victor with 17 points to his credit while Werber was forced to content himself with a paltry 15, a satisfactory night's endeavor notwithstanding.

Special to The Washington Post.

Even the late Tex Rickard, the man who had them paying $40 for "ringside" seats two city blocks from the ring, had his weakness, and because of it he left but little more than $500,000, the Chicago Tribune Press Service learned authentically today.

Tex's soft spot lay in the direction of inventions. He went for every harebrained, self-styled "wizard" who gained his attention, and when he died probably owned more worthless patents than any one other individual ever collected.

While various estimates have been placed on the fight promoter's fortune, ranging from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000, it was definitely ascertained today that when Rickard's will is probated he will be found to have left just a trifle over $500,000 in cash, stocks and realty.

The worthless patents took large chunks of the profits from the epic ring battles Tex staged. He was also a heavy plunger in the stock market.

It is known that, while he several times won in the cotton market, on several occasions he lost heavily in transactions on the New York Stock Exchange. But he never squawked. Only his closest friends knew of his losses.

Today it was learned that Harvey Gibson, member of the Madison Square Garden Corporation's board of directors, and the New York Trust Co. are the executors of Rickard's will, which will be probated next week. It also was divulged that in March Tex drew up a last will and testament which superseded one made eighteen months ago, when his daughter, Maxine, was born.

Representatives of Chadbourne, Stanchfield and Levy, the sportsman's lawyers, today visited Rickard's private office in the Garden and his New York apartment, on Seventh avenue. All the promoter's personal papers, business records and other data were placed in boxes, sealed and removed to vaults in the Colonial Trust Co. branch in the northeast corner of the Garden building.

Another factor which undoubtedly accounts in part for the comparatively small estate left by the showman, it was pointed out today, was his mode of living. Rickard never cared for money for money's sake. He lived lavishly and was determined to get everything he could out of life.

"I never had a chance to play when I was young," he once told an intimate. "I'm going to get all the fun I can now."

Last year he purchased, for $75,000, the yacht he named Maxine after his daughter. Walter P. Chrysler, automobile magnate, sold him the vessel Rickard's home in Miami cost him $65,000, and he spent an additional $35,000 buying adjoining lots and improving the place.

Although little could be learned of the actual contents of the will, this much was ascertained: Rickard remembered, in the document, his mother, two sisters, his wife, his daughter, and the mother of his first wife. Mrs. Bernedette Hodges, mother of his widow, is not mentioned.

WRITER SAYS BRIBE STORY IS FALSE

Boston Scribe Says He Was Merely 'Fishing for a Story.'

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 8 (A.P.).—The hearing by the Boston Finance Commission on bribery charges made by Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, moved toward a close today when the commission resumed its public sessions and heard the testimony of five witnesses.

None of the testimony today was in support of the charges by Fuchs that William G. Lynch, a Boston city councilman, had approached him for a bribe of $5,000 for each of thirteen members of a "bloc" of councilmen, to vote for ratification of the Sunday sports law. In fact, one of the witnesses, Myles T. McSweeney, a Boston sports writer, admitted that the story he told Fuchs concerning two councilmen was false.

When the hearing first opened, Fuchs testified that McSweeney had told him he had "enough on two councilmen to hang them." Fuchs also had said that McSweeney informed him that his knowledge was verified by two witnesses.

Today McSweeney told the commission that he had merely heard rumors that "some one wanted some money" and that the story he told Fuchs was a "mere presumption." "I was just fishing for a story," he said.

While the commission was delving

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 8.—Realization that only a glamorous personality can come anywhere near filling the place Tex Rickard held in boxing has led to the speculative nomination of Jack Dempsey as his successor. The nominating speeches declare that irrespective of his executive and organizing abilities or lack of them, the former champion would make an ideal "front" for the Madison Square Garden Corporation.

Rickard, it is pointed out, intrusted the details of promotion of its various enterprises to specialists like John S. Hammond in hockey, John M. Chapman in six-day bicycling and Tom McArdle in the common or garden variety of boxing. Rickard, himself, concentrated on the big shots—mostly outdoor battles for world's championships. Those who knew him best agree that he often showed a surprising lack of information regarding the history of, and lesser figures in, the sports he promoted.

He paid no attention to the lesser lights of pugilism whose records are on the tongue's tip of the average fight fan, and hockey and bicycling were to him only vehicles to bring the customers into his arena with the assistance of the experts upon whom Rickard himself relied. Dempsey, it is argued, could carry on acceptably with the glamour of the name enhancing attractions.

Rickard Known as a Promoter, Dempsey as a Fighter, So——

Dempsey is the most magnetic figure in boxing, beyond doubt, and his fame in the sport is comparably greater than Rickard's was, but Dempsey's fame rests entirely on his accomplishments as a fighter and in the public mind he will always have boxing gloves on. Rickard owed his fame to public confidence in his ability always to deliver as a promoter—a confidence hardwon by the exercise of shrewd business sense coupled with imaginative daring. Any man who succeeds to that confidence will have to earn it the same way. Dempsey might be able to do it, and so might one-eyed Connolly, but the betting is that neither will.

Dempsey, deeply affected by the death of his close friend, may have abandoned all thought of returning to the ring. Rickard was about to announce that he had prevailed on the old champion to return for one more fling when death sealed his lips. The promoter had visions of a $3,000,000 gate for a fight between Dempsey and the winner of the Sharkey-Stribling fight in Miami next month. Perhaps Jack may change his mind once more and decide to go through with the program Rickard had drawn up. Even if he is all washed up as a fighter, his return to the ring would give a sorely needed stimulus to the search for a new heavyweight king.

Sharkey-Stribling Enthusiasts May Stumble Over Christher.

Dempsey and the Garden officials declare that the Sharkey-Stribling bout will be held February 27, as scheduled. They ignore one possibility that might relegate the match to the discard. K. O. Christner, the Akron heavyweight, who surprised the sporting world by knocking Knute Hansen flatter than last Thursday's stock market quotations, may surprise it again January 28, when he meets Jack Sharkey in the Garden. Sharkey figures to win laughingly, but what the Boston gob figures to do and what he actually does do after the bell rings are often vastly different things, ladies and gentlemen. Any one who would term Sharkey a consistent performer after seeing his battles with Risko, Heeney, &c., probably would describe Police Commissioner Whalen as cam-

Western High And Central Defeated

Stenogs Beat Central, 22-16, First Time Since 1923.

By GARRETT WATERS.

THE high school basket ball series moved into the new McKinley Tech gymnasium yesterday to the accompaniment of a brace of fast and furious battles that gripped the 2,000 spectators in varying emotions of delight and disappointment as the Tech team scored its second victory of the series, a 25-24 decision over Western, and a Business High five registered its first victory over a Central team since 1923 by a 22-16 score.

Excitement was at a high pitch in both battles as the teams fought furiously for a commanding lead. The individual hero of the afternoon was Capt. Jake Goldblatt, bounding center of the Tech team, who found the last ten seconds of play the vehicle to glory for himself and his school when he tossed in a field goal that transformed imminent defeat into victory.

The play of the Business Team against Central was a revelation. Accustomed to an insignificant place in basket ball series in the past, Business played as if inspired, uncorking a spurt in the second half that overcame a Central lead and holding this margin safely in the the waning minutes.

The Central Five was far off form against Business. The Stenographers, although their play lacked smoothness, fought ferociously to match every Central court to win. Nathan Newman was their spearhead on attack, ably assisted by Lester Singman and Bob Lucas.

The latter entered the fray just in time to instill the punch needed for victory. Newman scored four baskets and two foul shots to lead his team, while Singman and Lucas inserted their two field goals at the times when they were most needed.

Almost three minutes elapsed before a score was made in the Tech-Western clash. The teams took this time to feel the other out with Western being somewhat bewildered by the Manual Trainer's zone defense. Brown started the scoring and sent Tech into the lead with a toss from side court, after his team took the ball away from Western in one of the latter's attempts to break through the zone defense. MacCartee followed several moments later by making good two foul tosses to increase the score to 4-0. It was Woods who opened the scoring for Western. He dipped a foul toss through the rims to make the count read 4-1. MacCartee's basket for Tech and J. Thompson's foul toss for Western ended the scoring at the quarter with Tech ahead, 6 to 2.

It was during the second quarter that the action became intense with Tech ahead by a scant 12 to 10 margin at the whistle.

Western spurted during these moments and led part of the time to fall back as the score see-sawed back and forth. Hunt, Freeman, Baer and J. Tampson were individuals who inserted telling baskets, with MacCartee and Goldblatt keeping Tech in the running.

The latter got going during the third quarter and it was his work that kept the Manual Trainers fighting. He sank two baskets in this period. The scoring during this time shifted back and forth with Western ahead, 19 to 18, at the whistle.

Western made a gallant spurt in the final quarter and led until Johnson tied the score for Tech with a basket from side court. From this time until the end it was just a case of matching point for point until Goldblatt made his final toss for victory for Tech.

Business put up a most stubborn fight against Central. A basket by Newman and foul tosses by Monk and Cross represented the scoring in the first quarter which ended 2-2. Quite like the Tech-Western game play became close in the remaining quarters. Central led, 9 to 7, at half time mainly through the making good of foul tosses by Cross, Parkins, Romig and Monk.

A lead of 12 to 11 also was held at the termination of the third quarter, with a Business spurt proving too much to overcome in the final quarter.

This spurt by the Stenographers was in reality their only one of the game and the only time they were able to shake off the Mount Pleasanters, who proved a stubborn foe. Goals by Lucas, Newman, Lucas and Newman, in that order, tell the story of how the Stenographers went ahead to finally win. Romig and Lovell inserted baskets for Central, but these proved to no avail.

G.U. AND DUKE PLAN GAME ON GRID

A FOOTBALL game between Georgetown and Duke University next fall, which would be played on the Blue Devils' gridiron at Durham, N. C., is in prospect, it was learned here last night. The game, if scheduled, will be played on October 12, the date which was left open when Director of Athletics Louis Little announced the Hilltop's 1929 football program several weeks ago.

The present status of the contest, as revealed by an Associated Press dispatch from Durham, is that the consummation of negotiations between officials of the two institutions is expected at a near date.

Confirmation of pending negotiations could not be gained last night at Georgetown. Director Little was out of the city and efforts to communicate with other officials of the university were unsuccessful.

Little is believed to have opened negotiations with Duke when he attended the recent conference of football coaches at New Orleans. Prior to his departure from Washington he was known to have been seeking an opponent for the open date on the Hilltoppers' schedule, but he did not reveal any intention of listing a game to be played on a foreign field.

If Duke does entertain Georgetown at Durham, the Blue Devil Eleven next fall will have two teams of major caliber playing on its home field. The University of Pittsburgh is due to invade the Durham gridiron on October 5, for the opening of Duke's new stadium.

Georgetown and Duke met during the last football season and Georgetown won in decisive fashion. Duke last month was admitted to the Southern Conference.

St. Louis University is also negotiating for a game with Georgetown to be played in Washington, according to an Associated Press dispatch last night. October 12, the date planned for the Georgetown-Duke game, remains as the only open Saturday on the Georgetown schedule, and unless these negotiations collapse it is believed that there is little likelihood of a Georgetown-St. Louis contest.

Griffiths Wins by K. O. In Heavyweight Debut

Chicago, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Tuffy Griffiths, the Sioux City light heavyweight, successfully invaded the heavyweight ranks tonight, knocking out George Gemas, wild-swinging puncher from Philadelphia, in the second round of their ten-round bout here.

Griffiths, using a right cross to the chin, floored the Quaker City heavy ten times, finally finishing him with a short right uppercut. Gemas went to the mat seven times in the first round, taking the count of nine five times and was on the floor when the bell rang.

300 Golfers Tee Off In Los Angeles Open

Bright and early tomorrow morning a knickered army of approximately 300, split up into threesomes, will march to the first tees of six courses for 36 holes of qualifying play.

NAMING DEMPSEY CHAMPION SECONDED BY LEONARD

Bennie Backs Muldoon in Selection

Thinks, However, Jack Will Need Long Period of Training.

WILLIAM MULDOON, the Grand Old Man of Fistiana, struck a popular chord the other day when he came out boldly and declared that in his opinion Jack Dempsey should be proclaimed heavyweight champion of the world and recognized as such. Now, let me say right here that nobody has a greater respect than I for the amazing fighting ability of Jack Dempsey, and at the risk of appearing prejudiced, I am inclined to second the motion, provided Dempsey decides to return to the ring as an active fighter.

I would not presume to get into a discussion with the patriarch of boxing on the matter of conditioning, although I do pretend to know a bit about the conditioning of a ring fighter. One can't spend the better part of his life studying and practicing the art of getting into condition without learning something about it.

So while I incline strongly to Mr. Muldoon's opinion about recognizing Dempsey as the champion until a better one comes along, I do not believe that a short period of training will put Dempsey on edge for a hard and fast ten-round battle. Nor can I, much as I would like to, subscribe to his opinion that Dempsey, "properly trained," would put up the greatest fight of his career this year.

Jack Dempsey long since has fought the best fight of his brilliant and spectacular career. But regardless of this, the heavyweight division always needs to have a head, a fellow at the top who is the mar" to shoot at.

Otherwise the interest in the game wanes. After James J. Jeffries had retired, Tommy Burns finally got his head far enough up out of the ruck to be recognized as the "head man." He gained this distinction really by getting the decision over Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and that spectacular although only one-round knockout of "Boshter Bill" Squires. He thus became the recognized mark for the other heavyweights to shoot at, and when Jack Johnson defeated him no one thought to dispute the big negro's claim to the title until they finally dragged Jeffries out of retirement.

What gives Jack Dempsey a big edge in reclaiming the title—if he desires so—is his last fight with Gene Tunney in Chicago, when Jack sat Tunney on the floor for that now famous long count. Mr. Muldoon points out that the spirit of the "neutral corner" rule is that the fighter scoring the knockdown shall retire to a neutral corner, that the referee shall see that he does so, but that any count that has been tolled in the meantime shall be counted in the time the fallen fighter may remain down. In other words, the count may be halted if the fighter refuses to go to a neutral corner, but it must not be started all over again from the beginning when he does so. Muldoon, as the author of this rule, certainly should know what he's talking about.

On the basis of that long count, Muldoon declares that he believes Dempsey actually is the champion heavyweight boxer of the world. That neutral corner thing wasn't so important when I was boxing in defense of the lightweight championship. Indeed, if it had been, I'd have been saved many an anxious moment.

Not to give a tiresome list of examples, I can't help recollecting one night in old Madison Square Garden when I had bounced Richie Mitchell on the floor and stood over him waiting for him to get up. There was plenty of money bet that night that I would knock out Mitchell in one round, and I intended to do it. (Oh, I know that betting isn't allowed on fights, but somehow the boys just won't believe this.) It's ring history now how Richie got up off the floor and, while I was debating in my mind whether to put him out with a left or a right he clicked one from the floor on my chin and the next thing I knew I was sitting on the floor, the most dazed and surprised young man in the world. And when I finally got up I had to do it with Mitchell standing poised and ready above me.

Now, if we had had one of these "neutral corner" rules then, I never would have been dropped that night, and I MIGHT have won the fight in the first round. As it was, it took me several rounds to get my bearings.

I happen to know that Dempsey intended to come back to the ring this year if Tex Rickard had not been so unfortunately and inopportunely stricken. Now Dempsey's future again is uncertain, for I know full well that he had thoroughly made up his mind that he would fight this year under the direction of Tex Rickard only.

And, of course, if Dempsey intends to stay retired, there'd be no use in recognizing him as the champion.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

By BERT A. COLLYER.

PIGEON HOLE. Oh me, oh my, look at this spread Hal Price Headley and Trainer Walter Taylor have set up for the boys in the fifth race, designated as the Capt. J. S. Rees Handicap, at the Fair Grounds today. Taylor had "THE PIGEON" out the other morning for a mile gallop, and he breezed along in 1:44 2-5 without batting an eye.

CAPTAIN J. S. was dropped in another soft spot in the second, and it looks like any old price will be a good one. PATUXANT is coming to bat with a winning race in third, so the chief clocker informs me. "Plenty of wires went out last night for this plater," was the drift of his comment.

BETTY ANN, a right smart youngster in the Headley outfit, seems much the best of the babies that have been to the post in the first race.

Look for McGONIGAL to repeat in the fourth race. He trimmed the same band in mud, including the good mudder Chip.

WILLIAM PENN has the speed of the field in the sixth and, with intelligent handling, will be hard to catch. LANE ALLEN and GRAND DAD for what is left. CROWS NEST will be better suited in mud.

TURQUOISE appears to be a standout in the seventh. Stable connections have been waiting for this spot for weeks. HAWK EYE won a fair race in its previous start and looks like the runner-up. TRY AGAIN showed winning form at Tia Juana.

Over at Havana, the lads with the split second watches inform me that JUDGE CAVERLY goes for the bacon in the fifth event.

THREE D'S in the sixth is another hot one the lads fancy to bring home the sheckels.

NEW ORLEANS.
1—Betty Ann, Brods Buddy, Gotta Gonow.
2—Capt. J. S., Hidden Thoughts, Rogue's Gold.

C. U. CUBS WIN, 50-44, OVER EASTERN

Scholastics' Rally Is Futile; Kane and Cappelli Star.

THE Catholic University Freshmen defeated the Eastern Five yesterday afternoon, 50 to 44, in the Eastern Gymnasium.

The excitement came after an uninteresting first half with Catholic U. ahead, 22 to 15. A veritable cloudburst of field goals and foul tosses opened with both teams being evenly matched in the scoring of points. The Yearlings' 22-15 lead at half-time stood them in good stead as the final score reveals.

Teddy Cappelli ran wild for Eastern in the scoring orgy, registering nine baskets and eight foul goals for 26 points. Arthur Kane was the Yearlings' big gun with eight goals from the field and two free tosses for 18 points.

Tibbitts, center, and Oliver, forward, were also prominent in running up markers for the Yearlings, the former caging four baskets and a like number of foul goals for 12 points. Oliver counted three baskets and three foul tosses for 10 points.

Trailing throughout, Eastern engineered a late but futile rally.

Randolph-Macon to Be Entertained at College Park.

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND basketers will open their season tonight, meeting a strong foe in the Randolph-Macon Five from Ashland, Va. The game will get under way at 7 o'clock so as not to interfere with another affair scheduled in the auditorium later in the evening.

The Old Liners' schedule as originally drawn up did not call for play until next Tuesday, when Virginia will be met at Charlottesville, but the Ashlanders asked Coach Burton Shipley for a game for last night and in reply were offered games either tonight or tomorrow and tonight's date was accepted.

There is some doubt as to who will draw the center berth in tonight's Maryland line-up, either Allen or Heitzel being likely to get the call. Radice and Evans or Taylor will fill the forward posts, with Dean and Heagy doing guard duty. Madigan, who can play any position, is sure to see service in a utility role.

Coach Shipley reports that every member of his squad is now available for use except "Frenchy" Cohan, clever little forward, whose name is still on the sick list.

In the Randolph-Macon Team the Old Liners are tackling a strong foe, one which conquered Virginia last week. The visitors will be led by Woodson, who scored more points than the entire Cavalier Team in Charlottesville Saturday. His 23 points were the result of 8 goals from scrimmage, several of the sensational variety, and 7 foul tosses.

DenmanThompson Heads D. C. Baseball Writers

At a meeting of the Washington Chapter, Baseball Writers of America, which was held yesterday, Denman Thompson, sports editor of the Evening Star, was unanimously elected chairman for 1929.

Wilson McCray, President Of Chevy Chase. A. C.

Wilson F. McCray was elected president; Albert Miller, vice president, and Spencer Fitzgerald, secretary and treasurer of the Chevy Chase Athletic Club last night, a new organization planning to sponsor basket ball and baseball teams this year.

Paramount A. C. Bouts To Be Staged Tonight

The Paramount Athletic Club, newly organized, will conduct a program of amateur boxing bouts tonight at its quarters at 426 Ninth street northwest, in which Kid Groves and Paul Bowen, professionals, will stage an exhibition match as an added feature.

The headline bouts of the amateur card will bring together K. O. Stewart and Bear Phillips, and Pewee Sherman and Slim Simpson. A wrestling bout is also scheduled.

Central and Business Fives See Action Today

Two games will feature the local scholastic basket ball program today. Central will entertain the Hyattsville High School Five in a game shifted from the Hyattsville Gymnasium, while Business will journey to the Catholic University Gymnasium to play the Cardinal Yearlings.

Central was originally scheduled to meet St. John's this afternoon in the Cadets' Gymnasium, but a mix-up in schedule seems to be the reason of the Hyattsville High clash. Idle today, the St. John's basketers will get into action on Friday by playing the Catholic University Freshmen in the Vermont Avenue Gymnasium.

Maryland Cubs Rout Baltimore Five, 58-13

Maryland's Freshman Basket Ball Team opened its season by trouncing Baltimore Poly yesterday afternoon in Ritchie Gymnasium at College Park, 58 to 13.

RICKARD BIER ATTRACTS ELITE

moters, Rickard was continually striving to bring the "best people" to the ringside for his shows, and if not to replace the fight fans of other days, whose uniform was a cap and a sweater, at least to push them farther back in the picture.

In death the "best people" in their high hats came with the boys, nervously twitching their caps in their hands, to pay tribute to a man who succeeded in making boxing respectable.

Boxing champions and title holders of other days were in the throng, several white-haired men who held belts before Rickard ever saw a gloved hand lead or counter, coming to pay respectful tribute to a man whose like was not seen in their day.

Hockey, too, was represented, for not only does the body rest near the ring posts for a boxing bout, but on a surface that hears the clang of skates on speeding feet. Boxing was the promoter's first and fondest love, but hockey was second in his affections.

At the funeral tomorrow boxers and hockey players and officials will join with enthusiasts for both sports in saying a final "well done."

At 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon the many doors of Madison Square Garden will be closed and only holders of cards will be admitted after that hour. Card holders will include friends of the family, men prominent in sport, especially boxing and hockey, and officials of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, of which Tex Rickard was president and general manager.

The services in the Garden will be conducted by the Rev. George Caleb Moor, pastor of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church, and it was expected that a eulogy would be pronounced by Mayor James J. Walker. The mayor as a State senator was the father of the Walker law restoring boxing to favor in New York State. He was long a friend of Tex, and occupied a ringside seat at nearly every big fight in the Garden.

Representatives of the boxing and hockey writers also will serve as honorary pallbearers.

The body of the promoter reached New York from Miami this morning and was carried through a large crowd at the Pennsylvania station direct to Madison Square Garden, accompanied by a police escort. An inspector, his deputy, 20 sergeants and 200 patrolmen were assigned as the body lay in state.

A haggard and worn Jack Dempsey escorted Mrs. Rickard, bordering on collapse, to her New York home. The former heavyweight champion showed signs of suffering at his friend's death almost as pronounced as those of the widow.

At the Garden the crepe hung heavily about the arena was not needed to show that the big sports place was in deep mourning. As the big business men from "down town," athletes whose names are on the sports pages every day and the plain fans came, they walked in hesitant tread and spoke in whispers. All said the same thing: "How can it be the Garden without Tex?"

Greenleaf Leads Hoppe at Pocket Billiards

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Ralph Greenleaf, recently dethroned as pocket billiard champion by Frank Taberski, has piled up an overwhelming lead over Willie Hoppe, former balkline king, in their special pocket billiards match here. Greenleaf, who is playing 1,500 points to Hoppe's 1,200, tonight had rolled up 500 points in the first four blocks to 189 for Hoppe.

Greenleaf took both blocks today. This afternoon he won, 119 to 37, in nine innings. His high run was 33; Hoppe's 10. Tonight the score was 124 to 29. Greenleaf had one run of 44. Hoppe's best was a cluster of 14.

J. C. C. SEXTET SCORES.

The Jewish Community Center Sextet had little trouble in defeating the St. Aloysius basketers last night, 40 to 28, in the Center Gymnasium. The accurate eye of Miss Eva Fishman, who registered fourteen field goals, featured for the winners. The Centers compiled a 28-to-18 lead at the half.

RADIO BOARD URGES EXTENSION OF YEAR

(Associated Press.)

Urging the extension of the life of the Federal Radio Commission for another year, Chairman Robinson of the commission testified yesterday before the House merchant marine committee that in his opinion radio broadcasting and reception conditions were better before the commission's reallocations in November than they are now.

The chairman advocated continuance of the commission's existence so that it could, among other duties, correct errors in the new radio station assignments if they have occurred.

At the same time the National Broadcasters Association, through Henry A. Bellows, of Minneapolis, a former radio commission member, submitted a list of recommendations to the committee, among which was urged the establishment of a permanent governmental agency to administer radio.

Davis Plan Criticized.

The association also criticized the Davis amendment to the radio law enacted at the last Congress, providing equal distribution of broadcasting facilities among the five radio zones of the country on which the reallocations were based and recommended that the equal distribution policy in the statute be repealed.

Robinson, who appeared as the first witness on the White bill to continue the life of the commission until March 16, 1930, declared that he had opposed the reallocations, and added he had interpreted the Davis amendment to mean that an immediate drastic revision has not been intended, but that the changes were to be made gradually.

The chairman, however, in a prepared statement read at the outset of his testimony, declared that the new allocation "does introduce the principle of equality and does in a certain measure eliminate interference."

Many complaints had been received against the reallocation, Robinson said, adding, however, that there appeared such a divergence of opinion over the changes that it could not be determined definitely whether there had been improvement or retrogression in making them.

Among the other recommendations of the broadcasters' associations were the granting of one year instead of 90-day licenses and the prevention of rebroadcasting of programs without the consent of the originating station.

Granted Reserve Commission.

A commission as a lieutenant colonel in the specialists reserves was announced by the War Department yesterday for John Philip Frey, American Federation of Labor Building, Ninth street and Massachusetts avenue.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE RICHER LIFE.

You who mourn his passing on
Know you not where he has gone?
Doubt ye that he knows the truth
That has baffled age and youth?

You who weep for him today
Who from earth has gone away
Know you not that he has found
Footing on a surer ground?

Would you weep for one who rose
Victor over mighty foes?
Would you mourn for him today
High promotion called away?

He is done with care and pain,
Failure can not strike again.
God has called him out of strife
To a cleaner, ampler life.

To a richer world than ours,
Clearer sight and wider powers,
To a life that knows no scorn
He has gone for whom you mourn.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.
The Parent Counselor.

Spending for Self-Improvement.

Readers who go no farther than the first paragraph are jumping on Henry Ford for saying that: "No successful boy ever saved money."

If boys read just a bit further—and many, I suspect, didn't—they would have seen: "They (boys) spent it as fast as they got it for things to improve themselves."

Now, friend Henry, your are talking. Old Andrew Carnegie even went you one better: "Go into debt, young man, for a real investment."

A new suit of clothes to aid in getting a job is an investment. For a father to spend money for his son's education is wiser than leaving the money in a will. A radio is a good investment in keeping the children interested in their home. A family automobile is cheaper than alimony. A suburban lot—and a dream of a home on it later—has not only investment value but also steadying values.

A teacher who invests in a railroad ticket to attend an educators' convention may bring back a new position. A mother who purchases for her child crayons, paints and paper and invests her time and patience may develop a genius, and in any event she develops the child. The father who makes out a surprise check to wife for a new parlor set may get dividends from Smiles, Contentment & Co.

There's a difference, my boys, between purchasing and spending, between "I purchased a book," and, "I spent a nickel for gum," between "I purchased a lot," and, "I spent four-fifty on that dame last night," between, "I purchased a radio that I may know what's going on," and, "I spent my week's wages at a swell party."

And don't forget, boys, that Ford added, "I never knew a young man that was worth five cents that wouldn't work."

Showers and Clouds.

My daughter of thirteen is attractive. She goes around with girls whose mothers allow them to let boys accompany them home from basket ball games and such. I don't allow my daughter to do this but I fear she goes to her girl friend's home where boys call on them at night. Should I let her continue this? Two different nights a boy brought her home from a basket ball game. I saw them and when she came into the house she was happy and gay and seemed very lighthearted. But still I scolded her for it. She seemed awfully hurt and all the gay happy feeling faded away. Am I wrong about this? TROUBLED.

Answer—You are. Your daughter is hurt by an undeserved scolding. She has done nothing which isn't perfectly normal. Boys and girls study from same books, watch the same games, go over the same things. This association is mutually beneficial and desirable assuming of course, that the boys are the right kind.

For Girls.

Many girls write they are undecided whether to go into library work or pre-school work. I have helplets which will help them decide. Anyone can have them for the asking and an S. A. S. E.

Following Footsteps.

My four year old, I believe, was born with a stubborn disposition. My husband is awfully stubborn and will not set a good example. Does the child inherit his father's traits? DISCOURAGED.

Answer—No, he does not inherit them. But it is quite possible for the boy to catch the spirit of his present environment and be influenced by it most decidedly.

THE ONLY BAD PART OF THIS STOCK PROPOSITION IS THAT I HAVEN'T DARED TELL PHYLLIS. BUT I'D FEEL A LOT BETTER ABOUT IT IF I'D MAKE A FULL CONFESSION.
BY GOLLY, I'M GOING TO DO IT. SHE'LL HAVE PLENTY TO SAY BUT I DESERVE IT.
PHYLLIS, I'VE DONE SOMETHING I HAVEN'T BEEN MAN ENOUGH TO OWN UP TO BUT I WANT TO CONFESS THE WHOLE THING. I'LL FEEL BETTER
WHY, WALT, WHAT IS IT? DON'T FRIGHTEN ME THAT WAY.
I BOUGHT SOME RUBBER KEYHOLE STOCK ABOUT A MONTH AGO AND I'VE BEEN TRYING TO GET UP MY NERVE TO TELL YOU ABOUT IT.
WHY THAT'S GONE WAY UP HASN'T IT? THAT'S WONDERFUL! I THOUGHT IT WAS EMBEZZLEMENT OR FORGERY AT LEAST!

LONG LIST OF BONDS YIELDS TO PRESSURE

FEW RAILS IN DEMAND

New York, Jan. 8 (A.P.).—Bond market activity was chiefly on the selling side again today. A wide list of issues yielded to liquidation encouraged by the heaviness of stocks and a general atmosphere of apprehension, due in part, at least, to expectations of an increase in the Federal Reserve rediscount rates and belief that money rates, although comparatively high, have reached the bottom for the time being.

Price movements in all groups were irregular. Public Service of New Jersey 4½s established a new year's high at 104, and closed slightly lower but up 2½ points net, after breaking to 102. Both International Telephone debenture and convertible 4½s were pressed for sale, the debentures yielding a point.

Weak spots in the industrial list included many of the oils, especially Barnsdall 6s, with warrants, which sold off more than 2 points. Anaconda Copper 7s sagged, while the 6s improved. The same was true of Bethlehem Steel issues, the 8s gaining in the face of wider declines in the 5½s and 5s. International Match 5s, Lorillard 5½s, United Biscuit 6s, Porto Rico-American Tobacco 6s, Otis Steel 6s A and others yielded as much as a point. Among issues active at slightly higher levels were General Motors Acceptance 6s, Armour & Co. 5½s, Dodge Brothers 6s, Westinghouse 5s and International Cement 5s.

There was some buying of first-grade rails and substantial gains were recorded by Canadian National Railways 4½s, St. Paul 5s, Great Northern 7s, Frisco 6s, International Great Northern 6s and New York Central 5s.

The foreign list was dull. United States Government obligations again sagged.

SENATORS TO DRAW CAR MERGER PLANS AT MEETING TODAY

Traction Officials Will Be Asked to Concede Two Points in Contract.

VALUATION AND FARE MAY BLOCK AGREEMENT

Confirmation of Brand for Utilities Board Is Linked With Merger Case.

Five senators will gather in the Senate District committee room this morning and lay down a basis upon which they will approve a merger for the local street railway companies.

They constitute the merger subcommittee of the Senate District committee, which, in the end, will decide the fate of the merger. The investigation they have made into merger question has been one of the most exhaustive ever undertaken here.

Senator Capper, (Republican), of Kansas, will preside at today's meeting. Grouped around him, assuming all are present, will be Senators Blaine (Republican), of Wisconsin; Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan; King (Democrat), of Utah, and Glass (Democrat), of Virginia.

Traction Men to Be Called.

After they have decided among themselves what they feel to be a fair basis for the merger, the senators will call in the heads of the local traction companies and ask them how far they are willing to go in agreeing to such a basis.

Unless a majority of the subcommittee—Capper, Blaine and Vandenberg—have changed their minds, the traction men are going to be asked to make at least two important concessions: first, either to accept less than a $50,000,000 valuation for the merged company or else merge without a valuation, and second, continue the present rate of fare until a new valuation has been made.

No doubt, the traction men will be asked to make other concessions, but these will be the outstanding ones.

John J. Noonan, the principal minority stockholder in the Washington Railway & Electric Co., yesterday submitted a brief to Chairman Capper in which he excoriated the North American Co., giant New York holding concern, which would dominate the merged company here.

Stock Pays No Dividends.

Noonan said that he had begun purchasing stock in the Washington Railway & Electric Co., 22 years ago, and now has acquired 1,500 shares. But in the last six years, he said, he has not collected a single dividend.

Experts have told him, Noonan said, that his stock is worth three times as much as he is able to get for it on the market, and this he blamed on the tactics of the North American Co., to keep the price of the stock down.

Noonan warned the subcommittee that the conditions of the proposed merger would place the North American Co. outside of the jurisdiction of the local Public Utilities Commission.

Closely allied to the merger is the case of Col. Harrison Brand, jr., who recently was nominated by President Coolidge for another term as a member of the Public Utilities Commission.

Brand's Confirmation Opposed.

No less than five letters or petitions protesting against Brand's confirmation have been received by the Senate District committee. None of them, however, has contained any specific charges against him, and unless some such charges are made in the near future the probabilities are that the committee will recommend to the Senate that his nomination be confirmed.

The Central Labor Union, which submitted the first petition, declared that Brand's conduct in the merger negotiations had made it clear that he was more in sympathy with the traction companies than with the straphangers. This, too, is the tenor of a petition submitted yesterday by the Men's Local No. 249, of the Federal Employes Union, an organization made up of workers in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

The Randle Highlands Citizens' Association has asked the committee to hold up action on Brand's nomination until after President-elect Hoover assumes office. No charges are contained in the association's petition.

The full Senate District committee is expected to meet the latter part of this week, and probably will decide just what is to be done about Brand.

Chase of 10 Miles Ends in Capture

Prisoner Gets Month for Reckless Driving, Faces Liquor Charges.

Captured after a 10-mile automobile chase by members of Sergt. George M. Little's police flying squadron, Morris Elakov, 28 years old, was sentenced to serve 30 days in the District Jail on a charge of reckless driving by Judge Isaac M. Hitt yesterday in Traffic Court.

Elakov was also arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on charges of transporting and possessing 240 quarts of liquor. He contended the police unlawfully arrested him when the chase ended in East Silver Spring, Md., but members of the squad proved they were Federal revenue agents as well as local policemen, and Commissioner Turnage held the defendant in $500 bail for action of Police Court authorities.

Members of Sergt. Little's squad sighted the automobile driven by the defendant at Rock Creek Church and Rigge road northwest early yesterday and started in pursuit. At times, the police declared, the speed of both cars exceeded 60 miles an hour. Elakov was captured when his automobile became overheated and developed motor trouble in East Silver Spring.

Aid in Congress Sought For World War Veteran

Friends of Sergt. Michael A. Donaldson, an outstanding hero of the World War and nicknamed "Sergeant Mike" by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge when he was received at the White House, are urging members of the military affairs committees of Congress to report a bill, pending since the Sixty-ninth Congress, which would give him an award of $10,000 and a life income of $200 a month in recognition of his war service.

Sergt. Donaldson gave up a promising boxing career in order to volunteer shortly after America entered the World War. At that time he was a runner-up for the middleweight championship of the world. His friends point out that he gave up contracts for engagements totaling $65,000.

SKATERS FLOCK TO CHEVY CHASE LAKE

COLD WAVE RELIEF PROMISED TONIGHT

COLDEST DAY OF WINTER

After experiencing subfreezing temperatures all yesterday, Washington faces the prospect today of cold, but slightly warmer, weather.

While the temperature this morning will be in the neighborhood of the 20 degree mark, Weather Bureau officials believe that the back of the cold wave has been broken and that the mercury will mount steadily during the day under the influence of warm breezes from the south and southwest.

The official forecast is "Cloudy and warmer."

Washington awakened yesterday morning to find the coldest weather of the winter. A low mark of 13 degrees was reached at 8 o'clock. From that time until 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon the mercury climbed steadily, but turned downward again after reaching the 27-degree mark. The fall was slow, a reading at 10 o'clock showing a 25-degree temperature.

Chevy Chase Lake Is Frozen.

Under the spell of the subfreezing temperature Chevy Chase Lake and Lincoln Memorial mirror pool froze over. At the former skating was permitted and was enjoyed by scores of youngsters and grown-ups, but at the latter park police decreed no skating until a depth of 3 inches was attained. This thickness was expected yesterday, but high winds which whipped over the pool prevented a substantial freeze.

Chicago, Jan. 8 (United Press).—The Midwest and Southwest appeared today to have broken the siege which had been maintained by the sub-zero wave since last Saturday, claiming more than a score of lives, impeding transportation and causing numerous minor injuries.

Weather Bureau forecasts promised relief before morning. J. M. Lloyd, official of the Chicago area, predicted the cold wave would move Southward and that temperatures would rise slightly in the Great Lakes region.

Cold Wave Moves Southeast.

While the central part of the country was preparing to chip off the icicles, the Southeast was beginning to feel the wrath of the cold wave. North Carolina and Tennessee reported sharply falling temperatures. One man died of exposure near Johnson City, Tenn.

Wisconsin and Iowa appeared hardest hit by the cold snap. Another blizzard swept through Wisconsin and road crews had to fight temperatures as low as 25 degrees below zero. In Iowa drifting snow paralyzed transportation and interfered with telephone communication.

Cities beleaguered by the cold reported numerous cases of frozen limbs and injuries received in falls on the ice. Relief agencies in Milwaukee and Madison, Wis., said they were swamped with requests for shelter.

The United Board of Charities in Chicago appealed for contributions to aid 2,000 poverty stricken families. City authorities here received hundreds of complaints against landlords who permitted fires to burn low.

Devil Lake, N. Dak., and Moorhead, Minn., reported temperatures 24 degrees below zero. Other low points were: Ledges Park, Iowa, 23; Duluth, Minn., 16; Madison, Wis., 14; Rockford, Ill., 14, and Milwaukee, 8.

BOARD OF WOMEN'S CLUBS OPENS RALLY

The annual midwinter board meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs opened last night with a reception for the members of Congress and the Diplomatic Corps by the president, Mrs. John F. Sippel, and members of the executive committee, at the national headquarters at 1734 N street northwest.

The first meeting of the board will be held this morning and will continue this afternoon and this evening and all day tomorrow. The last meeting will be held Friday morning.

Yesterday there were conferences of the State directors and State presidents. Mrs. Virginia White Speel is the director from the District and Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt is president. Mrs. Speel was the first president of the State Presidents Club.

President and Mrs. Coolidge will receive the members of the board Friday. Thursday afternoon Mrs. Sippel will place a stone on behalf of the federation in the structure of Washington Cathedral in the presence of the board. After leaving Washington Cathedral the federation leaders will visit other points of interest in Washington.

One of the speakers at the meeting tonight will be Dr. Ollin Templin, professor of philosophy and psychology of the University of Kansas.

The officers of the federation are: Mrs. Sippel, of Maryland, president; Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Massachusetts, first vice president; Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., second vice president; Mrs. Henry C. Taylor, recording secretary; Mrs. H. G. Reynolds, treasurer, and Mrs. William H. Purdy, chairman of the finance committee.

DRY FACTIONS SPLIT ON NEW LIQUOR LAW

RESOLUTION IS TABLED

Two "dry" factions in the Columbia Heights Citizens Association last night served notice on each other that they would be prepared for a "finish fight" at the March meeting, when a resolution recommending a drastic change in the Volstead act, tabled at last night's meeting in the Columbia Heights Christian Church, comes up for a vote.

The resolution, introduced by Charles T. Clayton, proposes to change the present law so as to permit the issuance of search warrants to enter private dwellings believed to be used for the manufacture of liquor; the establishment of additional "flying police squadrson" and the swearing in of all policemen in the city as Federal prohibition enforcement officers.

Jesse C. Duke, a self-styled "dry," objected to the resolution on the ground that it was unconstitutional in part and because the association should devote its time to worthwhile subjects, other than the consideration of prohibition and religious questions. Duke gained sufficient support to have the motion tabled.

The association adopted a resolution urging that local firemen be paid a salary equal to that paid firemen in other metropolitan cities, following an address by Capt. Harmon A. Chapman, president of the District of Columbia Firefighters Association.

A resolution urging passage of a bill providing for a five-year extension program of public branch libraries was adopted following an address by George P. Bowerman, district librarian.

Improvement of Van Ness street west of the Bureau of Standards was advocated in a resolution adopted by the Devonshire Downs Citizens Association. In proposals to change the highway course, it was announced that the best plan would be to make a slight turn at the Alfred P. Thom property, for which Mr. Thom has agreed to donate the land.

The resolution also urged the District authorities to take steps in improving the highway, according to the recommendations of the National Park and Planning Commission.

Protest was made to the action of the police in attempting to prevent parking in the center of Van Ness street until better facilities are provided. The matter of better street car service in that neighborhood will be taken up with traction officials.

Women's Groups Plan For "War-Cure" Parley

District of Columbia branches of ten national women's organizations are making arrangements for the fourth annual conference on the cause and cure of war, to be held January 14-18, inclusive, at the Hotel Washington.

Mrs. W. L. Darby is chairman of the committee on arrangements, and has as aids Mrs. H. A. Irwin and Mrs. S. E. Brown. Subcommittee chairmen are: Miss Esther Caukin, registration; Mrs. H. L. Parkinson, information; Mrs. Sidney R. Jacobs, pages; Mrs. Harry E. Hull, house; Mrs. T. J. Howerton, ushers, and Mrs. E. C. Dinwiddie, literature.

Science Academy Maps Out Plans for New Year

The members were addressed by Robert B. Sosman, of the department of research and technology of the United States Steel Corporation and retiring president of the academy. He gave an illustrated scientific lecture.

Birgfeld Takes Office As Civitan Club Head

Frank A. Birgfeld, chief clerk of the Treasury Department, was inducted into the office of president of the Civitan Club at a dinner at the Lafayette Hotel last night.

FEDERAL WORKERS MAY BE SOLICITED IN CHEST CAMPAIGN

COMPANIES NAME MEN TO RUSH COLLECTIONS

Community Appeal Indorsed by Club and Union at Regular Meetings.

Spurred by President Coolidge's action in opening the way for systematic solicitation of Government workers much progress was made yesterday in perfecting details of organization incident to the campaign for funds for the Washington Community Chest.

The Civitan Club at its meeting last night pledged support to the Chest and urged members to contribute generously. Women's Local, No. 105, Typographical Union, at a meeting last night also indorsed the Chest campaign.

President Coolidge came to the aid of Chest workers and solved the problem that has been confronting them since the campaign was first inaugurated—canvassing Government workers. Such practice is prohibited except in the case of the Red Cross. President Coolidge, however, removed the ban to the extent of permitting departmental heads to distribute envelopes among respective employes and to permit representatives of the Chest to station themselves at the exits of the various departments to receive these envelopes when filled by the employes themselves.

Four New Chairmen Named.

Frank R. Jelleff, chairman of the group solicitation unit, yesterday made public names of four additional divisional chairmen who had accepted service in the work of soliciting funds from employes of establishments having 25 or more workers. They are Percy Thompson, Rhode Island and North Capitol divisions; Charles H. France, central division; William E. Russell, Iowa Circle division, and Sidney W Strauss, midcity division.

Jelleff also announced the names of several large establishments which have offered to cooperate with his unit by naming key men in their employ to aid in organizing the solicitation of their fellow employes.

These concerns and their key men are:

Howard Dean Accepts Post.

Other developments of the day included acceptance of Dr. Kelly Miller, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of Howard University, of the chairmanship of a committee of prominent colored residents; announcement that Robert Fleming, chairman of the special gifts unit, had called a special meeting of his committee for this afternoon at Riggs National Bank, and appointment of C. W. Shoemaker as division chairman of the Metropolitan unit.

Hack Stands Reduced By City Commissioners

Sixty-three officially designated hack stands were eliminated yesterday by the District Commissioners, who reduced the number from 204 to 141.

Some new stands were designated in the list prepared by traffic and police officials following a study to determine just what stands were being used by the hackers and to what extent. The size of many of the stands were reduced in line with the facts developed in the study. The work of changing the signs will be begun immediately, although the new stands provided for in the police regulations will not become officially effective until 30 days after advertising.

Navy Officer's Child Hurt in Auto Crash

Convicted of reckless driving as the result of a collision with the automobile of Lieut. Comdr. John H. Magruder, U. S. N., attached to the presidential yacht Mayflower, William H. West, of Falls Hills, Va., was fined $75 with a 30-day jail alternative by Judge Isaac R. Hitt yesterday in Traffic Court.

Testimony revealed that one of the naval officer's children was slightly injured in the collision, which occurred a few days ago.

Jersey Visitor Dies Of Gas From Stove

George Kelly, 60, Ignores Warning to Shut Off All Burners.

Failure to heed the warning of the proprietor of a rooming house at 924 I street northwest to make sure that the burners of a gas stove in his room were shut off resulted in death by asphyxiation yesterday of George Kelly, 60 years old, who came to Washington Saturday from Jersey City, N. J., because of poor health.

He was found dead in bed by Mrs. Minerva Lamborne at noon. The police rescue squad was summoned, but he had been dead several hours.

Kelly is said to have been in failing health within recent months and came to Washington because his son, Henry F. Kelly, is stationed at the Naval Air Station. Police expressed the view that the circumstances of his death were accidental and was due to the fact that he did not take precautions to stop the flow of gas after using an oven in his room. His health condition, it was said, was not of serious enough nature to cause him to take his life.

Besides his son, Kelly is survived by a daughter, Mrs. David Ravage, of Mound City, Tenn. Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt will view the body today at the morgue.

DAUGHTER-SLAYER MUST DIE IN CHAIR

SENTENCE ON SATURDAY

The motion for a new trial of Franklin Ellsworth Smith, 50-year-old bank watchman, who was convicted of first degree murder of his daughter, Bessie L. Smith, 19, November 22 by a jury, was denied by Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy yesterday in criminal division of the District Supreme Court.

The watchman probably will be called before Chief Justice McCoy on Saturday to be sentenced to die in the electric chair at the District Jail for the crime. The jury found Smith murdered his daughter by strangling and suffocating her in their apartment home at 1151 New Jersey avenue northwest last September 26.

In a lengthy opinion, Chief Justice McCoy held the contention of E. Russell Kelly, defense counsel, that the court erred through failure to instruct the jury if Smith committed the crime as the result of an "irresistable impulse" he should have been declared insane, was not sustained by decrees of the District Court of Appeals and tribunals of other jurisdictions.

Chief Justice McCoy also pointed out that regardless of the legal test of insanity, motion for such instruction to the jury would have been denied as there was insufficient evidence in the case to warrant such instruction. Prosecution of the watchman was conducted by Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins.

Motorcycle Policeman Hurt in Auto Crash

Private Allen E. Brown, motorcycle policeman of the Traffic Bureau, was slightly injured when knocked from his machine by an automobile yesterday morning. Brown was struck by Frederick Lewis, 609 I street southwest, according to police reports. The mishap occurred at Sixth street and Maryland avenue southwest. He was taken to Emergency Hospital in a private automobile and treated for laceration of the left ear and bruises on his legs.

Officers' Installation By Masons Is Tomorrow

Newly elected officers of the 22 clubs affiliated with the advisory baord of Masonic clubs of the District of Columbia will be installed tomorrow night at a joint ceremony at the Willard Hotel at 8 o'clock. Senator Arthur I. Robinson, of Indiana, will be the speaker of the evening.

Following the installation the ballroom will be turned over to the club members for a dance.

HEARING SCHEDULED ON ZONING CHANGES

Extension of 110-Foot Height Area in Eighteenth and K Streets Proposed.

COLUMBIA ROAD SUBJECT

Several changes in zoning of properties will be considered at a public hearing at 10 o'clock this morning by the District Zoning Commission in the board room of the District Building.

Extension of the 110-foot height area is proposed in three of the changes which will be considered. The properties involved are 805-817 Eighteenth street northwest, 1527 K street northwest and 1518-1526 K street northwest.

Changing Columbia road, from Biltmore street to Mintwood place northwest, from residential to first commercial area is another change which will be considered. Other proposals include changing from residential B restricted, 40-foot height limit, to first commercial, 60-foot height, the property in the rear of the Park Theater, on Fourteenth street, between Buchanan and Crittenden streets northwest; to increase the height limit from 40 to 60 feet on the west side of Thirteenth street between Longfellow and Madison streets and on the north side of Longfellow, between Thirteenth street and Georgia avenue; to change from A restricted to residential, two lots and the rear portion of another on the south side of Newton street, between Seventeenth and Eigteenth streets northeast.

Allowance of five additional feet on the building height to allow for terraces will be eliminated under an amendment to zoning definitions which are to be considered. At present, in the 60-foot limit area, buildings may be increased in height by not more than five feet where terraces are that high or higher above the curb line. It is said that in the past buildings have been constructed with a terrace which afterward has been removed.

Catholic Charities Get Aid Under O'Neill Will

The will of John O'Neill, who died January 1, was filed for probate in the District Supreme Court yesterday, and after directing payment of bequests to several local Catholic organizations, left the residue of his estate to his family.

Bequests of $1,000 each were made to The Little Sisters of the Poor, St. Ann's Infant Asylum, St. Joseph's Male Orphan Asylum and St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum. In appreciation of her faithfulness, Sarah Davis, his housekeeper, was left $1,000, while a similar bequest was made to Father Woods, of Nazareth, N. C. The Franciscan Monastery in Brookland was left $100.

SEARCH FOR HOUSE OF DETENTION SITE REPORTED FINISHED

One of Four Places Viewed Will Be Chosen Today After Conferences.

ALL NEW LOCATIONS IN BUSINESS SECTION

The hunt for a new home for the House of Detention and quarters for the Woman's Bureau of the Police Department yesterday narrowed down to a choice of one of four buildings, all of which are located in the commercial zone.

Which of the four will be selected will depend on the speed with which they can be made ready for occupancy, Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner and chairman of a special house-finding committee named by the commissioners, said. The committee has spent the best part of three days inspecting various buildings, ranging from apartment houses to old residences and business buildings.

Hints on Location Are Lacking.

No hint of the location of the probable choice would be given by Davison or other members of his committee. Confronted with an order of the District Supreme Court ordering the present home, in a converted apartment house at 908 B street southwest, vacated by January 21, officials are unwilling to have the house-finding task complicated by criticism or protests at this time.

"I will say this, however," Davison said. "None of the placed under consideration is in residential zone neighborhoods. All of the sites considered are in commercial zones, in the center of the city. Nor do we intend to place the House of Detention next door to high-class business establishments which might be injured."

Choice of the new home is expected to be made today after conferences with the owners of the buildings under consideration.

Women Call on Committee Head.

Mrs. Mina C. Van Winkle, police lieutenant in charge of the Woman's Bureau and House of Detention, has been fearful that she would be located in one of the outlying sections of the city and a group of women, representing the District of Columbia Federation called on Maj. Davison to boost for a downtown location.

They were assured, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, spokeswoman said afterwards, that "the kind of location they requested was in process of being secured." The committee was composed of Mrs. Edgar B. Merritt, president of the federation, Mrs. W. J. LaWarre, Mrs. Gertrude Bischoff, Mrs. R. J. Bates, Mrs. Tamar F. Royce, Mrs. P. C. Brinley, Mrs. A. H. Day and Mrs. Wiley.

Delinquency Bars Wife of American

Question of whether conviction on a juvenile delinquency constitutes moral turpitude and is sufficient ground for barring a German-born wife of an American citizen from entry into this country was raised before the District Court of Appeals yesterday.

The case involves Mrs. Anna Vennke Ulrich, young German wife of Joseph M. Ulrich, wealthy resident of New Haven, Conn., who is the great-grandson of Gail Borden, founder of the evaporated milk firm. The couple were married in Berlin in December, 1927.

Seven years before her marriage, Mrs. Ulrich was arrested and convicted of a juvenile delinquency. The "crime" was the theft of wearing apparel from the trunk of her roommate. Shortly after her marriage, Mrs. Ulrich applied to American Consul General Carlton Bailey Hurst at Berlin for a passport visa, but was refused on the ground that juvenile delinquency constitutes moral turpitude.

Realtors Sue in Sale Of Republic Oil Here

Suit for attachment of the $400,000 purchase price of the Republic Oil Co.'s properties, now in the hands of a local bank, by the Cities Service Co., was filed in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Hedges & Middleton, Inc., realtors.

The real estate firm claimed that they held an exclusive contract for the sale of the properties and named the Republic Investment Co., Abraham Himmelfarb, Harry Himmelfarb and Sol A. Himmelfarb, trading as the Republic Oil Co., as defendants in the suit, which asked for a judgment of $24,234.35 as brokerage commission under sale of the alleged contract. Through Louis Ottenberg and Jacob Halper, attorneys, the real estate firm declared it was engaged in efforts to sell the properties and the sale was made in violation of the contract.

Spouse Cruel, Wife Says, Asking for Maintenance

Mrs. Edna M. Genovese, of 2804 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, yesterday filed suit for separate maintenance against her husband, Frank V. Genovese, of 2119 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, in equity division of the District Supreme Court.

Shortly after their marriage last June 10, the wife charged, her husband began a course of cruel treatment toward her. He frequently struck her with books and magazines, she declared, and his alleged cruelty caused her to desert him recently and seek refuge in the home of her parents. She asked the court to grant her suitable alimony, declaring her husband earns $50 a week. Attorney Newmyer & King appeared for the wife.

Two Men Bound Over In Theft of Auto Tools

In connection with the theft of $1,000 worth of tools and automobile equipment from the Fidelity Garage, 2303 Fourteenth street northwest, on November 19, John R. Rutley, 24 years old, of 1430 Chapin street northwest, and John R. Fultz, 27, of 4230 Wisconsin avenue northwest, were bound over to the grand jury yesterday by Judge Gus A. Schuldt in Police Court.

Rutley was charged with grand larceny and housebreaking and was held in $1,500 bail, while Fultz was held in $500 bond on a charge of receiving stolen property.

Mrs. Cross Is Reelected Visiting Nurses' President

Mrs. J. W. Davidge Named Vice President; 8,161 Visits to Sick.

Mrs. Whitman Cross was reelected president of the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society yesterday at the monthly meeting of the organization in the Star Building. Mrs. John W. Davidge was elected first vice president; Mrs. Mandeville Carlisle, second vice president; Miss Mary Hale, secretary; Joshua Evans, jr., treasurer, and Mrs. Frank E. Weeden, assistant treasurer.

The report of Miss Gertrude H. Bowling, director, showed that 9,161 visits were made during last month to 2,583 patients. This number, said to be large, was due to the epidemic of influenza and grip.

Miss Pearl A. Griffith, orthopedic supervisor, gave a report of her work while studying in Boston last year on a scholarship from the organization for special training in orthopedic work. The society is conducting a large amount of this type of activity with the cooperation of the Kiwanis Club. Last year, it was reported, an average of 200 visits per month were made to orthopedic patients.

Those present at the meeting were: Mrs. Cross, presiding; Radford Moses, Mrs. David Potter, Miss Cora Barry, Mrs. Frank E. Weeden, George Hewitt Myers, Miss Elizabeth Bryant, Mrs. John W. Davidge, Mrs. Dwight Clark, Mrs. George R. Lockwood, Mrs. George B. McClellan, Mrs. Leonard A. Block, Mrs. John Sternhagen, Mrs. J. W. Turrentine, Mrs. Charles B. Crawford, Mrs. Franklin Ellis, Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann, Joshua Evans, jr., Miss Pearl A. Griffith and Miss Gertrude H. Bowling.

Aid in Congress Sought For World War Veteran

Friends of Sergt. Michael A. Donaldson, an outstanding hero of the World War and nicknamed "Sergeant Mike" by Mrs. Calvin Coolidge when he was received at the White House, are urging members of the military affairs committees of Congress to report a bill, pending since the Sixty-ninth Congress, which would give him an award of $10,000 and a life income of $200 a month in recognition of his war service.

Sergt. Donaldson gave up a promising boxing career in order to volunteer shortly after America entered the World War. At that time he was a runner-up for the middleweight championship of the world. His friends point out that he gave up contracts for engagements totaling $65,000.

Boy Scout Council Reports Nine New Troops in 1928

G. E. Hamilton Is Reelected President at Annual District Meeting

Other officers named are: Vice presidents, Julius Garfinckel, Karl W. Corby, Paul Bartsch and Henry P. Blair; treasurer, George Hewitt Myers, and scout commisioner, Barry Mohun. Other members of the executive board were named as follows: Ernest H. Daniel, Isaac Gans, J. H. Hanna, Samuel Kauffman, Dr. James A. Lyons, Arthur J. May, Dr. Walter H. Merrill, Roy H. Neuhauser, H. L. Rust, Dr. Camp Stanley, Houston Thompson, Capt. Chester Wells and Luke I. Wilson.

Reports of chairmen of last year's standing committees showed that the local council made rapid strides during the twelve months. There was a gain of 9 troops and 208 Scouts over the preceding year, while it was pointed out that in training leaders the council stands among the foremost of the 700 councils in the Nation. The Court of Honor awarded 36 Eagle badges, highest award in scouting, and presented 3,461 Merit badges, the council was told.

Capt. Chester A. Wells, chairman, announced that the inaugural meeting of the newly organized Sea Scout patrols of the District Boy Scout Council will be held tomorrow evening at the Wilson Normal School auditorium.
